Mrs. Gizycka Will Receive $400,000 in Settlement

Tax-Free Lump Sum And Property Under Patterson Will to Total About Million

By Murrey Marder
Post Reporter

A tax-free lump settlement of $400,000 will be given to Mrs. Felicia Gizycka to settle her contest over the will of her mother, the late Eleanor M. Patterson, it was disclosed yesterday.

Settlement terms were released as the 5-month-old will fight came to an end with a 40-minute uncontested trial formality in District Court, admitting to probate the will of the late owner of the Washington Times-Herald.

Jury Directed to "Prove" Will

District Court Judge Alexander Holtzoff directed a jury to "prove" the will after William E. Leahy, attorney for the will's executors, presented six witnesses to the will and its two codicils.

William A. Roberts, who represented Mrs. Gizycka in her suit charging her mother was of unsound mind when she made the will, anounced that the case was settled by "agreement."

It was estimated that the cash settlement plus the tax-free property left to Mrs. Gizycka in the will represents a pocket value of $1,000,000. The entire Patterson estate, before taxes, is valued in probate records at approximately $16,500,000.

Mrs. Gizycka is to receive $100,000 within 10 days, and the remaining $300,000 within 90 days, with the bulk of the money paid by the seven executives named by Mrs. Patterson to inherit the Times-Herald.

Gives Up $25,000 Annual Income

Under the settlement, reached earlier in out-of-court negotiation, Mrs. Gizycka agreed to give up her claim to a $25,000 yearly income for life under the will. This interest was transferred to the seven executives of the newspaper who will collect whatever portion of the $25,000 yearly that is available during Mrs. Gizycka's lifetime.

Attorneys for Mrs. Gizycka had contended that because of heavy taxes and the way the will was

Jet Bomber Crosses U. S. In 4½ Hours

A 100-ton eight-jet flying wing bomber swooped in to a landing here at Andrews Air Force Base at 5:16 p. m. yesterday, only 4 hours and 25 minutes after it roared away from Murdoc, Calif.

Average speed of the giant B-49 was 511.2 miles an hour for the 2258-mile flight.

The time was five minutes better than the pilot, Maj. Robert L. Cardenas of San Diego, had hoped for when he left Muroc Air Force Base.

The Wing in flight

Aboard with Cardenas were Copilot Capt. Wilbur W. Seller, Terre Haute, Ind., and four other crewmen.

The chevron-shaped flying wing is the world's largest, longest-ranging and most powerful jet aircraft.

Cardenas said the highest ground speed attained on the flight was 550 miles an hour. The bomber picked up tail winds only after reaching Salina, Kans.

Cardenas flew at 30,000 to 39,000 feet until he began to let down for Andrews Base over Front Royal, Va. He said he had perfect weather except for a cloud layer over Cincinnati, and never met any trouble.

Government Intercedes to Halt Break in Grain, Meat Prices

By John W. Ball
Post Reporter

Government agencies, plus the Senate Agriculture Committee, employed an unusual number of economic weapons yesterday in a partly successful effort to halt the downward crash in food commodity prices.

The Government's actions ranged from the usual attempt to find food speculators who had "rigged" the market, to veiled threats from Senate committee room of such drastic procedures as ordering commodity exchanges closed until prices become stabilized.

The grain, livestock, butter and egg, and cotton markets, which had started out bearish as if to repeat the collapse of Tuesday, turned around in their course as the news of the official Government moves flashed over the tickers.

At the end Chicago wheat was 1⅝ to 4¾ cents a bushel above Tuesday's close; corn was up 3¾ to 6⅜ cents. Oats were up 2⅛ to 2¾. Soybeans closed 2 to 4¾ cents a bushel higher. Rye at one time had moved up 10 cents a bushel in the cash market, but the closing price was still under what prevailed in the last days of OPA. (Rye was one grain that was not under price control during the war.)

Cotton at New York added $1.50 to $3.10 a bale. Wool tops were 2½ to 4½ cents a pound higher.

Butter futures advanced almost 2½ cents a pound for November delivery, and more than half a cent for March. Traders credited Government support of butter prices, announced late Tuesday, for the change. Eggs, however, at the close weakened with the best grades at 41 cents a dozen down 1 cent—the lowest since February, 1947.

Included in the fast-breaking developments, were:

1. Agriculture Secretary Charles F. Brannan ordered the Commodity Exchange Authority to investigate all futures trading on the Nation's commodity exchanges on Monday and Tuesday with a view to smoking out speculators.

2. Brannan, at the suggestion of the Senate Agriculture Committee, announced that the Agriculture Department's Commodity Credit Corporation is still buying grain on a huge scale—and that it is stepping up exports. By March 31 its export goal calls for more grain to be exported in 9 months than was exported in 12 months of last year's all-time world record movement of grain.

3. Brannan announced to the public that there is "nothing in the basic economic situation to warrant the current market break." Stocks of wheat on farms on January 1 were 343 million bushels—

Verdict Lays Two Murders To Edwards

Panel of 3 Judges Delays Sentence for New Trial Appeal

Baltimore, Feb. 9 (AP).—Thomas Alexander Edwards was found guilty today of first degree murder in the slaying last September of a Glen Burnie, Md., postal worker and his sweetheart.

Three judges returned the verdict late today after deliberating an hour. They withheld sentence pending motion for a new trial.

The judges convicted the 23-year-old Edwards of the murders of John H. Mahlan, 25, and Mary C. Kline, 18, who disappeared September 17 after going out on a date. Their bodies were found three days later.

To Hear Defense Motion

The Supreme Bench of Baltimore, composed of 11 judges, will hear the defense motion for a new trial. If it is denied, Edwards will be sentenced by the three criminal court judges who convicted him.

The defendant then would have the right to appeal to the Court of Appeals.

Judge Robert France announced the verdict, and particularly commended Defense Attorney William J. McWilliams for his handling of the case.

Edwards showed little emotion on hearing the verdict.

Hanging or Life

The first-degree murder conviction means either a sentence of death by hanging or life imprisonment.

During final arguments heard by the three judges before they began their deliberations, the prosecution reiterated its contention that all evidence in the case pointed to Edwards' guilt.

The State based its case primarily on an 11-page confession Edwards was said to have made following his arrest but which he repudiated during the trial.

Edwards testified early in the trial he made the confession in hope of staying in the Baltimore jail where he had received good treatment. He pleaded innocent.

William J. McWilliams, a former Annapolis judge who was appointed to defend Edwards, asserted vigorously during today's arguments that the State was try-

Senate Group Votes Tighter Cloture Rule

Proposal Would Stop Future Filibusters By Two-Thirds Vote

By Robert C. Albright
Post Reporter

A strengthened cloture rule, designed to cut off filibusters on any issue by a two-thirds vote of the Senate, yesterday was approved by the Senate Rules Committee by a vote of 10 to 3.

The antifilibuster measure, which may clear the way for at least part of the President's civil rights program, will be reported to the Senate next midweek and called up shortly thereafter.

Southern Senators prepared to fight it, but bipartisan sponsors voiced belief that Dixie Senators will not launch a "last-ditch" filibuster.

Southern Opposition

Chief Southern opposition was directed at a majority vote cloture proposal. This was defeated yesterday by an 11-to-2 vote, with only Senators Francis J. Myers (D., Pa.) and Irving M. Ives (R., N. Y.) voting for it.

Americans for Democratic Action, the American Civil Liberties Union and other National organizations supporting the civil rights program have solidly declared for majority vote cloture, rejected yesterday by the committee.

Seventeen of the organizations meeting here last week issued a statement attacking the two-thirds vote proposal as "time-wasting and even misleading."

Spokesmen for the Southern bloc said they were bound to oppose the two-thirds limit as "the first step" toward majority cloture, but Senator William F. Knowland (R., Calif.), who made the motion to report the new rule, told newsmen, "We may find there won't be too much opposition."

Knowland Encouraged

Knowland, who Monday tried and failed to force the rule to an immediate Senate showdown, said he was "very much encouraged." He said Southern Senators are entitled to present their case against the change "but if they filibuster it can be broken."

The rules reform approved yesterday was cosponsored by Senate Rules Chairman Carl Hayden (D., Ariz.) and Senate Republican Leader Kenneth S. Wherry (Nebr.). Hayden said he will consult lead-

Made Outcast by White Policy

Australian Chooses Exile With His Indonesian Wife

Melbourne, Australia, Feb. 9 (U.P.).—John O'Keefe, whose Indonesian wife and her eight children have been ordered to leave Australia under the "white Australia" policy, today announced he would follow the "wife of my choice" into exile.

"What sort of a man, what sort of an Australian would I be if I didn't follow her?" O'Keefe said.

"Because I married a good Christian woman from a neighboring continent I am to be made an outcast from my own land.

"In effect, an Australian may not continue to live in his own land if he marries a woman from Asia. If I were wealthy, I would spend my last penny fighting this case. Since I'm not, all I can do is follow the wife of my choice and her children into exile."

Mrs. Annie O'Keefe was a wartime refugee. Immigration Minister Arthur Calwell ordered her to leave by February 28 under a policy which prohibits immigration of Asiatics.

Calwell, during a debate in the House of Representatives today, said, "I respect Asiatics but they have their own standards. We have ours."

Opposition Leader R. G. Menzies called Calwell's statement "shocking."

Dr. Herbert V. Evatt, Minister of External Affairs, told the House, "During all my travels abroad I have not heard criticisms or protests against the 'white Australia' policy."

Labor Law Repeal Hit By Slowdown

Committee Agrees To Extend Hearings 13 Days Beyond Feb. 10 Deadline

By The Associated Press

President Truman's bill to repeal the Taft-Hartley Act ran into a slowdown yesterday when the Senate Labor Committee extended its hearings until February 23.

This is 13 days beyond the deadline set for tonight. It is a nine-day extension, in terms of actual hearing days.

The committee made its decision at an uproarious three-hour session in which the word "insult" flew around. The final vote was unanimous, but that didn't mean everybody was happy.

Democratic Defeat

It was a defeat for the Democrats on the committee, though they have an 8-5 majority. It was they who forced through the February 10 deadline. They didn't want to extend it.

They had to swallow the pill because the Republicans questioned the witnesses so thoroughly that about 30 more witnesses remained on the list with the deadline almost due.

The Democrats on the committee want speed and more speed for the Truman Administration's bill. So do labor unions. The bill would repeal the Taft-Hartley Act, and revive the original Wagner Act, with certain additions.

The extension apparently means a delay in getting the bill to the Senate for debate.

What its long-range effect will be is hard to estimate.

Thomas Sees Advance

Senator Elbert Thomas, (D., Utah), chairman of the committee, told reporters the action "probably will expedite" the bill. He said "Any kind of agreement is a step forward."

Senator Ellender (D., La.) has threatened to make a motion in the Senate that the bill be sent immediately back to committee—if it comes to the Senate floor with what Ellender thinks has been "inadequate" study. Such a motion to "recommit" the bill could cause a lengthy debate and slow the proceedings.

There is sure to be a long and fierce debate, regardless, on the Republicans' forthcoming efforts to restore provisions of the Taft-Hartley Act, piece by piece.

Attack by U. S. Chamber

The United States Chamber of Commerce issued a statement in which it called the Administration's bill "completely inadequate." It said the bill "fails to meet standards of fairness." In the statement, Vice President Herman W. Steinkraus urged that the basic provisions of the Taft-Hartley measure be retained. Regarding the Administration bill, he said:

"We think (it) is completely inadequate to the basic purpose of any national labor code equality before the law.

"It seeks to restrict employers in their conduct of employe relations in every way that was devised by the Wagner Act, while leaving the unions largely free to perpetrate many abusive practices that should be regulated."

Steinkraus leveled particularly sharp criticism at a section of the bill which would deal with "national emergency" strikes by use of a cooling-off procedure—but no court injunctions—in contrast to the Taft-Hartley section which lets the Government get 80-day injunctions.

Steinkraus said strikes in such cases must be blocked "by giving the Government adequate powers to this end."

Danish Envoy Sees Acheson On Atlantic Defense Treaty; Sweden Reaffirms Neutrality

Connally Insists That Treaty Draft Be Secret Until Senate Unit Sees It

Post Reporter

Secretary of State Acheson yesterday described the purpose of the coming North Atlantic defense treaty as the exact opposite of "aggression," as the Soviet Government had charged.

The whole concept of the treaty, he told his press conference, came directly from Article 51 of the United Nations Charter, which affirms "the inherent right of individual or collective self-defense if an armed attack occurs . . ."

Beyond this the Secretary could not go in discussing the contents of the new treaty. His lips were sealed, and for two reasons.

Draft Not Yet Complete

The first, it was learned later, was the insistence of Senator Tom Connally (D., Tex.) on keeping the draft of the treaty secret until his Foreign Relations Committee had had a chance to examine it.

"We don't want it to get out until we know what's in it," the Senator told a reporter yesterday. And he explained that "we" meant himself, since the committee as a whole had not yet expressed itself on whether to publish a summary of the pact.

The Senator argued that public attitudes were sure to form as soon as the pact was published, and that in such a case it might be harder for his committee to change anything it might disapprove in the present draft.

Moreover, he said, the draft was not yet complete and therefore was not in shape to be laid before the Foreign Relations Committee.

This, from all available evidence, was the second main reason for Acheson's silence yesterday. Judging from what he said at his press conference, not everything in the projected treaty has been completely "thought through" by everyone who is negotiating it.

Scandinavia Is Problem

Scandinavia especially raises a stubborn problem for the negotiators. As matters stand now, Norway and Denmark can join the new Atlantic union only at the cost of disrupting the existing unity of the three Scandinavian kingdoms.

This distresses some of the American and western European negotiators, who wish some way could be found of keeping Scandinavian ties and still bringing Norway and Denmark into defensive union with the west.

The Danish Ambassador, Henrik de Kauffman, and the Swedish Ambassador, Erik Boheman, had their long-awaited separate interviews with Acheson late yesterday afternoon.

The Swedes have offered their Scandinavian neighbors the draft of a defense pact under which an attack against one would be an attack against all. But Article 12 of this draft provides that "none of the participating countries may conclude agreements with a third power regarding a military alliance."

Acheson was asked yesterday if he had any comment on the Swedish proposal, which Norway had already rejected. He answered that he did not, although he did not want his hearers to think he was without ideas or convictions on the

West Resists Attempt

Reds Revive Yugoslav Claims To Austrian Area at Parley

By Ned Russell

London, Feb. 9 (NYHT).—The Big Four Foreign Ministers' deputies began a new attempt to write a treaty of independence for Austria today with the western powers resisting a Soviet attempt to allow Yugoslavia to restate its territorial claims.

The opening meeting of the conference failed to reveal any change in Russia's attitude toward the Yugoslav territorial claims against Austria, which some observers had expected to result from the Yugoslav row with the Cominform.

The Soviet attitude, however, was regarded in western diplomatic circles as a noncommittal or evasive gesture rather than a reaffirmation of support. Yugoslavia's claims deadlocked the last four-power attempt to write a treaty last May.

Georgi Zarubin, Soviet delegate, told the American, British and French delegates that Russia thought that Yugoslavia's claims should be considered and some solution should be found.

The three western delegates—Samuel Reber of the United States, James Marjoribanks of Great Britain, and Marcel Berthelot of France—each spoke against the Soviet proposal. They insisted they could not agree to any changes in Austria's frontier and said there was no point in hearing Yugoslavia's claims again. Yugoslav spokesmen have appeared three times before the deputies.

The only other disputed issue disclosed today concerned the western demand for a four-power guaranty of Austria's territorial and political integrity. Reber pressed in vain for the proposal, but Russia insisted it was unnecessary.

Other disputed clauses will be discussed Thursday.

U. S. Diplomat Told To Leave Hungary Within 24 Hours

By Edward M. Korry
United Press Staff Correspondent

Budapest, Hungary, Feb. 9.—The Hungarian government has charged a United States Legation official with helping Hungarians flee the country and has ordered him to leave within 24 hours, authoritative sources said tonight.

These sources identified the official as Robin E. Steussy, 27, vice counsul, from Madison, Wis. Steussy is accused of making use of diplomatic privileges and immunity to aid the flight of Hungarian citizens.

The government acted 24 hours after Joseph Cardinal Mindszenty, 56, was sentenced to life in prison following a three-day treason trial in which the state asserted U. S. Minister Selden Chapin had encouraged the Roman Catholic primate to oppose the republic.

Just before the trial began last week the government also expelled a United States attache, Stephen Koczak, declaring he had asked for and received political and economic information from Mindszenty and his associates.

United States Legation officials here were not available for comment on Steussy.

Mindszenty will serve the rest of his life in Vac Prison, on the right bank of the Danube, where Communist Deputy Premier Matyas Rakosi was interned before the war, a government spokesman said. It is the most severe of Hungary's three grades of prisons.

The prosecution and defense set to work to prepare appeals to the Supreme Peoples Tribunal. It may be a month or more before the supreme court takes up the case.

A Foreign Office spokesman said it was neither likely nor probable that Mindszenty's sentence will be increased to death.

Action Has Horrified And Sickened Free World, He Declares

By John M. Hightower
Associated Press Reporter

Secretary of State Dean Acheson yesterday coldly condemned Hungary's conviction of Cardinal Mindszenty as "wanton" Communist religious persecution which has "sickened and horrified the free world."

The United States, he disclosed, is already considering possible action through the United Nations.

Britain and France are being consulted on the next move.

On Capitol Hill, the House Foreign Affairs Committee formally demanded intervention by the United Nations "or by such other means as may be most appropriate."

Later the House unanimously adopted a resolution urging that the United States protest Hungary's treatment of the cardinal either through the United Nations or by other "appropriate" means.

The resolution goes to the Senate.

Not Member of U. N.

Diplomatic officials said it was one of the most extensive indictments of a Russian satellite country ever to come from an American Cabinet member.

Acheson noted that Hungary is not a member of the United Nations. But he said the Soviet-controlled country is definitely bound "by the obligations set forth in Article 2 of the treaty of peace with Hungary."

And on the basis of this treaty, which guarantees freedom and human rights, Acheson said the United States may bring violation charges in the United Nations.

In a terse 300-word statement, Acheson made these salient accusations:

1. Hungarian authorities are "Soviet controlled" and are seeking to "discredit and coerce religious leadership in Hungary in order to remove this source of moral resistance to communism."

That was one of the strongest charges yet made by responsible American officials that the hand of Moscow is manipulating Hungary's actions behind the scenes.

2. In the trial of Cardinal

Stockholm Regrets Steps by Norway; Ambassador Gives Views to Secretary

Stockholm, Sweden, Feb. 9 (AP).—Indications grew today that Denmark may follow Norway in defense discussions with the Western powers, while Sweden declared anew her intention to sit out the cold war.

A Norwegian delegation is in Washington now, looking into prospects for joining the North Atlantic defense pact.

Danish Ambassador Henrik de Kauffman and Swedish Ambassador Eric Boheman called on Secretary of State Dean Acheson in Washington late today. They outlined their governments' views on Scandinavian defense in connection with the North Atlantic alliance.

Sweden Airs Views

Sweden's foreign policy declaration was presented to Parliament by Premier Tage Erlander and Foreign Minister M. Oesten Unden in a joint statement.

It said Norway had rejected a 10-year military pact with Sweden because this would have barred the Norwegians from alliance with any stronger group, including the prospective North Atlantic Allies. The statement expressed regret at Norway's stand, and reiterated the government's intention to stay neutral.

Minority Leaders Voice Warning

(These were Foreign Minister Unden's words to the Swedish Riksdag, as officially reported to Washington yesterday:

("It is with deep regret that the Swedish government has come to the conclusion that the Swedish and Norwegian viewpoints cannot at present be reconciled.")

The leaders of two minority parties in a subsequent debate, gave warning that Sweden would have to reconsider her neutral position if Russia establishes a military base in Finland.

Jessup Named As Delegate to Major Parleys

By The Associated Press

President Truman and Secretary of State Acheson have chosen Philip C. Jessup to represent the United States at future major international conferences, it was learned last night.

Jessup, who would be given the rank of Ambassador-at-large, has been this country's representative on the United Nation's Security Council. He has also held the position of professor of international law at Columbia University. He is 52.

Mr. Truman is expected to send his nomination to the Senate within the next few days.

Jessup resigned recently from his Security Council post to return to Columbia University.

Two other shifts in the American delegation to the United Nations were also reported to be in prospect.

Diplomatic informants said John C. Ross, who is deputy to the chief American delegate to the U. N., Ambassador Warren Austin, is understood to have been chosen to succeed Jessup at least temporarily on the Security Council.

Informants also said Charles Noyes, an adviser on Security Council affairs, has been chosen to serve on the interim committee of the General Assembly, the so-called "Little Assembly."

Court Ruling May Affect Baseball

New York, Feb. 9—A United States Court of Appeals ruling here today may have a profound effect on organized baseball.

The court ruled that baseball may be engaged in interstate commerce and therefore subject to Federal antitrust laws. By a 2-1 decision it overruled a lower court decision throwing out a suit by Danny Gardella against the New York Giants. The lower court decision was based on an old United States Supreme Court ruling that baseball is not interstate commerce.

Cabbie's Story Resembles Theirs

Two at Hospital Questioned On Man's Remarks on Beating

By John London
Post Reporter

Police investigating the beating of cab driver James Rowell have questioned two persons at Emergency Hospital who two days ago told their stories to The Washington Post.

They are Miss Mary Marra, a nurse, and James G. Capossela, hospital superintendent.

The story told by Miss Marra and substantiated by Capossela indicates that Rowell, 48-year-old Yellow Cab driver, believed the men who beat him early on the morning of January 14 at Thomas Circle were policemen.

Miss Marra's story was reported Tuesday in The Washington Post. She said yesterday that since publication of the story, she has been contacted by police investigators and repeated her statement to them.

According to Miss Marra, a man resembling Rowell refused treatment at Emergency Hospital early on the morning of January 14 when he learned he would have to state for hospital records his name, address and how he received his injuries.

Miss Marra said the man asked if such information would be seen by police. When she replied that it would, the man remarked that he "didn't want to involve any policemen because he didn't want to get mixed up with police."

The man then left, she said, after stating he would go to a private physician for treatment so there would be no police report.

Capossela confirmed that the nurse had told him about the man who had walked out because he thought he had been beaten by police and feared getting involved with a police report, and presumably, a police investigation.

Chief Barrett has said that the results of a police investigation into the case will be turned over to United States Attorney George Morris Fay as soon as it is complete. Inspector Robert S. Bryant, chief of detectives, heading up the inquiry, said that the investigation was still incomplete.

Since the hushed-up January 14 beating was first uncovered and reported by The Washington Post January 30, the victim, Rowell, has insisted he never knew who the assailants were.

While reporters pressed their investigation of the mystery-shrouded case, Police Chief Rob-

Janitor Put in St. Elizabeths For Waterfront Sex Orgies

A 58-year-old janitor was committed to St. Elizabeths Hospital yesterday after admitting he presided at sex orgies with young girls in his waterfront shack.

The janitor is Michael Thork, of 4518 Canal rd. nw., who, according to Detectives James Bryant and Michael Apperti, is known to have committed an assortment of sexual acts on four girls, aged 8 to 12, last year.

Thork was arrested last November and made a statement to police. So obscene was the affidavit he gave that Assistant United States Attorney John C. Conliff, Jr., declined to read it aloud in District Court yesterday.

According to Gallinger Hospital Physician Amino Perretti, Thork claims to have entertained more than 100 small children in his "home" which is in the Georgetown police precinct.

The home is a frame shack close by the Chesapeake & Ohio Canal. Investigators said the interior of the shack was littered with garbage and sewage.

In his affidavit, Thork said he enticed the children to his shack with promises of money and then paid them sums of from 25 cents to a dollar for joining him in indecent acts.

Most of the young girls were from poor families and were eager for money, police explained.

One girl told police that Thork

U.S. Radar Network Asked for Defense

By John G. Norris
Post Reporter

Immediate construction of a 161-million-dollar radar network around the United States to give warning of possible enemy air attacks was asked yesterday by the Administration.

Hearings on the plan to construct such picket stations at secret locations in continental United States and Alaska will open before a House Armed Services subcommittee this morning.

Explaining the program yesterday, an Air Force spokesman said that the Joint Chiefs of Staff feel it must be started as soon as possible. Only a "very small" part of our coastline now has such protection, it was said.

Canada to Cooperate

Canada will cooperate with its own stations tied in closely with our planned network, officials said.

A total of 112 million dollars is being asked in supplemental appropriations for this year and in the 1950 budget. Of this sum, it is planned to spend 86 millions for acquiring land and building the secret stations and 26 millions for the latest type radar equipment.

Twenty-six million dollars' worth of radar equipment already is on hand, while seven millions are needed by the Navy to build four radar picket ships to round out the network.

Once operating, the warning chain will require 8300 Air Force officers and men. Backing them up will be about 13,000 men in organized reserve units.

Officials stressed that the program will not give complete protection against a sneak air attack. Any attempt to provide several rings of overlapping radar stations would become "operation rathole," they said.

'Irreducible Minimum'

The present plan—approved by the Joint Chiefs—Defense Secretary James Forrestal, Research and Development Board Chairman Karl Compton, and the Bureau of the Budget—representing the irreducible minimum" of the protection we must have now, the Air Force declared.

The approved concept of air defense has a limited objective, it was said. In balancing our overall military power against that of an enemy, only enough funds were allotted to such defense to punish the enemy air offensive sufficiently so that it would be weaker than our own aerial offense.

Therefore there will be areas with a "defense in depth"—that is an outlying radar station and an inner station, each with a maximum range of 150 miles. Some areas will have only one layer, and others none at all. Two factors were considered in mapping the location of these stations: the relative importance of the area to the Nation and the likelihood of attack there.

But where double protection is given, warning should be given in time for interceptor fighters to reach any present bomber, the Air Force spokesman said. The system should suffice, even into the day when "air-breathing" guided missiles replace bombers, he said.

Too Little Return

Planners See Security Fund Waste

By the United Press

The National Planning Association yesterday accused the Army, Navy and Air Force of not giving the Nation enough security for the huge appropriations they receive.

It urged establishment of a civilian commission to keep tabs on military expenditures as long as they remain at their "present magnitude." The commission would check on waste and inefficiencies in all branches.

The association is a nonprofit and nonpolitical organization which conducts studies of the problems of government, business, labor and the professions.

It said it had found a wealth of evidence to bear out recent "authoritative" statements that "the United States is now getting a too meager yield in security for its defense expenditures." It said four factors seem to be cutting down this yield:

1. The rivalry between the three branches, particularly between the Navy and Air Force.

2. An easygoing attitude toward expenditures which is a result of the spending habits of the war.

3. A surplus of high-ranking officers, also partly a result of the war.

4. National defense appropriations historically have been on a "feast or famine" basis. The services "make large demands when the opportunity presented, and to spend as much as possible from these appropriations before they lapsed."

It noted that the Hoover Commission task force had "failed to find in the military establishment a sense of cost consciousness or a general realization of the vital importance to our national security of utmost conservation of our resources."

Feasting Democrats To Hear Their Leaders

The Truman-Barkley team will be on the air with a trancontinental hookup for the Jackson-Jefferson dinner February 24, it was announced yesterday.

'Dr. Panda' Helps Out at Heart Clinic

HELEN DENNISON, 2½, of 740 3d st. nw., has a place in her heart for "Dr. Panda"

A Panda in Washington is playing an important role in the examination and treatment of youngsters suffering from heart ailments.

Heart specialists who make use of his services are inclined to call him "Dr. Panda."

"Dr. Panda" has a special job to perform at the heart clinic at Children's Hospital, where members of the Washington Heart Association volunteer their services in attending young cardiac patients. For six days out of seven, "Dr. Panda" rests on a shelf. When Thursday rolls around and the clinic is open he comes down from his shelf and takes over the important job of keeping young minds occupied while examinations and treatment are in progress.

"Most of the small youngsters have different names for "Dr. Panda," said Dr. Bernard J. Walsh, who supervises the operation of the clinic as a member of the Washington Heart Association.

The heart clinic at Children's Hospital is one of seven the Washington Heart Association has assisted in organizing, developing and supervising.

Founded some 20 years ago, the association is now conducting its first public appeal for funds.

Truman Seeks Pay Raise for U. S. Officials

President Truman said yesterday that he was seeking a pay raise for Federal executives so that they could live "without going into debt." Such people, he said, were taking an "awful beating."

Addressing the Advertising Council, at a meeting in the old State Department Building, Mr. Truman said that it was important for the American people to understand the functions of their Government—as much so now as in time of war. But in time of peace, he said, it was harder to get their cooperation.

He added:

"It is a difficult job here to get good men to assume the responsibilities which are inherent in Government. They are underpaid and have a difficult time finding living quarters in the Capital City—or in any center where Government is established—and they have to take an awful beating.

"So, I am endeavoring to get a higher pay scale for the second, third and fourth levels of men who actually do the work in the Government. That will at least give them a chance to live without going into debt."

Mr. Truman praised the Advertising Council for the contribution it has made to the welfare of the country. He expressed his admiration, especially, for the "magnificent" job it did in the war years to help the Treasury with its bond sales.

Plan Pushed To Strengthen Defense Chief

Legislation to strength greatly the power of the Secretary of Defense over the armed forces—more far-reaching than that advocated by Secretary James Forrestal—is being drafted at the White House.

The plan, which is being pushed by Presidential Adviser Clark Clifford, comes close to the original Army program for "merging" the services, The Washington Post is informed.

It would go even further than the proposal of Forrestal and the Eberstadt task force of the Hoover Commission that the Defense Secretary be given "direction, authority and control" over the Army, Navy and Air Force Departments instead of merely power to lay down "general" policies and programs.

Effect of Plan

In effect, the White House plan would create a department of national defense headed by one secretary, with the Secretaries of Army, Navy and Air Force becoming to all purposes assistants to the Defense Chief. However, the present terminology probably will remain—that is three "departments," headed by secretaries.

The present statutory authority of the Secretaries of Army, Navy and Air Force to go over the head of the Secretary of Defense to the President would be repealed under the plan.

Another major feature would give Forrestal a military staff. The defense chief has proposed the creation of a chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff. He would be a fourth military member who would not have power of decision over the other three, but would be in a position to push controversies to a decision by reporting back disagreements to Forrestal with a recommendation. Forrestal then could act.

Frequent Parleys Held

The White House plan, it is understood, goes further. It would place Maj. Gen. Alfred Gruenther, director of the joint staff, and his 100 staff officers, under the chairman of the JCS instead of the Joint Chiefs. Forrestal also proposed increasing the size of the joint staff.

Almost daily conferences have been held between White House officials and Forrestal and his aides on the question during the past two weeks. An active role is being played in the discussions by Charles B. Stauffacker, assistant director of the Budget Bureau in charge of administrative management.

What President Truman finally will recommend to Congress has not yet been determined. He is understood to favor the Clifford proposals—in fact, he originally backed the Army merger plan. Forrestal—then Secretary of the Navy—opposed that program. But it is expected the matter will be settled between the White House-Pentagon officials before it is presented to Mr. Truman, probably for submission to Congress next week.

First Decline

U. S. Incomes Show Drop of One Billion

Wage and salary payments to Americans declined in December for the first time since early last year, the Commerce Department reported yesterday.

An immediate result was a rise in unemployment compensation payments.

Both developments were due chieuy to a drop in factory employment, the department said.

It reported that December wage and salary payments were at an annual rate of $137,300,000,000 compared with a rate of 138 billion dollars in November.

But despite this decline in the wage-salary rate, the department said, all types of personal income payments in December were at the highest rate ever recorded for any December. They were at an annual rate of $220,800,000,000.

The all-type personal income figure includes in addition to wage and salaries such payments to indivduals as dividends, rents, pensions and the like.

The department said the December rate of personal income payments of all types was slightly below November, but compared with a rate of 214 billion dollars for 1948 as a whole.

$13,149 Pledged Hospital

Pledges totaling $13,149 have been obtained by canvassers in suburban Montgomery County, Md., for the $75,000 fund campaign being carried on for Suburban Hospital in Bethesda, Md., it was reported yesterday.

Doughton Urges 60-Day Tax Decision Delay

House Ways and Means Chairman Robert L. Doughton (D., N. C.) last night said Congress ought to wait about 60 days before deciding what to do about taxes.

"We'll have a better picture then," North Carolina's veteran taxmaker told newsmen.

Doughton took a "wait and see" stand after Senator Walter F. George (D., N. C.), chairman of the Senate Finance Committee, issued a formal statement saying: "It would seem unwise to increase taxes until late in the current calendar year, and preferably in January and February of 1950."

See Recessive Factor

George, further documenting an interview published in The Washington Post yesterday said the President's proposed four billion dollar general tax increase, plus another $2,882,000,000 increase in payroll taxes, "might be the contributing factor t oa business recession" if enacted at this time.

Doughton was asked what he thought of George's statement that a tax increase could be averted by some cuts in appropriations.

"I would be very happy if that could be done," said the North Carolinian. "I would sleep well, my bed would be comfortable, which it is not now."

But if Congress fails to cut costs, and expenditures exceed revenues, "we would be faced with the question of doing our duty," Doughton said.

He said the question of "whether we are going into a slump" is a complicating factor.

"Then we would get less revenues," he said. "We would have to decide whether an increase in taxes would increase the slump."

Waits for "Better View"

George in his prepared statement said:

"There would seem to be definite signs that the so-called boom of the past four years is at least levelnig off so that the forces of inflation and deflation are now somewhat in balance."

George went on to say that if this is true the proposed tax increase might contribute to a slump and "we might lose more revenue than we could possibly gain through a tax increase."

"Whatever method is employed, the weight of nearly seven billion additional taxes upon the American economy will itself be definitely deflationary," George added.

Camp Pickett To Be Closed

By The Associated Press

The Army yesterday reaffirmed its decision to close Camp Breckinridge in Kentucky and Camp Pickett in Virginia.

Assistant Secretary Gordon Gray told reporters the camps will cease receiving trainees on Monday, and the actual closing will come 10 weeks later.

The camps originally were scheduled to be closed on January 10, but the order for this action was held up at the request of citizens in communities near the camps.

Kentucky and Virginia Congressmen registered vigorous protests against the closing orders.

The Army said the camps were being closed because of reduced funds.

Un-American Activities Group Is Voted $200,000 by House

By Marshall Andrews
Post Reporter

The House of Representatives voted 352 to 29 without debate yesterday to give its Committee on Un-American Activities $200,000 for its work in 1949.

Representative Vito Marcantonio (ALP., N. Y.), who argued against financing the committee before a closed session of the House Administration Committee, forced the roll call vote. He insisted, without result, that the Un-American Activities Committee be required to account for the money it spent during the Republican-controlled Eightieth Congress.

From the committee, meanwhile, came indications that Sam Carr, Canadian Communist leader, would not be called for questioning before being deported to Canada. Immigration Commissioner Watson D. Miller yesterday ordered Carr and his wife deported to face espionage charges north of the border.

A committee spokesman said the organization had not met to discuss whether it would insist on hearing Carr, but it was unlikely it would do so. This spokesman pointed out that the Red leader would "just decline to answer" and that "there would be no value in bringing him down here."

MR. AND MRS. SAM CARR

Carr and his wife, Julia, are being held at Ellis Island pending their removal to Canada. At the Justice Department it was said Carr probably would be deported soon, but that he could delay action at least a month if he exhausted all legal means at his disposal.

The Canadian had been sought since 1945, when he was accused by a Canadian royal commission investigating Soviet atomic bomb espionage of recruiting spies. He was apprehended January 27 by the FBI in New York after he reportedly returned from Mexico.

Several men, including an atomic scientist and a member of the Canadian Parliament, are now serving prison terms after having been convicted of violating the Canadian Official Secrets Act. The royal commission charged that Carr was linked with these men.

Axis Sally's Talks Called Spur to GIs

By Howard L. Dutkin
Post Reporter

The Nazi propaganda broadcasts of Miss Mildred E. (Axis Sally) Gillars actually resulted in making American soldiers fight harder and "comforted our people," Defense Attorney James J. Laughlin told Federal Judge Edward M. Curran in District Court yesterday.

Laughlin, representing Miss Gillars, who is accused of treason in connection with the broadcasts, made the allegation during a clash with Judge Curran over materiality of questions involving the effect of the propaganda on our troops.

Questioning Interrupted

On the witness stand at the time was Hans von Richter, former German radio official, who earlier had testified that the purpose of Nazi broadcasts such as one depicting horrors of an invasion was to undermine the morale of American soldiers.

"Didn't you have in mind concerning the broadcasts that the troops would be angered and fight harder?" Laughlin asked.

"I didn't give it a thought," Von Richter replied.

"But that is what happened, wasn't it?" Laughlin pursued.

Here Judge Curran interrupted, interjecting: "What happened is not material."

"You and I differ, your honor," Laughlin exclaimed. "A thing couldn't give aid and comfort to the enemy (an element of treason) if it was comforting our people and making our soldiers fight harder!"

"The issue," said Judge Curran, leaning over the bench, "is the general purpose of the broadcasts . . . now the fact whether or not troops were put in fear or fought harder is immaterial."

Cities Letters Received

But Laughlin refused to yield. "We have hundreds and thousand's of letters attesting that the broadcasts had a good effect on the troops," he insisted.

The jurist, however, was adamant and the line of questioning was dropped.

As far as propaganda testimony was concerned, Von Richter apparently was willing to agree with whoever happened to be questioning him.

When Prosecutor John M. Kelley, jr., speaking of "Vision of Invasion," asked him: "Was it not intended to affect the morale of the American fighting men?" the witness replied, "Yes, it was."

But under cross-examination by Laughlin, he agreed that the "main purpose" of Nazi propaganda was "to get the nations to fight shoulder to shoulder against communism."

"You believed communism meant to engulf the world and country after country would fall to communism — and you didn't want it?" Laughlin prompted.

"Yes."

Witness Agrees

"And," Laughlin led, "you oppose communism and those with you fought it because it would destroy religion . . .?"

"Yes," Von Richter replied emphatically, nodding his head.

Under further questioning Laughlin brought out that Von Richter's wife was an American woman, the former Miss Georgia James of Cleveland, daughter of an advertising executive, and had also participated in German wartime radio broadcasts.

He said that he married her before the war when he was attached to the German consulate in Cleveland and that she had "dual" citizenship, being considered a German in Germany by virtue of her marriage. He said under the German draft laws, she as a German citizen was obliged to perform whatever job was assigned.

Kelley objected the the line of questioning and Laughlin answered:

"We want to show that his wife's broadcasts were far in excess of anything with which this defendant is charged. There should be equal justice. There should not be prosecution for some and exoneration of others . . ."

But Curran sustained Kelley.

Recordings Played

During the morning session, Miss Gillars, drawn-looking after an attack of nerves Tuesday, sat listlessly as two more recordings of broadcasts attributed to her were played.

In one broadcast, the voice, identified as Miss Gillars', told of receiving a bundle of American magazines containing articles concerning war shortages in the United States.

After commiserating with American women about the alleged shortages of ice cream, stockings, and railroad equipment, the voice said: ". . . Germany is in the fifth year of the war and I tell you we all have enough to eat."

The Voice, speaking of shortages, asked: "And for whom are you doing it? I ask you again and again and again for whom? For the Jews! You're helping the British and you're helping the Jews . . ."

At one point the Voice said: "You know it's not very easy to be on the other side of the camp . . . you must think she's a little traitor sitting over there in Berlin when she should be back home knitting socks for our boys . . ."

The other broadcast gave news of some American wounded and contained the usual comments about making sacrifices for Jews and communism.

The trial will be resumed at 10 a. m. today.

6000 Travelers Marooned As Storm Stalls 43 Trains

By The Associated Press

Icy winds up to 50 miles an hour piled up new drifts yesterday on the snow-jammed Western plains and marooned more than 6000 travelers on 43 trains stalled by the storm.

At the same time, a February heat-wave sent the mercury to record heights in the East and South. February 9 heat records were broken in New York which had 59 degrees; Washington, D. C., with 68 and Mobile, Ala., where it was 77.2. Brownsville, Tex., basked in 80-degree warmth.

In contrast, Big Piney, Wyo., hit a low of minus 36 degrees before a sharp daytime recovery. But a swirling cold pocket drove south toward northern Nebraska where the Weather Bureau predicted 10 below zero as 50-mile north winds hit that section.

Roads Again Blocked

The wind—there was very little snow—hit North and South Dakota shortly after reaching a 50-mile velocity at Sinclair, Wyo. Virtually all roads plowed open earlier in these areas were sealed by blown snow.

Agriculture officials and cattlemen said the new crisis foreboded heavy future losses in animals as hay stocks dwindled and it became impossible to replenish or distribute them.

Most of the stranded passengers were locked in Wyoming. Of 39 trains which the Union Pacific railroad reported stalled, 28, with 4000 persons aboard, were immobilized by drifts up to 18 feet high in this State. The other 10 trains were held up in Nebraska, Utah and Idaho. The Southern Pacific had four trains delayed at Odgen, Utah. Last night some of the trains were being moved to towns where passengers could be sheltered but at least 31 were still stalled.

Planes flew milk and bread to Rock River, Wyo., for passengers of one train.

New Livestock Crisis

In western South Dakota, where blizzard conditions temporarily defeated efforts to unplug highways east, south and north of the Black Hills, a new livestock crisis was developing.

Kirk Mears, Pennington County agent, said the situation of cattle in western South Dakota continues to grow more serious. Many ranches dug out of drifts earlier were snowbound again and stock were hungry after consuming limited hay deliveries.

The Red Cross supplied 4850 pounds of food, three tons of coal and 1200 gallons of fuel oil to meet emergencies in the drift area. Airmen dropped 31½ tons of hay for herds, most of it around Lusk, Wyo., and the southwest corner of Nebraska.

The Fifth Army shifted emphasis in its Operation Snowbound to Wyoming, diverting bulldozers from Nebraska and South Dakota. Hard hit by new drifting were Rawlins, Hanna, Douglas and Gillette, Wyo.

A new storm which formed in the Gulf of Alaska was driving toward Washington and Oregon. Forecasters said the disturbance would bring winds of 30 to 45 miles an hour to the coast and unload new snows on the Cascade Mountains where Washington's two East-West highway passes were still closed by extensive slides. It was too early to predict the effect of the new storm on the snow-groggy plains.

Mitchum and Lila Leeds Given 60 Days on Marijuana Charge

Hollywood, Feb. 9 (U.P.)—Movie actor Robert Mitchum was clapped behind bars for 60 days today for taking part in a marijuana party.

Grim-faced and quiet, the actor traded his gray pinstriped suit for blue denim prison duds less than two hours after a judge gave him the jail sentence, two years probation, and a stiff lecture for letting down the kids of America.

"I've learned my lesson," I told the bailiff. "You'll never see me in here again.

Mitchum, who was so confident he didn't even bring his toothbrush to court, heard Judge Clement D. Nye say:

"I cannot overlook the responsibility you have to thousands of young Americans who idolize you."

Blond Lila Leeds, in whose hillside cottage she, Mitchum and two others were nabbed September 1, turned white as she drew the same sentence. Choking back sobs, the chic blonde, also minus toothbrush, was hauled off to the women's pokey.

Asked if she liked the sentence, she quavered, "YE-E-E-ES," after Mitchum's attorney, Jerry Giesler, poked her in the ribs.

Real estate agent Robin Ford, convicted with Mitchum and Miss Leeds, is already in jail on another marijuana charge.

Trial Board Exonerates Policeman

A Police Trial Board yesterday voted 3 to 2 to exonerate Police Pvt. Alton L. Highsmith of the 14th Precinct of charges that he suffers from an epileptic disability not incurred in line of duty and therefore should be dismissed from the force.

In announcing its verdict, the board said its decision, however, is not final, and that the case now goes before the Police Board of Surgeons, pending whose decision Highsmith will continue on sick leave.

Police officials said one of three courses is open to the Board of Surgeons; (1) return Highsmith to duty as well and able bodied, (2) retire him without pension for disability not incurred in line of duty, or (3) retire him with pension.

Road Building, Slum Clearance Coordination by Cities Urged

American cities must coordinate road building with slum clearance and other civic improvements to prevent waste, inefficiency and duplication of effort, Federal Works Administrator Philip B. Fleming said yesterday.

Such coordination is necessary, he said, because streets and highways are becoming more and more clogged with cars, despite the millions of dollars being poured into highway construction.

Fleming addressed the final day's session of the forty-sixth annual meeting of the American Roadbuilders Association at the Mayflower Hotel.

Private and commercial motor vehicle registration has increased more than 10 million in three years, he noted. "The saturation point is rapidly approaching," Fleming said, and can be relieved only by a "far-reaching plan of urban redevelopment."

To prevent unnecessary millions of expense, cities must include slum clearance and other projects, when areas are redeveloped for highways, Fleming said.

Col. E. R. Needles, New York engineer, was elected president of the association for the coming year. He succeeds J. T. Callaway of Chicago.

Jennings Randolph, assistant to the president of Capital Airlines in Washington, and former Congressman from West Virginia, was elected treasurer to succeed the late Capt. Herbert C. Whitehurst of Washington. Randolph also was named to head the association's airport division. Robert N. Reindollar of Baltimore, chairman of the Maryland State Roads Commission, was elected to the board of directors.

Mercury Hits 68 Degrees

Washington was treated to some Florida-brand weather yesterday as the mercury reeled up to 68 to establish a new record for the date.

The 68 reading at 2:38 p. m. topped by one degree the highest previous February 9 temperature in the records of the Weather Bureau. The 67 record was set in 1925.

Few topcoats were seen on downtown streets and some persons complained it was "too warm." The temperature climbed from a morning low of 40 at 7:32 a. m.

The Weatherman said today will be partly cloudy with a low of about 34. Occasional rain was expected during the morning.

Hiss Perjury Trial Postponed to March 21

New York, Feb. 9 (U.P.)—The perjury trial of Alger Hiss, scheduled for Feb. 24, was postponed today until March 21.

The postponement was agreed upon by the Government and Hiss' new attorney, Lloyd P. Stryker. Entrance of a new defense counsel in the case caused the postponement.

Hiss was indicted by a Federal grand jury on two counts of perjury in connection with his testimony concerning Whittaker Chambers role as a confessed Communist spy courier.

Action Urged By Spellman On U. S. Reds

New York, Feb. 9 (U.P.).—Francis Cardinal Spellman, Catholic Archbishop of New York, said today the United States would not be free from the threat of Communistic conquest until every Communist cell is removed from our Government and institutions.

In a radio address from his office, Spellman said the life sentence imposed on Joseph Cardinal Mindszenty was "prolonged murder," more merciless than death by hanging.

The sentence would have been death had not the free people of the world sounded a roar of protest, Spellman said, and he called on Americans to "stay awakened" or we will be "the tools and the fools for which the Communists take us."

"We have not won, nor shall we win, until Cardinal Mindszenty again walks home in the light of day, or dark of night, a free unfettered man," he said.

His words and those of others who denounced the Mindszenty verdict were beamed in Voice of America broadcasts to Hungary and other nations behind the Iron Curtain.

The broadcasts also told of the resignation yesterday of Bela Belassa, Hungarian consul general in New York, and eight other Hungarian diplomatic staff members.

Cardinal Spellman left by plane for the Inter-American Congress of Catholic Action in Havana shortly after his radio address. At the airport, Spellman said Belassa's action was "a gesture as eloquent as Mrs. Oksana Kosenkina jumping out of a window."

Grand Dragon Rouses Klan

Denmark, S. C., Feb. 9 (U.P.).—Grand Dragon Samuel Green fired up a rain-spattered Ku Klux Klan meeting tonight with a rousing speech on behalf of States' rights and white supremacy.

About 250 Klansmen marched single-file down Denmark's main street to hear their leader speak at the railroad depot, a steady rain plastering their robes to their bodies.

The grand dragon stood up under a shed as he pledged the Klan to shed its "last drop of blood" if racial equality is ever enforced in the South.

"The man who says a Negro is the equal of a white man is not as good as a Negro himself," Green shouted. "God himself stated that the Negroes should be servants of mankind."

Four constables reinforced the local police and sheriff's force of six men but there was no trouble.

Anti-U. S. Reds Run Legation, Hungarians Who Quit Assert

The Washington Post

The Hungarian Legation in Washington is run by top Communists in close accord with Soviet Russia and without sympathy toward the American Government.

This charge was made yesterday by Francis Petri, 59, and Anthony Winner, 45, legation officials who resigned Tuesday in protest of the conviction of Josef Cardinal Mindszenty in Hungary.

More than seven million Catholic Hungarians, 80 per cent of the population, feel the cardinal's trial was an outrage, they believe. They declared the cardinal was found guilty "long before the trial."

"But you can only protest in a free country," they declared.

No Comment on Action

Their charge was neither confirmed nor denied yesterday by John Florian, the legation's first secretary, whom Wimmer described yesterday as "the No. 1 Communist."

Florian refused to comment on the resignations.

Asked if he were a Communist, Florian said: "In Hungary there are no Communists. We are all members of the Hungarian Workers Party."

Florian admitted that last summer the Communist Party and the Social Democrat Party merged to become the Hungarian Workers Party.

Wimmer and Petri, speaking quietly but nervously and with heavy accents in their apartment at 2619 Woodley pl. nw., said that in addition to Florian the other four Communist Legation members were:

Minister Andrew Sik, in this country since 1946; George Kurdi, attache, who arrived last August; economist Louis Kadar, and office director Bella Kalai. Only Sik is a Catholic, they said.

A fifth Communist was mysteriously recalled to Budapest a few weeks ago, they said. She was Margit Odescalchi.

Catholic Schools Under Fire in Poland

By Larry Allen

Warsaw, Feb. 9 (AP).—Roman Catholic teachings in Polish schools drew fire from two political quarters today. At the same time the government denied a Catholic bishop's assertion that government officials are waging a campaign against religion in southern Poland.

(The great majority of Poles are Roman Catholics. The government is dominated by Communists. This relationship is similar to that in Hungary.)

The Polish Democratic Party, which usually follows the Communist line, called for a reduction of the teaching of the Catholic religion in schools.

Communist chieftain Roman Zambrowski told the Communist Workers' Party the nation's youth must be enlightened on how to oppose "reactionary activities of politically minded clergy carried on in the schools."

The charge that government officials have waged a campaign against religion came in a pastoral letter by Bishop Stanislaw Adamski.

There were reports of arrests of priests for reading the letter in their churches. A government spokesman said he had heard of no such arrests nor the letter.

Burmese Planes Bomb Rebels Near Rangoon

Rangoon, Burma, Feb. 9 (AP).—Burmese warplanes bombed and machine-gunned Karen rebels battling ground troops in Rangoon's suburbs today.

The planes sought to blast out a pathway to beleaguered Insein, 10 miles north of the capital. The Karens, armed with antitank guns and armored fighting vehicles, fought back savagely.

Cardinals Called For Secret Session

Vatican City, Feb. 9 (AP).—The Vatican announced in swift succession today that Pope Pius XII has protested the arrest of Josef Cardinal Mindszenty and called the Sacred College of Cardinals to a secret and extraordinary consistory next Monday.

Pope Pius is expected to condemn the Hungarian Communist government in the consistory for the treason trial and life sentence of the Roman Catholic primate.

His call affects all cardinals now in Rome and those who wish to come to Rome.

(It appeared doubtful that any of the United States cardinals would attend.).

The Vatican made public a letter the pontiff wrote the bench of Hungarian bishops January 2, eight days after Cardinal Mindszenty was arrested, protesting the arrest as a "grave offense upon the whole church."

The Pope exhorted Hungarian Catholics "to give to other peoples a splendid example of Christian strength." He praised the cardinal as "fearless and strong."

"The news that our beloved son, Cardinal Josef Mindszenty, Archbishop of Strigonia, with rash daring has been arrested and removed from his See, has stricken us with profound grief because we see in the person of this highly regarded prelate a serious offense against the sacred respect due to religion and human dignity," the Pope wrote.

"Therefore, conscience and duty impel us to express publicly sorrow and lament at what has been perpetrated against the rights of the church . . . and to protest solemnly against the grave offense inflicted upon the whole church." . . . "Do not let yourselves be led astray by those fallacious appearances of truth through which, with frauds and enticements, souls are decoyed."

Ethridge Bests Jerusalem Kids At Snowballing

Jerusalem, Feb. 9 (U.P.).—Mark Ethridge, American member of the United Nations Palestine Conciliation Commission, today showed Jerusalem school kids a thing or two about throwing snowballs.

The youngsters laid down a barrage of snowballs at the commission members who were stranded in the snow near the front lines while trying to depart for Jericho.

Some commission members were angry, but Ethridge scooped up a handful of snow and fired right back at the kids.

Police, called to the scene, reported that Ethridge had the situation under control.

Cardinal's 'Guilt' Was Prearranged, Book Reveals

Proof came yesterday from the Hungarian government itself that the "trial" of Cardinal Mindszenty was an elaborate ritual with a prearranged verdict of guilty.

The proof reached Washington in the form of a handsomely printed 96-page book in English, entitled "Documents on the Mindszenty Case," published in Budapest last month before the start of the cardinal's trial.

Copies mailed from Budapest on January 24, arrived here enclosing cards carrying the "compliments" of the Information Department of the Hungarian Foreign Office.

The book makes it clear that the Hungarian authorities had decided upon the cardinal's guilt, and had written, translated and published their evidence as fact, before the cardinal was able to say a word in court in his own defense.

A preface to the book, telling of the cardinal's arrest on December 29, takes it for granted that the cardinal was guilty, although he had not yet gone on trial.

Acheson Hits Conviction

Mindszenty, Hungarian authorities apparently employed all the "usual methods practiced by a police state" and therefore carried out "not the administration of justice but wanton persecution." That was as close as Acheson came to subscribing to accusations of torture, use of drugs and other tactics with which the Hungarians have been charged in the Mindszenty case.

3. The Hungarian government "must bear full responsibility for its action" in the case. This laid the basis for future, more vigorous action by the United States against Hungary, possibly the appeal to the U. N.

4. The Mindszenty case and the cases of other Communist-convicted church leaders fit into a deliberate pattern of the suppression of freedom and the extension of "totalitarian controls" over the country during the past two years.

The Hungarian people "have been divested of any real independence," Acheson said.

Sickened and Horrified

"The people of the United States," he continued, "and, without question, peoples of other freedom-loving nations, are sickened and horrified by these developments and fully comprehend the threat they constitute to free institutions everywhere."

Acheson referred also to the recent "persecution" of Lutheran Bishop Lajos Ordass and other church leaders whom he did not name.

Bishop Ordass was arrested September 8 last year and sentenced 21 days later by a Workers' Court to two years in prison and loss of civil rights for five years. He was Bishop of the Lutheran Church in Hungary and had been accused of violating currency laws.

Mindszenty, the Roman Catholic Primate of Hungary, was accused by the Communist government of treason, black marketing and other offenses.

Acheson volunteered his statement to State Department newsmen. He read it slowly—a cold, bitter condemnation of one of the final acts in a tragic series which he views as having smashed the freedom of an entire people.

Actually, authorities here saw no chance that any effective action could be taken by the United States to reverse the situation in the predictable future. But there was determination, officials said, to expose Hungary's record to the eyes of the world.

Amnesty Proposed By Israel's Cabinet

Tel Aviv, Israel, Feb. 9 (AP).—A government spokesman said tonight Israel's cabinet has proposed a general amnesty for prisoners, both civil and political, except for those serving life terms or under death sentences.

A government motion for amnesty will be presented Thursday, he said, to the provisional state council.

The amnesty proposal would include members of the Stern Gang, outlawed after the assassination of Count Folke Bernadotte September 17.

Two former Stern gang leaders, Nathan Friedman-Yellin and Jacob Shmuelewitz, are to be sentenced Thursday.

Informants told today of plans to shift a projected peace conference between Israel and the Arab nations to Paris after the present Israeli-Egyptian armistice talks at Rhodes.

Proposal Revived

New Dutch Offer Studied By Indonesia

London, Feb. 9 (U.P.).—Dutch authorities in Batavia have made a new "tentative" offer to the Indonesian Republic, which is now being discussed at Banka Island off Java, the Indonesian information office announced here today.

A spokesman said, "Roughly speaking the offer means the transfer of sovereignty to Indonesia by the middle of this year. It means that sovereignty would precede the 'reconstruction period' outlined in previous Dutch offers."

He said the significance of the new offer lay in the fact that it revived the proposal first submitted by the progressive group in the Indonesian Parliament eight months ago, when it was turned down as "too radical."

Pact Details Still Secret

subject. We have our own opinions, he said cryptically.

He gave no reason for the continued secrecy, except to say that it was important to build soundly, and to be sure that everyone concerned understood the importance and the implications of every word in the text.

Apart from the Atlantic pact, he made a revealing statement of his attitude toward European unity. He reminded his hearers that Europe should not be thought of as if it were the United States, and that Europe's problems were rooted in 2000 years of history.

He thought the Europeans had made remarkable progress toward unity so far, but that sound and lasting progress must come out of the feelings, traditions and desires of the Europeans themselves.

To prove his point he cited Lincoln's letter to the cotton workers of Manchester, England, in January, 1863, when Manchester was suffering from the civil war. Lincoln then wrote that he "reckoned upon the forbearance of nations" in shaping American policies.

In the same way, said Acheson, the United States should show forbearance to Europe today.

On other subjects, he said: (1) he felt much more optimistic about the prospects of peace between Israel and the Arab states; (2) he saw some possibilities of better relations with Yugoslavia; (3) he hoped to publish the text of the Humphrey committee report on the dismantling of German plants as soon as the British and French governments had been able to study it.

A-Bomb in Potomac Seen Ruining D. C.

By Lee Grove
Post Reporter

An atom bomb exploded in the Potomac River would be "a total disaster for the Capital, Dr. David Bradley said yesterday.

Dr. Bradley

Bradley, author of "No Place To Hide," made the observation in contrasting the greater deadliness of atom bombs exploded under water to those exploded in the air, at The Washington Post's book and author luncheon in the Hotel Statler.

He was one of four authors to appear on the program that was attended by 560 persons. The other speakers included Mrs. Ernestine Gilbreth Carey, coauthor of "Cheaper by the Dozen;" Dr. Sigmund Spaeth, musicologist, whose "A History of Popular Music" was recently published, and Sterling North, author and syndicated book reviewer, whose novel, "So Dear to My Heart" has recently been filmed by Walt Disney.

Bradley, who witnessed the Bikini bomb tests said the effects of the atom bomb exploded in air are "immediate" and pass relatively quickly, but "the bomb under water is an entirely new weapon on this earth. "In the course of the explosion tons and tons of material are released, that are like radium, and caught in the water."

Relates Effects at Bikini

Relating the effects at Bikini, Bradley said that the water, condensed into a cloud and then rained down on the ships in an area of 25 miles. The wind further dispersed the material, he said.

Mrs. Carey North

"The material lies there on the ships like paint. It is extremely dangerous," he said. "It is a problem of decay, and there is no way to get rid of it or to hasten its decay.

"If a bomb were exploded in the Potomac it would be a total disaster. There is no use kidding ourselves if a war comes along and bombs are exploded in 25 or 30 of our ports," Bradley said. "We have got to inform ourselves and make up our minds."

Bradley, the final speaker on the program, was the only one of the authors whose talk struck a sober note at the sold-out luncheon.

Sits Before Piano

Spaeth, author of numerous books on music, sat before the piano to give his talk.

Spaeth touched on some of the highlights in the history of popular music beginning with "the school of self pity—popular right up to today," singing snatches of "We Never Speak as We Pass By," "Oh, Fred, Tell Them to Stop," and "My Mother Was a Lady, or, If Jack Were Only Here," and others.

North, whose reviews appear in The Post, described the trials and tribulations of securing black lambs for use in filming his novel. In desperation, he said, they started to dye white lambs black, and, "as all of you who dye your hair know, we had to dye them every six days to hide the white wool that kept coming out."

When a black lamb was finally born they had it before the cameras 2½ hours later, North said. The lamb's final reward, he said, was "green pastures beside still waters."

Mrs. Carey's book was written in collaboration with her brother, Frank, jr.

The fourth and final luncheon of the season will be held April 6.

Red Fliers' Tour Stirs Controversy

The National Headquarters of the American Veterans of World War II (Amvets) took issue yesterday with its Virginia organization over the two Virginia-touring Russian fliers.

The Amvets' Virginia department last weekend protested any use of State funds for the tour of the two fliers, whom department officials called "deserters and unauthorized aliens."

The fliers, Peter Pirogov and Anatol Barsov, who landed in the United States occupied area of Germany and expressed a desire to see Virginia which they had heard described on a Voice of America broadcast, were being conducted on the tour by the Virginia Chamber of Commerce. The Chamber has said the State is not paying for the tour, but only furnishing a Conservation Commission car.

Yesterday, Stanley Allen, Amvets publicity officer, said the organization's national headquarters regarded the fliers as "political refugees, not deserters" and would give an informal reception for them at the Amvets headquarters here Friday.

The fliers spent last night at Luray. They are to come here late today.

Unit Tightens Cloture Rule

ers on both sides of the aisle before moving to consider the rule.

The Senate already has a two-thirds cloture rule, but there are many loopholes in it. For example, Senators can filibuster indefinitely on usually routine approval of the Senate journal and can talk without limit against any motion to call up a bill. Southern Senators usually use the last device to talk civil rights measures to death.

The Hayden-Wherry resolution simply eliminates these loopholes. Wyoming's Senator Lester C. Hunt (D.) lined up with two Southern Democrats, John C. Stennis (Miss.) and Russell B. Long (La.) against Knowland's motion to approve the change.

Voting for the motion were Senators Hayden, Theodore F. Green (R. I.), Myers, Guy M. Gillette (Iowa) and Garrett L. Withers (Ky.), all Democrats, and Wherry, Knowland, Henry Cabot Lodge, jr. (Mass.), William E. Jenner (Ind.) and Ives, Republicans.

Hunt told newsmen he may support the two-thirds cloture rule "in the final analysis, but this is no time to bring it before the Senate."

"It will mean a long wrangle in the Senate over civil rights while other legislation that I consider more important is delayed," said the Wyoming Democrat.

Hunt said he favored a civil rights program but thought anti-poll-tax and some other proposed reforms should be handled by constitutional amendments, "so the States can have the say."

Stennis Offers Compromise

Senator Stennis offered a Southern "compromise" substitute for the Hayden-Wherry measure, but it was rejected, 9 to 4.

Stennis' proposal, which he said was designed to prevent filibusters in national emergencies, would shut off debate in two hours whenever 86 Senators signed a petition to bring a bill to a vote.

Advocates of two thirds cloture said they might consider the Stennis proposal as an amendment, but not as a substitute for their own procedure.

Southerners picked up another vote on the compromise move, Kentucky's Withers voting with Stennis, Long and Hunt.

in the 230-seat chamber, declared "we must reserve the right to freedom of action."

If Finland becomes an advanced Russian base area, Sweden must draw its own conclusions about Russian intentions, Dommo said.

Bertil Ohlin, leader of the Liberal Party with 26 seats, said Sweden should follow a policy which would not place her in opposition to the great democratic powers. He said Russia has refrained from political and military measures in Finland. Continuation of that policy by Russia should be a condition for an unchanged Swedish foreign policy, he said.

Danes Still Hopeful

In Copenhagen, Danish Foreign Minister Gustav Rasmussen told Parliament he still hopes a common Scandinavian defense system will be worked out, neutral in power politics but armed by the West.

Rasmussen said Scandinavian Ambassadors in Washington are trying to induce the United States to help Denmark, Norway and Sweden strengthen their defense. He said he believed the United States might alter its stand that wapons can be supplied only to countries which back United States defense policy.

In the subsequent debate Julius Romholt, chairman of the lower house declared: "In the ideological war we are on the Western side, and we will maintain and defend our democracy as long as we possibly can."

He indicated concern over Russian pressure to keep Denmark out of a link-up with the West, declaring Denmark's geographical position is the most exposed in Europe, "only 20 minutes flying time away from the nearest Russian bases."

Sweden's Premier and Foreign Minister gave a detailed background of the negotiations which failed to produce a Scandinavian pact.

Gunman Wounds 3 In Street Barrage

Dallas, Tex., Feb. 9 (AP).—A gunman poured pistol fire into a busy downtown intersection for 20 minutes today, wounding three persons. Police captured him after firing two shots into the Y. M. C. A., where he had barricaded himself.

Gordon

Theodore Thornton, 40, a postman, was shot through the temple. Willie Rainbolt, 16, a delivery boy, was shot through the leg, and Robert Linshire, a pedestrian, was grazed.

Police identified the marksman as Charles A. Gordon, 28, Maderia, Calif., an employe of the Southwestern Bell Telephone Co. in Dallas. Capt. Will Fritz of the police department said Gordon declined to discuss the shooting. He used a .22-caliber target pistol.

Drunk Charge Ousts Officer

Baltimore, Feb. 9 (AP).—Patrolman William R. Copsey was dismissed from the police force today for being drunk in uniform and taking an unnecessary shot at Dan Anderson, a Negro.

Copsey was suspended last Saturday pending an investigation by Commissioner Hamilton R. Atkinson. Atkinson made it permanent today after hearing testimony.

Anderson said he was driving past a corner where the patrolman was standing and the officer flagged him down. He testified Copsey hit a boy who was riding in Anderson's truck and then swung on the driver with his pistol butt.

Anderson became frightened and ran. The officers fired and wounded him in the cheek.

An examination showed Copsey was under the influence of drink, although he told the commissioner he had but two drinks of beer.

Copsey's lower lip was bitten off last summer by another Negro during a scuffle. The patrolman was exonerated of shooting and killing his assailant.

2 Questioned On Man's Story

ert J. Barrett suddenly announced last Thursday that he believed two policemen "were guilty as hell but I've got to prove it."

The two policemen suspected by Barrett were included in a special lineup staged at police headquarters last Saturday. Rowell failed to identify the men as the assailants.

Believes He Was "Reached"

In view of these circumstances, the statement of the nurse is apparently most significant. Police Chief Barrett told reporters he thought the victim had been reached—persuaded not to identify the assailants.

Additional confirmation that the man who refused treatment at Emergency Hospital after stating he though he had been beaten by police was actually Rowell was garnered yesterday by a reporter.

Miss Marra said she was the only nurse on duty from 11:15 p. m., January 13, to 7:30 a. m., January 13.

No other man came into the emergency room during that time and refused treatment, she said.

Rowell told reporters several times that he drove his own cab from the scene of the beating to Emergency Hospital. He said he went to the emergency room but left without treatment because the nurse asked a number of detailed questions and kept him waiting. He left and later went to Garfield Hospital where he was treated at 6 a. m., January 14.

Thinks That's the Man

Miss Marra was shown a picture of Rowell which appeared in The Washington Post. She said: "I think that's the man."

Then Miss Marra was asked what injuries the man appeared to have. She said she remembered he had an arm injury, and thought he also had head and chest injuries.

Rowell actually suffered a broken left arm, lost three teeth, and had bruised ribs.

Rowell said he was pounced by two men after leaving a Thomas Circle drug store where he purchased headache medicine. Before entering the drug store, he said he saw the two men giving a third man a "going over." The two men accused him of telephoning the Second Precinct Station House before beating him, he said.

Barrett has said that Rowell has had no police record and is not wanted by police.

The amendments will be voted on at the association's next meeting. The 50 members attending voted for a postcard campaign to keep every household in the area advised of civic matters. Melville Spencer, president, presided.

Mrs. Gizycka Gets Tax-Free $400,000

drawn, Mrs. Gizycka probably would not have received that yearly income.

Payment of the $400,000 is to be made through the will's executors, who will receive it in the following manner: $377,500 from the seven Times-Herald executives; $15,000 from Mrs. Evelyn Robert, and $7500 from Mrs. Ann Bowie Smith. Both Mrs. Robert and Mrs. Smith are beneficiaries under the will.

One attorney estimated that to pay Mrs. Gizycka the $400,000 cash, free of heavy Federal and State inheritance and income taxes, will require an actual outlay of $2,500,000.

Future in Trust

Money to defray these taxes would come, if financially possible, from Mrs. Patterson's residuary estate, the principle item of which is one fourth interest in the McCormick-Patterson Trust, which controls the Chicago Tribune, the New York Daily News and other interests.

Out of the same residuary estate would come what is now the Times-Herald executives' $25,000 yearly—which has first call on the residue, and payments to 17 annuitants listed by Mrs. Patterson. The remainder of the residue was to go to charity.

Attorney Roberts said yesterday that it was "out of the question" that anything would be left in the estate for charity payments, because of the way the will was drawn.

Charities that Mrs. Patterson specifically suggested should share in the residuary estate were the Cradle Society of Evanston, Ill., the Spence Chapin Adoption Service of New York, the Illinois Children's Home and Aid Society, the Florence Crittenton Anchorage of Chicago, and an organization "aiding Polish refugee children of Catholic origin."

The settlement agreement provides that if the seven Times-Herald executives, Mrs. Smith and Mrs. Robert cannot make full payment on the $400,000 settlement, they shall give promissory notes to the will's executors for the amount due.

Other Provisions

If there is insufficient money in the estate to pay the required taxes on Mrs. Gizycka's settlement, the Times-Herald bequest, and other specific bequests after the residuary estate is completely exhausted, the settlement provides:

The Times-Herald executives, and Mrs. Smith, Mrs. Robert and Mrs. Gizycka will each pay a pro rata share of this liability, based on proportion of their bequests.

To insure Mrs. Gizycka's share of this tax liability, the executors will retain up to $50,000 of the personal property bequeathed to her.

The settlement also contains authority for the Times-Herald executives to take out life insurance on Mrs. Gizycka, so as to insure them an opportunity to recoup the $25,000 yearly bequest that she transferred to them.

Another provision was for Mrs. Gizycka to obtain certain items of personal interest now at the Dower House estate in Upper Marlboro, Md., where Mrs. Patterson died on July 24, 1948. The Dower House is bequeathed in the will to Mrs. Ann Bowie Smith, together with $25,000 in cash.

Dower House items given to Mrs. Gizycka include "one cradle," which Roberts said was used by Mrs. Gizycka's grandmother, Mrs. Patterson, and Mrs. Gizycka; one spinning wheel; a walnut case spinet, a Mahal rug, an English four-poster bed, a swivel-top card table, and a gold dresser set.

[The Washington Post disclosed in an exclusive story on January 30, two days after a brief announcement that a settlement had been reached in the will fight, that the settlement would include a lump-sum payment to Mrs. Gizycka between $400,000 and $500,000. In a story on Wednesday morning, The Washington Post also disclosed that the settlement probably would include additional furnishings given to Mrs. Gizycka.]

The will itself bequeathed to Mrs. Gizycka an estate at Port Washington, N. Y., real estate in North Dakota, and large amounts of jewelry, furnishings, silverware, portraits, etc.

Mrs. Robert, under the will, receives real estate at 1509, 1511, and 1517-19 Connecticut ave., a valuable set of black pearl earrings and necklace, and a sable scarf.

The 15 Dupont Circle mansion of Mrs. Patterson, bequeathed to the District branch of the American Red Cross, with much of its furnishings, is not disturbed by the settlement agreement, nor are any other of the specific bequests.

Executives named to share in the Times-Herald bequest are Frank C. Waldrop, William C. Shelton, Edmund F. Jewell, Michael W. Flynn, Harry A. Robinson, J. Irving Belt and Mason S. Peters 3d.

Executors of the estate are Shelton, Waldrop and Joseph W. Brooks, New York investment broker.

By direction of the court, the executors yesterday posted bond of $2,500,000 to insure proper conduct of the estate. Court attaches said they believed the bond was the largest ever posted here. With this action, management of the estate can now be turned over to the executors by Riggs National Bank, court-appointed temporary collector.

Bonding companies were the American Security Co. of New York, and the Fidelity & Deposit Co. of Maryland, in equal amounts of $1,250,000.

Present in Court

Mrs. Gizycka was present in District Court yesterday during most of the brief, formal action, but left the courtroom before the session ended.

A statement issued by her attorneys said Mrs. Gizycka "is happy that a settlement has been arrived at and that the will may now be probated without the bitterness and consequent loss to everyone which would have resulted from a prolonged trial."

Her decision to contest the will, the statement said, "was reached with great reluctance."

"She believed that the will did not represent her mother's true desire to fairly provide for her future welfare especially in view of the more favorable provisions for her contained in earlier wills.

"She felt that she owed it to her mother, to herself and to her daughter (Mrs. Ellen Pearson Arnold, born of Mrs. Gizycka's marriage to Columnist Drew Pearson) to inquire into all of the circumstances surrounding the making of the will including the circumstances surrounding the preparation of a new will upon which her mother was engaged shortly prior to her death."

The statement repeated claims of her attorneys that taxes probably would have prevented her getting the $25,000 yearly bequest, and added, "it appeared that taxes would also encroach upon and materially reduce the value of the real and personal property specifically given to Mrs. Gizyaka by her mother. This possibility still remains," said the statement in explaining why $50,000 of her personal property would be withheld to meet possible tax needs.

Mrs. Gizyaka, said the statement, "sought only an opportunity to participate in some way in the making of charitable gifts out of her mother's large estate and to receive an amount which would provide for her own reasonable needs."

The court order ending the will contest found the will valid and legal on all grounds, that it was the last will, that it was not executed through fraud and duress, and that Mrs. Patterson was not of "unsound mind" when she made it.

Witnesses to the will, dated June 21, 1946, and two codicils dated November 7, 1946, and May 20, 1947, were:

A. A. Howard, 3900 Cathedral ave., Times-Herald salesman; George R. Titus, Chevy Chase, Times-Herald promotion manager; Charles C. Lattin, 4613 Cheltenham dr., Times-Herald purchasing agent; William H. Yeatman, Washington attorney, and his brother Francis X. Yeatman, Georgetown University senior, and Archie Robert Lye, 1954 Columbia rd., former butler for Mrs. Patterson.

ing to send Edwards to the gallows on "planted" evidence.

He asserted the confession contained many discrepancies, and attempted to produce evidence to show the events as outlined in the confession could not have happened.

The gist of the confession was that Edwards was almost run down by a car which passed him on a road near his home southeast of Glen Burnie, followed it in anger to a clearing, and got into an argument with the driver.

He said he shot the man, and knocked out the girl, after she screamed, and started running through the woods. He put her back into the car, drove 26 miles to another clearing west of Annapolis, dumped the couple out, shot the girl in the back of the head when she moaned, and returned the car to a spot near the first clearing.

McWilliams claimed police talked Edwards into signing the confession.

The defense attorney declared the evidence has "all the indications of a plant to lead the trail up to Freetown," The small community near Glen Burnie, where Edwards lived.

Miss Kline's father, and a Glen Burnie clergyman, found Mahlan's torn driver's license, McWilliams pointed out, near a plank bridge leading to Freetown. A police sergeant had checked the area earlier, McWilliams stated, and found nothing. There was no dew on the bits of the license.

James C. Morton, jr., State's attorney for Anne Arundel County, argued that the confession and the evidence show clearly that Edwards committed the crime.

He reviewed an FBI laboratory finding that the cartridge found in the second clearing was fired by Edward's gun.

The evidence and arguments were heard by Judges Robert France, Emory H. Niles, and Joseph Sherbow without a jury, the procedure elected by the defense after the case had been movd here from Annapolis.

Cut Up Body Of Man Found by Railroad Tracks

The dismembered body of a man identified as Alex McDougal, 45, of 1818 Central pl., ne., was found last night lying by the railroad tracks, 1500 yards east of the 900 block of New York ave., ne.

Both legs were found some distance from the trunk, and the skull was ripped open, according to Coroner Dr. A. Magruder MacDonald, who pronounced McDougal dead at 10:15 p. m.

The body was found by a Pennsylvania Railroad fireman, H. F. Branican. A burlap bag of coal was found nearby. Identification was made from papers in the dead man's pockets. He was unemployed.

Twelfth Precinct station police said that McDougal had apparently been struck by PRR train 162 which left Union Station at 8:30 p. m. PRR officials said they had examined all trains and found no evidence that they had hit McDougal.

Get The Facts

Police Superintendent Barrett has done the wise thing in deciding to turn over the Rowell case to the United States attorney when the police investigation has been completed. Two policemen are implicated by Major Barrett's own words in the savage beating of James Rowell, a local cab driver. For police to investigate police without outside review would have brought the stigma of impropriety and the suspicion of cover-up. Major Barrett apparently has recovered enough from his earlier tack of hostility toward all inquiries to realize that the good name of the Police Department and the honesty of law enforcement itself are at stake.

A number of circumstances make this far more than an ordinary case of assault, including the possibility of intimidation. Rowell, for example, has represented himself as unable to identify his assailants, despite the fact that a hospital nurse contacted by a man she believes to be Rowell asserts that the injured man told her he thought the attackers were policemen. It may be that the two officers subsequently transferred by Major Barrett are innocent. Their reputations have been smudged, and in any event they deserve a fair hearing. At the same time the community has a right to know the reasons on which Major Barrett based his statement that the two policemen are "guilty as hell" and his belief that one of them was paying Rowell's medical expenses.

It is now the inescapable duty of United States Attorney Fay to bend every effort to get all the facts, using his powers of oath to compel truthful testimony from all persons who may have knowledge of the affair and assuring witnesses of the protection of his office. The case demands especially vigorous action because of its ugly implications as to the caliber of men entrusted with police badges.

Dewey Address

In his Lincoln Day dinner address Governor Dewey vigorously repudiated the idea that the sole duty of an opposition party is opposition. Instead he urged the party to stand firmly behind platform pledges to support a broadened social security program, slum clearance and public housing, farm price support and vigorous protection of the rights of labor. In his opinion, the small but extremely vocal minority group of Republicans who believe in a laissez faire society and "look back wistfully to the miscalled 'good old days' of the nineteenth century" ought to walk out of the party and not try to get elected as Republicans. In brief, Governor Dewey concludes that the party is handicapped by its tolerance of a minority opposed to forward-looking policies which, in his opinion, the "overwhelming majority of all Americans in both parties support."

Speaking as the titular head of the Republican Party, Governor Dewey was concerned primarily with questions of tactics rather than the merits of the liberal program that his party has officially indorsed. He takes for granted that this program meets with the approval of all but a very small percentage of Republicans. What he is pleading for, however, is a firm stand by Republican leaders that will convince the electorate that the party platform is not a meaningless declaration of principles and that the party itself is not a convenient shelter for reactionaries of both sexes.

Some hard-headed politicians may remind him that the Democrats as well as the Republicans are plagued by factionalism. That is, of course, true. There are dissident elements in the Democratic Party that are undoubtedly quite as reactionary as the Republican extremist minority. What is more, it is inevitable. The Democrats have not considered it tactically wise to cast out their reactionaries, nor will the Republicans. As we said in discussing the recent internecine quarrel over the selection of the chairman of the Republican National Committee, the Republican Party as well as the Democratic Party is a "loose working alliance of disparate elements." This makes it necessary to effect compromises in advance of elections, with the result that the electorate eventually chooses not between sharply defined policies, but between sets of compromises. It can be argued, therefore, that the split in the Republican Party to which Governor Dewey attaches such importance is a characteristic feature of our two-party system.

The concluding part of the address was devoted to an attempt to meet objections that the social program outlined in the Republican platform is in essentials no different from that of the Democrats. The effort was not notably successful. For instead of trying to define the permissible limits of state action, Governor Dewey launched into a political tirade, charging the Administration with plotting to overthrow our system of free enterprise. He also implied that waste and incompetence were characteristically Democratic failings and listed them among the "issues" on which there could be no compromise. Both parties, however, are on record as firm believers in the principle of free competition, and there is no convincing evidence that the present Administration is leading us along the road toward socialism or communism just because it is asking for control powers to deal with emergency situations.

As a matter of fact, the great issues that, Governor Dewey asserts, divide Democrats from Republicans appear to be largely the products of an overheated imagination. The programs and policies of the party in power are not a direct, immediate threat to democratic institutions. The real danger lies in the declining influence of an opposition party that has suffered defeat after defeat. If Governor Dewey's stinging remarks put new spirit and new life into his party, he will have made a major contribution to strengthening the two-party system. And this is what constitutes the American people's first line of defense against governmental abuse of power and undue invasion of private rights.

Kiss Of Death

If disclosure of the number of atomic bombs in this country is a good idea, it is worthy of consideration irrespective of what the Russians say about it. The Administration and Congress ought to keep this in mind as they review the latest Soviet demands before the Security Council. For the Russians apparently have seized upon Senator McMahon's suggestion of last week as a part of their new and transparent resolution on disarmament. This resolution, calling for destruction of atomic weapons without effective international control of atomic energy, was succinctly described by U. S. Delegate Austin as "succotash."

Certainly the Russians would like to know how many atomic bombs this country has. The figures might be of some help to them in planning their own military structure. But this is a minor, incidental and totally irrelevant factor in the equation. Secrecy puts American defense at a disadvantage. Even if a few Pentagon planners know the facts, they are not known to Congress, which controls the purse strings. Congress, it seems to us, must have this information in order to appraise military expenditures and provide for a realistic defense. Anything else means voting in the dark. To be sure, information to Congress would become public property. What of that? The effect of the release would be to reassure Americans and friendly nations as well as to serve notice on the Russians that this country has the wherewithal of action. Nothing in history has been more responsible for wars than uncertainty—uncertainty of what the other fellow will do and what he has. The A-bomb is a matter on which the fullest possible information is basic not only to sound public policy but also to the whole concept of strategy.

Unfortunately, there has been a sort of pressure on legislators and the Administration to demonstrate their anticommunism by lining up against anything the Russians favor. This was noticeable during the political campaign when some legislators were confronted with the number of times they had voted on the same side as Representative Vito Marcantonio. Are we going to let the Russians make us intellectual eunuchs? It would be ridiculous to allow such irrational and timorous considerations to govern atomic data. Whether information about the production of atomic bombs should be released is a question to be decided strictly on the basis of how it will affect national security. The fullest security calls for the release of all nontechnical information. Indeed, one might surmise that the Russians hope, by the devious methods of Soviet dialectics, that in calling for the disclosure of such facts they will induce this country to keep them secret and thereby impair its own real defense.

Common Touch

The reaction to the Merci Train during its brief stopover in Washington, leaving its Washington load for display at Woodward & Lothrop's, has been altogether warming. The heart has its language which officialdom cannot express, and this train spoke the language of the heart. One of the stories we heard from the French railroadmen who accompanied the Train de la Reconnaissance was particularly appealing. At some place in southern France the freshly-painted train was viewed by a group of boarding-school students, who asked permission to make an imprint of their fingers on a wet coach. They said they had nothing else to give. Permission was given, and the few smudges, no less than the odds and ends with and without material value which the war veterans and railroad workers had collected from rich and poor alike, tangibly "recognized" American aid. As to how the train came to be called "Merci Train," we are uncertain. Doubtless it was so dubbed en route to America. Before the trip is half begun, the "Merci" (thank you) Train is already being rendered mercy. Mercy—the quality that blesses him that gives and him that takes! The new rendering, accidental as it is, has its own significance, and either merci or mercy is better than gratitude. As the train sped away we like to remember the railroadmen seeing Mount Vernon for the first time. "No castle! George Washington must have been a man of the people," one of them exclaimed.

Silk Threads Vs. Iron Fetters

Sweden's refusal to be party to the North Atlantic Security Pact has become the key fact about the tangle in Scandinavia. Sweden insists on sticking to her neutrality. She would agree to a defense union with her neighbors in Scandinavia, but not one that would be formally related to the Atlantic Pact.

In present circumstances neutrality is hardly a word that any nation can afford to be associated with. In particular Swedish neutrality has a bad, even a sordid, connotation. In the first World War the Swedes waxed fat on their neutrality; in the second, they allowed Nazi soldiers on furlough from Norway transit privileges across Sweden; even in peacetime they have bound much of their trade and industry to Soviet Russia. When the Swedes talk about their neutrality, therefore, they merely remind non-Swedes of these things, as well as make world opinion wonder how anybody, in view both of the present facts of the world situation and of U. N. obligations, can be or stay neutral.

Having said this, however, we feel that the issue presented by the Swedish refusal to join the Atlantic Pact requires a careful review of American policy toward Scandinavia. The decision on Scandinavia will be fateful. It involves finely calculated risks. Here is a case where statesmanship and not strategy should be our master guide. Having failed to bring Sweden into the Pact, should we now press Norway and Denmark to join, and thus break up the intangible but nonetheless real unity of Scandinavia? Doubtless, both Norway and Denmark would respond favorably to any American pressure. They want some arms, have no dollars to pay for them, and would enter the Atlantic Club if the United States insisted that this is the price for military aid. But it is our guess that agreement would not come smoothly from the Norwegian and the Danish peoples. If, at the behest of the strategists, the United States insisted on base rights in Norwegian territory, the Norwegians would certainly raise difficulties, and Communist influence would be strengthened, anyway. The same spur to communism would be felt in Denmark. And two or three more Communist deputies in the Danish Parliament would give the party a foothold in the Rigsdag's foreign relations committee. Thus the entry of Norway and Denmark into the Atlantic Pact might create the very thing we contemplate, viz, increased Communist strength inside Scandinavia, at a time when there has been a marked decline in it. What effect Norwegian and Danish membership in the Atlantic Pact would also have on Soviet pressure from the outside is problematical. But, in view of the 180-mile border that Russia shares with Norway, Moscow doubtless would regard it as a provocative act, as in similar circumstances this country would.

The alternative is that, in view of Sweden's refusal to join the Atlantic Pact, the Scandinavians should be encouraged to grow in unity among themselves. A Scandinavian defense union has been projected, and could be realized if Norway and Denmark would agree with Sweden to keep out of the Atlantic Pact. And something more than that might also be achieved, if the Scandinavians were left alone. Many experts think that economic unity is less feasible in the Low Countries than in Scandinavia, yet the Low Countries are actively working toward economic unity. In Scandinavia there is little difference between the laws of one country and the laws of the other countries. In this and other contexts, notably the sentimental one, a currency and customs union appears to be a practicable goal. Any such development deserves to be welcomed in the United States, since this country's aim is to see the countries of western Europe grow in health and strength.

Strategically, it seems to us, the United States could afford to rely on Scandinavian friendship in time of peace and count upon Scandinavian cooperation in time of war without a formal tie-up. Many things would and could be done under the aegis of an exclusive Scandinavian defense union that would be of benefit to the Atlantic Pact signatories. Even Sweden, aside from her historic Russophobia, could not keep out of involvement in case of a shooting war, for one of the first acts of Soviet Russia at war would obviously be to trench upon Norwegian sovereignty. In that event Sweden would be automatically at war under the terms of a Scandinavian defense union.

Reliance upon such a limited Scandinavian pact outside the all-in-one Atlantic Pact may not appeal to American strategists. They seem to want all or nothing. But, we are convinced, back of rigidity in this respect is the counsel of statesmanship. It seems to us unwise and imprudent when time is more and more avowedly on our side to try to build up the same sort of grand armed coalition in western Europe that Soviet Russia already has developed in eastern Europe. We want friends, not satellites; a strong and interdependent western Europe, not a military outpost of the United States. Secretary Acheson at his press conference yesterday disavowed aggression. But acts will speak louder than words if the Atlantic community is expressed in nothing more than a huge military alliance.

Ferrero, the great Italian historian, has a phrase which should be the American watchword. He writes about silk threads vs. iron fetters as the choices of statesmanship. The contrast is illuminating. In Europe, let us leave the iron fetters to the Cossack, and base our policy on the tightening of the silk threads. In our opinion, the choice would pay off.

Colonialism

Having sometimes disagreed with Mr. Walter Lippmann on international issues, I am only too glad to express my enthusiasm aroused by his February 8 column, in which he replies to Mr. Andre Siegfried's article on colonialism in the Figaro of Paris. Indeed, how the colonial problem will be solved is of the utmost importance at a time when Soviet Russia has transformed formerly free nations of eastern Europe, numbering over 100 million people, into Russian colonies on the European continent.

The mission of democratic America, itself a colony in the past, could not be more convincingly emphasized than in the last paragraph of Mr. Lippman's column:

"Moreover, if the American people ceased to feel as they do that alien rule is in principle wrong and in practice transitory, the spirit which animates their relations to the rest of the world would be radically transformed. They would be then only a very powerful and a very rich Nation, making such arrangements with other powers as for the time being seemed expedient and profitable. Without the inner impulse that comes from the American past there would be no program to reconstruct western Europe and to liberate eastern Europe, but only a series of hard bargains dictated by immediate self-interest."

Misplaced Balkans

In the opening paragraphs of the United Press London dispatch featured on page one of the final edition of The Washington Post of January 25, the "five Balkan states" were identified as "Poland, Czechoslovakia, Hungary, Romania and Bulgaria."

To prevent infection by that newspaper affliction, "cock-sureness," I checked with Webster's Gazeteer to find: "Balkan states, countries of Balkan peninsula: Yugoslavia, Romania, Bulgaria, Albania, Greece and Turkey in Europe."

Substitute For Strikes

In the current discussion concerning strikes against the public welfare, realistically the battle seems to narrow to four or five basic industries, namely coal, steel, railroads, shipping and atomic energy.

If anyone examines the reasons for and the results of the strikes in these key industries in the past, he will see that in an overwhelming majority of the cases there were on the part of the striking unions legitimate economic grievances and because the unions used their only weapon, a large number of these grievances were satisfied.

Certainly no one thinks that the benefits that have accrued to union members, i. e., higher wages, better working conditions, shorter working hours, job security, pension benefits, vacation benefits, etc., would have been theirs if their right to strike for them had been curtailed. These accrued benefits have enabled these union members and their families to enjoy a few of the comforts of this life.

As much as we may rant against John L. Lewis for his seemingly "public be damned" attitude, certainly the widows of the miners killed at Centralia, for example, would not be receiving their pensions if the U. M. W. had not placed welfare fund considerations among the demands asked in a coal contract.

If by law we abridge the rights of these key unions to strike, then also by law we must substitute the ways and means for workers in these industries to have their legitimate economic grievances met. Abridge their right to strike and they no longer are able to bargain on equal footing in collective bargaining agreements.

Certainly strikes in key industries affect the public interest, but just as certainly it is within the scope of that public interest to insure that a large segment of its working population has the means to better the economic lot of themselves and their families and thus to make and satisfying.

Senate Chaplain

J. A. Marr's February 5 letter suggesting that the Senate get its prayers said for it by an American-born minister seems well taken.

But his second suggestion that the Senate save some money by doing its own praying is preposterous. The Democrats wouldn't pray to the Republicans' God—and vice versa. So that's out!

But I do think the Senate could make a nice gesture at this time by installing a Catholic priest or Hebrew rabbi as chaplain for a change. It wouldn't hurt and it would do a lot of good outside. METHODIST.

Segregation Status Quo

It is surprising that the Federation of Citizens Associations should denounce the December report of the National Committee on Segregation in the Nation's Capital. The truth or falsity of the report, in strict logic, should be judged according to the available public evidence.

Judged by this impartial standard, the National Committee's report was substantially true. There does in fact exist today a flagrant denial of civil rights to Negro citizens in Washington. To deny this fact, or to deny a report substantially based on this fact, is to call into question either the intelligence, or integrity, or both, of the present majority group in the Federation.

The Federation, as reported in The Washington Post, has stated that "the solution of the problem will come by cooperation to overcome racial tensions and by a mutual understanding on the part of intelligent persons of both races who are willing to sit down and discuss the situation and the ways and means of improving it."

Yet the fact is that Clifford H. Newell and others of like mind are very active in trying to circumvent the Supreme Court decision against racial real estate covenants by Rube Goldberg suggestions and proposals that are a basic repudiation of the democratic rights of Negro and other citizens in our community.

The Federation is interested only in discussing the racial problem on the basis of the status quo. It is hostile to long overdue changes in social relations that are demanded by our personal integrity and democratic principles.

Cardinal Mindszenty's Trial

It is, in my opinion, a disgrace for any Christian nation (especially one as strong as the United States) or any organization supposedly interested in the welfare of nations (the United Nations) to allow the most alarming procedure in Budapest to continue.

Why have we—who have so long stood for freedom of all sorts (especially religion)—allowed the Communists to gain so much power that we are either afraid or unable to protest to such actions? Do not our leaders realize that by the death or imprisonment of this holy man the people of Hungary have no one to stand for freedom and in the way of Communistic terror?

JOAN LANCASTER.
Rock Point, Md.

When Cardinal Spellman asked the American people on Sunday in his sermon regarding Mindszenty's trial: "Are we, the American people, the tools and fools which the Communists take us for?" I was left somewhat amused. And he asked further: "How long are we free-minded, fair-minded Americans going to allow these same fiendish Communists to drug us with their propaganda and our own apathy? . . . When will all free men raise their voices as one and cry out against Satan-inspired Communist crimes?"

Well, I, for one, am ready to speak out as an American and "to raise my voice." But I want Cardinal Spellman and all others who follow his thinking to know that I not only fear the encroachments of communism as a usurper of religious and civil liberties of America but I fear his and the Roman Catholic interpretation of religious liberty just as much. I do not believe the majority of Americans will be swayed by his emotional appeal to go to war against the Communists to defend his church when he is so clear in his misunderstanding of what religious and civil liberty means to Americans. His church denies liberty to other churches whenever it is in a majority.

NATHANAEL B. HABEL,
Minister, Boykins Baptist Church.
Boykins, Va.

The trial of Cardinal Mindszenty is remarkably reminiscent of the notorious inquisition of the Catholic Church. Now—is turn about fair play or not? Is there arisen an ideology and mythology strong enough to challenge the Roman Catholic Church with its own weapons?

It matters little whether the Cardinal is guilty or not, was tortured or not, becomes a martyr or not. The great issue is whether communism in Hungary and the world can wrench the peoples' souls from the church and weld them into one collective soul. They seem to be making progress in this direction while the church is losing ground.

CARL WICKUM.
Washington.

However deplorable the trial of the Hungarian Roman Catholic Cardinal Mindszenty may be under a nondemocratic system of government, it should serve well to remind Americans that, in spite of its many denials, the Roman Catholic Church is politically ambitious. This is evidenced by the fact that the Cardinal freely admitted (scientific sources have declared no "will-destroying" drug, as claimed by the Catholic press, is known to exist) to participation in a plot to restore the Hapsburgs to the throne of Hungary and that he, Cardinal Mindszenty, planned to occupy the throne himself "temporarily."

New Needs In Employes

By Malvina Lindsay

Buyers' Market Omens

NO ONE is surprised at the widespread lament of businessmen that no Alger boys or girls can be hired. But more serious is the growing concern among educators, vocational counselors and personnel experts over the irresponsible and grandiose work attitudes of some employes, especially younger ones.

With a buyers' market developing on many fronts, and unemployment rising, this portends some hard drops to earth for those who got their work initiation in the easy days when there was a war on or a war just over. It also portends a workaday world for which children will need to be prepared psychologically as well as vocationally.

Much talk of this situation developed at a recent regional conference of the National Vocational Guidance Association. Some of the business executives who were speakers complained that work attitudes were not being taught youth—that all the emphasis was on technological or professional skills, and that there was a general lack of enthusiastic willingness to work among the newer employes.

Dr. Robert Hoppock, professor of education at New York University, admitted that the accusations generally were valid and that "not many people want to work today." He said the schools had a responsibility to teach children how to get and hold jobs, and to give them a general sense of their relation to their employers and to industry.

THE QUESTION of what to do about modern youth's determination to start at the top also was raised recently by Roland L. Stratford, director of the counseling and employment service of the Children's Aid Society of New York. Many young persons suffer shock and disillusionment early in their working careers, he said, because of fantastic ideas about quick advancement. However, after going through this adjustment, they usually dig in and work up, he believes.

Employment bureaus are now finding employers more interested in personality, adaptability, and adjustment to life of the job applicant than formerly, since highly neurotic or emotionally unstable persons, no matter how competent technically, can be great liabilities in offices and factories. The shortage of help in war and postwar years, especially of secretarial and clerical workers, has proved a deterrent to Alger-like ambition and adjustability in the office field—though it also has helped bring about a salutary reform of many over-demanding bosses.

HOWEVER, the whole problem of "soft youth" in the labor field goes deeper than the war boom. Some educators blame it largely on overindulgence of children—a reaction that followed the stern patriarchal discipline of the nineteenth and early twentieth centuries. The decrease in family size, the increase of only children, the shift from rural to city life, the advance of technology—all these have encouraged parents in anxious overprotection of children, and also have prevented children getting early work training in the home. Also ideals of easy financial success have increasingly influenced youth as emphasis on material luxuries has grown.

While schools can do much to prepare children more realistically for their working lives, and make these lesser gulfs to cross after hgh school or even college, the main training must take place in the home. One difficulty in this that parents face is the disappearance of farm chores that once were such an aid in developing responsibility in children.

But authorities on work habits point out that plenty of chores can be produced, even in the most modern city home, if parents put their minds to it. Children can be given a sense of responsibility and participation in family life, even if it means putting boys to table-setting and bed-making. Parents can also shape their children's attitudes toward money, punctuality, attention to detail, and the other more subtle phases of wage earning that now are reported neglected.

Dollar Gold Content

The article on the 59-cent dollar by Sigrid Arne in the current events section of The Washington Post of February 6 is an example of careless and inaccurate writing. Miss Arne several times mentions the reduction of the gold content of the dollar from 100 cents' worth to 59.05 cents' worth. If Miss Arne had taken the trouble to consult any of the standard textbooks on money and banking, she would have learned that the proper figure was 59.06 rather than 59.05. Further she would have discovered that a more accurate description of the devaluation of the dollar would have stated that Mr. Roosevelt reduced its gold content to 59.06 per cent of the former amount.

The gold content of the new dollar was fixed at 15.21 grains of 9/10 fine gold in contrast to the old weight of 25.8 grains. At the new price of $35 per ounce for gold, the gold content of the devalued dollar was worth $1 rather than the 59 cents Miss Arne mentions. This valuation was made effective by the nationalization of gold by the Government and the elimination of a free market by the anti-hoarding restriction, the licensing requirements, etc.

Today and Tomorrow

By Walter Lippmann

A Very Serious Business

Lippmann

THE Scandinavian crisis, which has brought the Norwegian Foreign Minister, Mr. Lange, to Washington, is a very serious business. If it is not handled with foresight and firmness, there is reason to think that it will develop into something as dangerous, as difficult, and as costly as Berlin.

For here once more inexperienced and overzealous officials have, quite unnecessarily and in disregard of the warnings that were given to them privately by responsible men at least three months ago, precipitated a showdown before anyone is ready to deal with it.

WHILE the North Atlantic Security Pact was still a paper project—before there was even an agreed draft of the treaty—before it had been shown even to the leaders of the Senate, much less to the American people,—before anything definite had even been planned as to how the military obligations were to be financed and administered, these thoughtless officials began exerting pressure on the Scandinavian countries to come forward and announce that they wished to join.

One would think that organizing a security pact was like collecting testimonials for an advertising campaign. For what purpose was served by asking these small and dangerously exposed countries to enter a military arrangement which the United States itself had not yet entered? Why, it would be interesting to know, should the Norwegian, Danish, and Swedish parliaments be asked, or expected, to say they approve a treaty with us which has not yet even been published in this country, much less debated and approved by the Senate?

THE RESULT of this action on the part of our officials has been to expose the Scandinavians to all the risks of membership in the Atlantic Pact without affording them any of the additional security which this pact may eventually provide. For, unlike ourselves or any of the other original members, they have an open military frontier with the Soviet Union. The moment any one of them announced, or even indicated, an intention to join, the whole of Scandinavia and also Finland incurred all the liabilities of membership.

Now Mr. Lange is in Washington asking when and how we shall reinsure his country, when and how we shall meet the moral commitment which is ours because of the pressure we have exerted on Scandinavia. . . . How much wiser it would have been to let well enough alone, do the first things first, and to advise our Norwegian friends not to jump the gun, but to wait and see!

THE BASIC error which we have made in Scandinavia is similar to that which we made last spring in regard to Germany and Berlin. It is the result of a failure to realize the difference between acting in areas within the reach of the Red army and in areas beyond its reach.

Thus against the Marshall Plan, and even against the original North Atlantic Security Pact, the Soviets could use only propaganda and at worst their fifth column. They could not interfere with military force because that would have been an overt act of war. But against the decision to set up a German government with its capital at Frankfurt and to introduce a western Germany currency into Berlin, they could react with military measures—in themselves quite serious, yet short of war.

WHEN I was in Berlin I admired, as all must who have seen it and have ridden on it, the airlift. But I also had a look at the Russian blockade. At the point where I saw it, a main highway into Berlin, it consisted of a wooden pole, painted red and white, which blocked the highway, a sentry box, one Russian soldier with a rifle, and two German policemen. Out of sight, but no doubt near at hand and on call, there were undoubtedly some Russian troops lounging in their barracks. The contrast between this cheap and effortless device and the great four-engined C-54s carrying coal and carrots and dried potatoes day and night was one which every diplomat would do well to ponder.

For if this Scandinavian crisis is not resolved wisely, the same kind of thing is likely to develop there. Some Russian troops will move through Finland (which is now being attacked by the Soviet propaganda) to the borders of Sweden and Norway. The Swedes and Norwegians will then have to mobilize some troops and move them to their frontiers. Frantic calls will be issued for American help, and some equivalent of the airlift will hastily have to be improvised.

HAVING gotten over half our military transport planes locked up in the Berlin operation, we shall be faced with the need to lock up some other part of our available military reserves in Scandinavia. The Russians will have imposed a heavy military and economic and emotional strain on Scandinavia, and on us a most difficult task, at virtually no cost to themselves.

For their soldiers can sit down on the Swedish and Norwegian frontiers with no more trouble, and at no more risk, than wherever it is that they are sitting today. But we shall be compelled to act with furious energy just to restore the balance which has been upset.

Bill Restoring Reciprocal Trade Law Passes House, 319 to 69

By Mary Spargo
Post Reporter

In its first clear-cut victory on a major campaign issue the Administration yesterday drove through the House by an overwhelming vote a measure repealing the 1948 Republican tariff act and restoring in full the old reciprocal trade agreements law.

The measure now goes to the Senate.

The actual vote by which the House tossed out the GOP-sponsored tariff act and returned tariff bargaining powers to the President was 319 to 69. Many Republicans joined the Democrats in approving the measure after they lost a motion to recommit the bill with instructions to amend it. Even House Minority Leader Joseph W. Martin, Jr., voted for the Administration-sought measure on the final roll call.

It was on the motion to send the bill back to committee that the real party line vote came. The Republicans lost 241 to 151.

The GOP had asked the House to send the measure back with instructions to amend it so that the Federal Tariff Commission would determine "peril points" below which American tariffs could not be cut without damaging American industry.

The House-passed bill repeals outright the present GOP-sponsored trade agreements law due to expire June 30, and it restores the program first developed by former Secretary of State Cordell Hull to its original form and continues it until June 12, 1951.

In requesting the action the President said the GOP bill hobbled trade pact negotiations. Its repeal, he declared, is needed to promote commerce and world peace. He had hammered away during the campaign at the GOP "high tariff" program and carried the issue right into the district of Republican Representative Bertrand W. Gearhart of California, chairman of the subcommittee which drafted the GOP law. Gearhart was defeated.

If the Senate, as expected, follows House action and restores the old reciprocal trade law the President will again have authority to cut American tariffs 50 per cent below January 1, 1945, levels in trade pacts with nations that agree to reduce their trade barriers.

One after another the triumphant House Administration forces beat down a series of Republican amendments. One would have required the Tariff Commission to set peril points below which tariffs could not be cut without hurting American industries. Another would have required that an "escape clause" be written into all trade agreements, permitting any pacts to be reopenend for reconsideration of a specific duty that has been cut so low that an American industry is being injured. A third, defeated by voice vote, would have given Congress a veto power over any trade treaty.

An amendment, introduced by Representative Wayne L. Hays (D., Ohio), prohibiting operation of any trade agreement with any European country not cooperating in the European Recovery Program was defeated 147 to 77. This was aimed specifically at abrogating the agreement with Czechoslovakia.

Maryland Papers Ruled Free to Run D. C. Liquor Ads

Annapolis, Md., Feb. 9 (AP).—Judge Benjamin Michaelson has ruled there is no State law preventing a Maryland newspaper from accepting liquor advertisements from a Washington, D. C., dealer.

The judge declined to grant an injunction restraining the Capital-Gazette Press, Inc., daily paper published here, from accepting such ads.

The injunction had been asked last month by Albert Block as a taxpayer. His wife is a licensed retail liquor dealer here.

Maryland law limits residents to purchase of two quarts of liquor a month from outside the State.

But Michaelson, in sustaining the newspaper's demurrer, said he found no local or State law concerning liquor advertisements.

"Having failed to enact such a statute," the judge said, "the General Assembly of Maryland apparently intended it to be the policy of the State of Maryland not to prohibit such advertising."

Rent Law Held Defense Need

Congress was informed yesterday that President Truman wants the power to bring new areas under rent control because of an impending spread of defense activity.

Tighe E. Woods, Housing Expediter, told the House Banking Committee the President's request for the authority "is predicated on anticipation of new defense efforts."

Woods also testified:

1. The Administration wants a two-year extension of rent control beyond March 31 because it does not expect the housing shortage to end before the two years are up.

2. It is asking for new powers to fine and jail landlords who "willfully or flagrantly" violate rent laws because there is a small group of landlords "who have no regard for law and we feel the only thing they will listen to is the threat of criminal sanctions."

3. Rents have risen "shockingly" on certain housing accommodations removed from controls by Congress in the last two years. Some of these rents, Woods said, rose an average of 89 per cent.

Bicycle Firms Accused Of Trade Restraint

The Government yesterday issued complaints charging restraint of trade against two trade associations, 16 manufacturers and 29 jobbers in the bicycle industry.

The Federal Trade Commission asserted that the firms and individuals "pursued a common and concerted, planned course (to) suppress and eliminate competition" in the sale of bicycles and equipment.

All those named are members of the two trade associations, the Cycle Jobbers Association of America, Inc., and the Cycle Parts and Accessories Association, both of New York City.

Washington Calling

By Marquis Childs

Strikes And Government Power

IN A SMALL, hot, crowded room the waspish voices go on as the witness sits penned in by close-pressed rows of spectators. Outside is a long file of citizens waiting patiently for a seat to be vacant.

Childs

This is the hearing on the new labor legislation that will come out of the Eighty-first Congress. It vitally affects every citizen, no matter what his calling or trade or lack of one, since this whole matter of umpiring the process of collective bargaining is directly related to the role Government plays in our lives.

Yet it sometimes seems that Congress is going about finding a reasonable solution in the most backhanded sort of way. Political partisanship has produced quarrels and name-calling. The Republican minority accuses the Democratic majority of trying to shut off the hearings in response to the dictate of the CIO.

That is one reason for the tension in the crowded courtroom. The Republicans complain, and with considerable reason, that cutting off the hearings arbitrarily will prevent a full analysis of the whole issue.

Yet, in spite of the unhappy approach, the final legislation is likely to represent a fair balance between freedom of action and essential regulation. The balance of power rests, fortunately, with two men—Senator Wayne Morse of Oregon and Senator Irving Ives of New York.

AS THEY did during the long debate leading to enactment of the Taft-Hartley Act, Senators Morse and Ives are working closely together. They shortly may put in a complete new measure as a substitute for the Administration bill. If they do not follow this strategy, they will offer individual substitute amendments for each Administration provision.

Democratic leaders will have to think a long time before rejecting the Morse-Ives compromise. In order to counter the votes of Southern Democrats certain to favor the sterner Taft-Hartley requirements, the Democrats must enlist the middle-ground Republicans who are likely to be with Senators Morse and Ives.

Both Morse and Ives are opposed to giving the Federal courts power to enjoin a union from calling a strike, as can be done now under the Taft-Hartley Act. They both feel strongly that this violates a fundamental right.

Senator Ives favors a measure patterned after the Railway Labor Act, with a provision for a fact-finding board to look into the causes of a dispute. During a specified period, while the board was reaching its conclusion, both sides to the dispute would refrain from any action.

In Senator Ives' view much of the debate over the powers of the President to seek an injunction in the event of a national emergency produced by a strike is purely academic. As he sensibly points out, such an emergency calls almost inevitably for action by Congress.

WHAT happened in the emergency produced by the railway strike of May, 1946, is a good example. As the movement of goods and supplies slowed to a standstill, President Truman rushed up to Capitol Hill to ask for emergency powers so sweeping that many, and particularly the heads of railway labor, were shocked and angered. Before Congress could act, the strike was called off.

Senator Robert A. Taft argues that the disputed law, which bears his name, makes it possible through the power of injunction to prevent a Nation-wide strike and thereby prevent the emergency. This was sharply challenged by Senator Morse during the hearings.

The latter pointed out that the coal strike continued for eight days after the injunction was issued in Washington. John L. Lewis and the United Mine Workers were fined. But no one went to jail and, therefore, the injunction process in its ultimate application was not tested.

Senator Taft himself has cooled off somewhat on the injunction as used to stop a strike. He may vote against it in the final showdown. But he is still in favor of allowing the courts to enjoin a union that violates the law against jurisdictional strikes and secondary boycotts.

At this point Senator Taft and the Morse-Ives combination are likely to part company. Senators Morse and Ives believe that the ban on jurisdictional strikes and secondary boycotts should be carefully spelled out in the law, which would provide for restraining action by the National Labor Relations Board. Only when a union defied the board would the courts have the power to step in.

In other words, these two reasonable men believe that the power of Government to force a settlement should be the ultimate and last resort. Their goal is to keep collective bargaining as free as possible from the heavy hand of Government interference.

Senator Cain's Wife Files Suit for Divorce

Tacoma, Wash., Feb. 9 (AP).—Mrs. Harry P. Cain, wife of U. S. Senator Cain (R, Wash.), filed suit for divorce today.

Mrs. Cain charged "burdensome home life" and "indifferent attitude" in her suit to end their marriage of 15 years.

Under separate agreement, the Senator will pay $600 monthly for the support of Mrs. Cain and care and maintenance of the children, Harry P. Cain, Jr., 11, and Marlyce Lenore, 5.

1949 European Aid Crucial, Hoffman Tells Senate Group

Paul G. Hoffman, Economic Cooperation Administrator, told Congress yesterday he would rather pay more taxes than see funds for European recovery cut from the $5,580,000,000 asked by the Administration.

Testifying before the Senate Foreign Relations Committee, Hoffman said the coming year would be "very crucial" in the economic affairs of Europe. He added that "the American people have such a stake in European recovery that the minimum we are asking would be a good investment."

As to German Economy

In answer to a question by Senator Vandenberg (R., Mich.), he said German economy "certainly" could be recreated without rebuilding its war potential. Recovery of western Germany, he added, was essential to the economic health of all Europe.

The United States, Hoffman declared, must "hit hard" in the period ahead or "difficulties are going to get greater." In that event, he explained, the program probably would cost even more than now contemplated.

Hoffman's statement about increased taxes was in answer to a question by Senator George (D., Ga.), chairman of the Finance Committee. But Congress, he said, should "challenge us on every dollar we ask for."

Appropriation Tenures

The 5½ billion dollars requested by Hoffman included $4,280,000,000 for the second 15 months of economic aid to Europe beginning July 1, and $1,150,000,000 to carry over from April 3, when current spending authority ends. An additional 150 million dollars would go for long-range contracts to be paid for next year.

Hoffman reassured committee members who suggested that countries being aided were not carrying their share of the tax burden, and that the incentive toward political unity might be destroyed. On the latter point he said:

"I think there has been more progress toward unification of Europe in the last 10 months than in any similar period in history. I think ECA is at least partly responsible."

For the second year of ECA operations, Hoffman gave "highly tentative" figures showing Great Britain would receive 940 million dollars plus a "carryover" of $319,900,000; France would get 875 million and a $257,400,000 carryover; Italy 555 million and a $132,800,000 carryover. Portugal, he said, would receive its first allotment, amounting to 10 million dollars.

National Film Is Granulated

By Richard L. Coe

"THE SUN COMES UP," which yesterday set the National off on its "grind" policy, is that sort of sugary hokum about which it is foolish to be unpleasant.

Granted, if I'd just dined off Grandma's tender right leg, I might be rather bitter about this innocuous little film which has been closely tailored for the highly specialized arts of Jeanette MacDonald, Claude Jarman, jr., and Lassie.

But since Grandma is a nice sort and I'm mad about little children so long as I don't have to spend more than a half-hour at a time with them, I'll have to admit there are some gentle souls who'll be tenderly regaled by this candied yam from Leo the Lion.

"Hokum," in case you're not up on the word, is theatrical guff for sure-fire stock situations considered good for a laugh or a heart throb. This "The Sun Comes Up" has, up to its ultimate Technicolored pink.

Miss MacDonald, not improved as an actress, plays a great concert soprano whose loss of her husband during the war propels her into retirement with her 12-year-old son. Realizing he cannot live for her alone, she returns to the stage only to see her son killed before her eyes as they leave the theater. He runs across the street in front of a truck to greet his beloved dog, Lassie.

It takes the singer a long while to get over this latest shock and she retires to a small cottage in what I took to be the Great Smoky Mountains. Here she's helped in adapting her city ways to country living by the neighborhood general storeman, Percy Kilbride, and by a youngster from a nearby orphanage, Claude Jarman, jr., who takes a liking to Lassie. It takes a case of flu for the boy and his near death in the orphanage fire to make her realize how much his affection means to her.

Percy Kilbride's Comedy

Now I'm not denying that this story by Marjorie Kinnan Rawlings is appealing, but the fact remains it is hokum because you can't believe that the singer would behave the way she does. It would be simple enough for her to ask a few questions about the boy, but that would have cut the yarn off in the middle. She is behaving not as an adult woman would behave but as a movie puppet would behave, a very different thing.

The cast is perfectly adequate, though Miss MacDonald is too sugary a dish for me. Jarman is certainly a nice youngster and he makes some mountain talk sound fairly palatable. There's a cagey comedy performance from Percy Kilbride, that fellow who's raised shrewd bumpkin roles to a highly personalized act.

The National also has a short spoof on travelogues by Vera Vague that is one of the most foolish and inept shorts I've ever seen. Considering the abysmal quality of short subjects in general, this is quite a mouthful.

ON MET STAGE—Forrest Tucker, once a Washington schoolboy, comes back to town today for some appearances on the stage of the Metropolitan Theater, where his latest picture, "The Plunderers," is the feature. This one, about the Old West, also features Rod Cameron and Ilona Massey. Tucker's stage appearances are for today only

'Legit' Coming Back to Area

A company of Equity players will bring back the professional legitimate theater to the Washington area sometime around March 1 at the Arcade Theater in Hyattsville, Md.

Guy Madison, darling of the movie fan magazine, will be the first guest star, playing "John Loves Mary" under a program which the theater's operator describes as "frankly commercial."

Wheelhorse of the venture is Dean Goodman, previously identified with summer theaters in the North. Goodman stresses the fact that he's not entering the Washington theater picture as either a social reformer or a longhair impresario. His primary effort, he says, will be to make the stock company a going concern financially.

There will be no color bar, however. Anyone with the price of a ticket and not drunk or disorderly, will be welcomed at the Arcade, Goodman reports.

At Goodman's side for his announcement yesterday was Erin O'Brien-Moore, noted star of the legitimate theater and a likely guest star for one of the Arcade's attractions. This is likely to be "The Hasty Heart," the West Coast company of which she headed for its 15-week run.

As a member of the Actors' Equity Council, Miss O'Brien-Moore stressed her joy and that of Equity that at least a start has been made in returning "live" theater to the National Capital.

Goodman's company will be known as the National Repertory Co., Inc., and plans on employing eight resident Equity players, filling out other roles with guest star and feature players.

The Arcade seats 498. The stage has been enlarged to 22 feet in depth and is 30 feet wide. Dressing rooms have been added to the onetime movie theater, which has been closed for several years.

The plan is to offer plays for runs of one week, with possibility of holdovers for top money-makers. Runs will open Tuesday nights and run through the following Sunday with Saturday and Sunday matinees, following the plan of the Olney summer theater. Richard Skinner, manager of the Olney, is reported to have been helpful to the new group and is said not to be averse to possible summer competition.

At the Pix

Fine Color and Music Make Russian Movie Worth While

By Orval Hopkins

THE Russians, who would like you to know that they invented the telephone and the incandescent lamp, must also have originated color motion pictures, if a beautiful film called "Symphony of Life," now at the Pix Theater, is a true example of their work.

Armed with top secret instructions to reconnoiter, and keeping a furtive if baleful eye out for J. Parnell Thomas, I repaired to the Pix for an official view. The experience was rewarding, as I believe they say in critical circles loftier than mine.

The story is about a young piano player, his left hand injured in the war, who returns to find another key-thumper trying to close in on his girl, a yellow-haired lady named Natasha. Fearing that he never could equal his rival's dexterity at the piano and that therefore the girl would be lost to him, Andrei runs off to his native Siberia. There, having acquired an accordion en route, he becomes something of a local sensation, singing and playing at an inn.

Up Pops Natasha

Now who should show up at the inn, bound for, of all places, America (anyway that's what the English titles said), but Natasha and hated rival. She is pursuaded by a beery truck driver that Andrei has eyes only for Nastenka, a dimpled young waitress at the inn. Natasha goes away. So does Andrei. He retreats further into Siberia, where he is impelled to write a great tone poem, or something, about what a great big wonderful, mysterious place Siberia is. This is apparently an immediate hit with the Kremlin guard, for it is played triumphantly in Moscow. The lovers are thereupon united and head back to Siberia.

This rather weary tale is made palatable by the most beautiful color work I have seen—wonderful shots of the forests and wheatfields—by an appealing musical score based on Russian folk songs, and by some remarkable facial studies of Soviet soldiers and peasant groups. These, as Andrei says, are the faces of the people "who bravely defended Stalingrad and Moscow." The question, of course, is, did they so defend because Stalin told them to or because it was counseled by the hills, the rivers and the endless steppes. (Second hard question: What are the h., the r., and the e. s. counseling today?)

Propaganda Piece

The music is not strictly the province of an old second baseman, but the folk songs had at once a hearty abandon and a simple beauty that I found most comforting. Andrei's big tone poem, which is supposed to bring the film to a climax, is immediately recognizable as a great propaganda piece and one's interest, consequently, keeps wavering seriously while the work runs its stirring course.

Aside from this haymaker, I could detect no steady theme of propaganda such as might have been expected. You get, to be sure, liberal doses of devices like the picture of a man I took to be Lenin on the wall behind Andrei as he sings his songs. Also, a photograph of Stalin occupies the place on Andrei's dresser which should, it seemed to me, have been assigned to one of Natasha. A number of two-sheet posters on the walls proclaimed, I have no doubt, that everything is hotsy-totsky in Russia. When the people sang their rousing songs, they may have been shouting "Joe's all right! Who's all right? Joe!" for all I know. But as for an underlying, propagandic thread—something like "this could happen only in our great Russia"—there is none.

The acting is mostly so-so. Vladimir Druzhnikov, who plays Andrei, is a little too vehement, and Marina Ladinina, as Natasha, seems completely undisturbed at all times. The scene I liked best was the one on a canal boat in which Andrei acquires the accordion. The color, the faces and the music are all in this one.

Taking Pictures

Properly Set Focus Vital for Clearness

By Ollie Atkins

UNLESS your focus is set properly and your hand is steady your pictures will be fuzzy so today let's discuss this problem in the interest of sharper focus and snappy clearness in our pictures.

Of course, the object is to make no mistakes if you expect good pictures. Because camera movement and out-of-focus negatives are two main causes for poor amateur pictures, we shall review the proper practice and principles involved to assist you in your own picture making.

Your camera must be absolutely steady during the instant of exposure. In most cases the home picture will be made at exposures ranging from 1-25th to 1-100th seconds exposure. To some snapshooters the higher speed may sound fast but let me assure you that even 1-1000th part of a second is not fast if your camera is not held firmly during the exposure.

Pictures blurred because of camera movement are often confused with negatives made out of focus. Indeed, in some cases it is difficult to tell which cause is at fault. The best rule is that when camera movement has ruined your film everything is blurred from close foreground to distant objects.

Many inexpensive cameras have such a crude shutter tripper that it is most difficult to make an exposture without joggling the camera. If the tripper mechanism on your camera works hard it simply means you must be especially steady when making the exposure.

Hold a pencil 6-inches in front of your eyes. Look at it and notice every detail is crystal clear to your eyes. While keeping the eyes focused on the pencil notice the objects on the wall across the room—they are out of focus and blurred. You can see what they are but there is no comparison between their detail sharpness and the pencil's. By moving the focus of your eyes from the pencil to the wall and back to the pencil you can actually feel and see that the human eye focuses just as you must adjust your camera's lens for sharp pictures.

Just what to focus the lens on is sometimes a problem for the beginner. My advice is to concentrate your sharpest focus on the object of greatest interest in the photoraph. With people, especially in portraits, this is almost always the eyes. Focus on distant farm lands or mountains for scenery. It would be the point of most damage on the tangled cars in an automobile wreck.

Box cameras and many folding cameras have fixed focus. This means they get everything more-or-less clear from about 12 feet to infinity distance. Naturally if you make a three foot shot of a squirrel your picture will be very much out of focus. If you try to picture the same squirrel at 12 feet the animal will be so small on the negative you cannot see it. This means your camera has definite limitations as to what it can picture. Keep the particular limitation well in mind and make sharper, clearer pictures by not shooting objects closer than your camera will focus.

A lecture on negative development and print quality will be the subject discussed at the Photocraft Club at 8 tonight in the Y. M. C. A., 1816 12th st. nw.

New York Times Photographer George Tames, stationed here in Washington, is boasting an eight-page layout of some 20 of his best pictures in the current edition of The Camera magazine George has also been invited to speak at the Kent State University "Short Courses in News Photography" at Kent, Ohio, next month.

Being reestablished at the National School of Photography in Silver Spring is a training course for beginners and amateurs which has been crowded out for the past two years by heavy veteran enrollment. The course will embrace two nights a week for 14 weeks.

Food Price Break Halted

86 million less than a year ago. Commercial stocks were 471 million — about 100 million bushels more. That indicated, Brannan pointed out, that the break in the market was not affecting farmers as much as commercial operators. He said most of the grain on the farms was protected by Government loans at prices somewhat above current market prices.

Suggests Market Closing

4. Chairman Elmer Thomas (D., Okla.) suggested the drastic step of closing commodity markets until prices are stablized. He asked Production and Administration Administrator Ralph S. Trigg at an open hearing in the morning if Secretary Brannan had authority to close the markets. Just before noon, Thomas announced that the committee secretary had been told by Commodity Exchange Authority head, Joseph M. Mehl, that such authority existed, but only after a hearing had disclosed that the markets had violated the Commodity Exchange Act.

5. Brannan announced that loans on corn in proper farm storage at $1.44 a bushel will be available until June 30. This was definitely designed to halt sales of corn on the open markets, where prices hit $1.11 Tuesday.

Sees Higher Meat Prices

Brannan predicted "some upward adjustment in livestock prices. "Meat supplies for the first three quarters of this year certainly will be no greater than for the same period last year," he said.

He ascribed Tuesday's grain market break to: (1) rumors that the Government had withdrawn from the wheat market, which he said were untrue; (2) reports that high Government requirements were excluding some corn from the loan program—which he also termed fallacious; (3) dumping by country elevators of wheat that they hadn't protected against price drops by "hedging," and (4) short selling—which is now under probe.

The Senate committee, which had met to investigate the purchase by Great Britain of Canadian wheat and meats with Marshall Plan funds furnished by the United States, turned its thoughts almost at once to the market break.

Admits Purchases in Canada

It voted promptly to call upon Brannan to halt the crash. In the meantime it turned its attention to Dr. Dennis A. FitzGerald, food director of the Economic Coperation Administration.

FitzGerald admitted Canadian wheat had been bought with ECA funds—about 150 million bushels. But, he added, it was because (1) there weren't enough shipping facilities available to export more wheat from this country, (2) Great Britain could buy wheat cheaper in Canada than here because of the Canadian-British wheat purchase agreement, and (3) if Great Britain hadn't bought the wheat, other nations, such as Belgium, would have bought it.

Charge Violation of Law

Senators James P. Kem (R., Mo.), Allen J. Ellender (D., La.) and Edward J. Thye (R., Minn.) declared that by permitting the purchase ECA officials violated the ECA law, which requires that no commodities be purchased with ECA funds in other countries at less than they can be bought in the United States. All insisted that if the 150 million bushels had been bought here the recent market break could have been avoided.

Ellender also criticized the British purchase of Canadian meat, and demanded to know why the money hadn't been spent for American meat or for canned meat from the foot-and-mouth disease territory of Mexico. Under the United States-Mexican agreement for the foot-and-mouth disease eradication, this country supports the price of canned meat from Mexico. However, American laws forbid its sale in this country because of danger from the disease.

Like Canadian Bacon Best

FitzGerald replied that the British meat purchases were mainly bacon—that they preferred Canadian bacon.

"Why, under the law, can't you force the United Kingdom to take Mexican canned meat," Ellender demanded.

FitzGerald questioned any "policy to force a nation to take something it is not prepared to accept."

"The whole thing is done to keep them alive, isn't it?" Ellender demanded. FitzGerald assured him that the danger of starvation in Europe is now a thing of the past. He remarked:

"If Congress thinks that ERP should be other than a recovery program, then Congress should tell us."

In his statement about Government purchases, Brannan said that CCC expects to export the enormous total of 18 million long tons of all grains this year. This compares with 15 million last year—an all-time, all-world record, and one that, when made, was not expected to be exceeded in generations.

Meantime, before another committee, the Joint Committee on the Economic Report, Leon Keyserling, of the President's Council of Economic Advisers, said there is "nothing new, nothing surprising, although much that is disturbing" in the fall of food and commodity prices.

He said the drop is "in the very nature of our economy" even at a time when industrial prices are standing still or rising. In agriculture, he said, there is a relatively rapid reflection of prices in the operation of supply and demand. But in the area of industrial production, he said, there are relatively rigid "monopoly" prices that could continue to rise.

U. N. Reports Price Drop In Many Countries

Lake Success, Feb. 9 (AP).—The U. N. said tonight wholesale prices began to drop in many countries at the end of 1948.

The trend was shown in the United Nations monthly bulletin of statistics.

Over-Counter Dealers Plan Rivalry Study

By S. Oliver Goodman

The National Association of Securities Dealers, Inc., will appoint a committee of five members to undertake a study of the over-the-counter market bearing upon competition with the listed securities exchanges, it was announced yesterday by Wallace H. Fulton, executive director in Washington.

A report of the findings and recommendations of the committee is to be made to the board of governors by January, 1950. The committee and study are the outgrowth of a resolution offered to the board of governors by Philip L. Garret of Gammack & Co., New York, which stated that it is "a duty of the NASD to take all practicable steps to promote the interests of the over-the-counter dealers."

While the board of governors did not specifically detail the field of study to be undertaken by the committee, Garret in proposing its creation offered these comments bearing upon the possible fields for the survey:

"Is it true that public prejudice against over-the-counter securities is strong and increasing? Do the efforts of the Stock Exchange and Curb to promote listed business exceed the bounds of legitimate competition? Are listed markets superior in quality, other things being equal, to over-the-counter markets?

"The committee might also explore with representatives of the Stock Exchange and Curb the possibility of a cooperative effort to promote the ownership of securities rather than the narrower campaign to aggrandize one segment of our business at the expense of another."

MEETINGS: Washington members and branch managers of New York Stock Exchange firms will hear Emil Schram, president of the Big Board, outline the exchange's 1949 advertising program at a gathering today in the Metropolitan Club, starting at 3:30 p.m. . . . Dr. Elmer L. Kayser, George Washington University dean of men, will address the auditors section of the District Bankers Association at a meeting tonight in the Burlington Hotel.

ODD LOTS: Socony-Vacuum Oil yesterday put into effect price cuts in home heating oils and kerosene in the New York metropolitan area . . . A. E. Staley Manufacturing Co. listed price cuts of 25 cents a 100 pounds for all bulk starch and sirup products, reflecting lower corn prices . . . New York Central Railroad is laying off for indefinite periods some 3,100 car and locomotive repair workers and maintenance of way employes . . . Acme Steel Co. and Glidden & Dauch Paper Co. directors have approved plans for a two-for-one stock splitup . . . ICC has authorized the Lehigh Valley Railroad Co. to effect a general readjustment of its outstanding bond obligations . . . Electric power production for week ended Saturday increased 6.8 per cent over same 1948 week.

UNIT SOLD: Hilton Hotels Corp., which owns controlling interest in the Mayflower here, has sold the Biltmore Hotel in Palm Beach, Fla., for "approximately two million dollars." Purchaser of the 537-room building is the West India Fruit & Steamship Co. C. N. Hilton said the sale "conformed to the present policy of Hilton Hotels Corp. to confine its direct ownership of properties to hotels of nonresort type."

North Ireland To Name New Parliament

Belfast, Northern Ireland, Feb 9 (U.P.).—Last-minute rallies set the stage tonight for a general election Thursday in which voters of the six counties of northern Ireland will name a Parliment.

The main issue was whether northern Ireland should remain in the United Kingdom or join the Republic of Eire, its southern neighbor.

Disorders were reported at several rallies.

The Unionist Party of Prime Minister Sir Stanlake Brooke was expected to win at least 35 of the 52 seats at stake.

The Unionists want to remain in the United Kingdom.

Opposing them are the "antipartitionists"—Independent Laborites in Belfast and Nationalists in the rural areas who want to come under the Dublin flag.

The father of Nationalist candidate T. V. Agnew reported his son was prevented from speaking in Magherafelt last night by a crowd which hurled missiles.

Agnew said the Rev. J. Ward, a Roman Catholic priest, was hit by at least six eggs.

"The crowd seemed to be aiming mostly at him," Agnew reported.

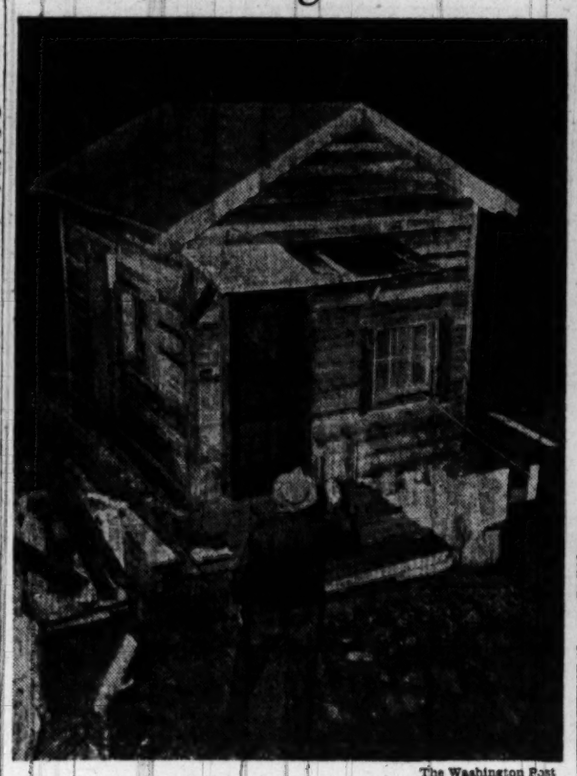
Scene of Sex Orgies . . .



The Washington Post

WATERFRONT SHACK—It was in this wooden structure at 5418 Canal rd. nw. that a 58-year-old janitor, by his own admission, conducted sex orgies with girls, aged 8 to 12 informed her by doing his bidding she would "grow up."

"I guess he meant I would grow taller and taller," she added.

According to his affidavit, Thork met most of the children along the waterfront and lured them into his shack. He told them to call him "Dutch," police said.

Police said he described meeting one child in the Dumbarton Theater. He made the girl's acquaintance, police said, by dropping a coin in the theater at the girl's feet.

Police said the janitor worked nights so had his days free to prey on the young girls.

Thork's arrest resulted when one of the girls told an older brother about her relations with the janitor.

Under the new District sex law, Thork's commitment to St. Elizabeths as a sex psychopath will be for life or until he is cured. He was committed by Judge Richmond B. Keech.

According to District Court records, less than a decade ago Thork served a five-year prison term in Ohio for assault with intent to commit rape.

Beall Proposes Federal Study on Family and Illness

Representative J. Glenn Beall (R., Md.) yesterday called for a Federal study of how family composition and environment relates to chronic illness.

Beall introduced a resolution calling for the United States Public Health Service to investigate practical methods for an expanded family health services program.

His resolution said that fundamental research conducted in Hagerstown and Washington County, Md., on the family prevalence of such diseases as cancer, heart disease and other chronic illnesses had revealed a close relationship between the diseases and family composition and environment.

It said that control of chronic diseases is the greatest public health problem today, but that previous study of them had been conducted mainly in terms of the individual, without reference to the family.

Beall introduced a similar bill in the last Congress.

No Accuser, Assault Case Is Dismissed

The United States Attorney's office yesterday nolle prossed a charge of assault with a dangerous weapon which had been filed against William L. Johnson, 25, messenger for Commissioner John Russell Young.

The charge dismissed in Municipal Court was placed against Johnson after a shooting last November. The victim was Miss Adele Herbert, 20, of 1003 New Jersey ave. nw. She suffered a .38-caliber bullet wound in her stomach but has recovered.

Prosecutor Andrew J. Howard said that the nolle prosse was directed after Miss Herbert signed a statement that she did not wish to prosecute since she and Johnson had been "playing" and that the shooting was the result of this play.

Johnson declared that the shooting was entirely accidental, according to his attorney, Milford Schwartz.

Howard said that because of these statements plus the fact that there was no other witness to the shooting, he did not see how a conviction could be obtained.

Johnson was described as a "bouncer" in a local cabaret during the evenings.

Prince Philip Backs Comfortable Clothes

London, Feb. 9 (U.P.). — Prince Philip, husband of Princess Elizabeth, sounded a new men's fashion note tonight at a dinner of the Master Tailors' Benevolent Association.

"I think your greatest contribution as tailors is to make comfortable clothes," he said. "If they are comfortable, then they will be smart."

U.S. Court Ruling Imperils Structure of Baseball

This Morning

With Shirley Povich

FOR 27 YEARS, organized baseball has been flourishing a Supreme Court decision in its favor and proclaiming its immunity from the Sherman Antitrust Act, laws aimed at restraint of trade and the control of interstate commerce. Now Danny Gardella says it ain't so, and he may be right.

Danny Gardella is the good-hit, no-field outfielder who jumped the New York Giants in 1946, took a job in the Mexican League, and was promptly boycotted from organized baseball in the United States for five years by Commissioner A. B. Chandler.

POVICH

When his job in Mexico ran out and he found himself butting his head against the tight American boycott of his talents, he sued organized baseball for $300,000 damages. Danny wasn't impressed by the 1922 decision of the highest court in the land, or the opinion delivered by Justice Oliver Wendell Holmes; at least his own legal advisers weren't.

He sued originally in the Federal District Court in New York and struck out when his case was dismissed before trial. But Danny went to bat again and pressed his suit before the U. S. Court of Appeals, and yesterday the court told him he had a case to take to trial.

ORGANIZED BASEBALL was in a cold sweat 27 years ago when the Baltimore club of the defunct Federal League brought suit against the National and American Leagues, charging that they were an illegal trust in restraint of trade. In the District of Columbia Court the Baltimore men sued and won $80,000 damages that were trebled to $240,000 under the antitrust act.

It was now organized baseball's turn to appeal, and it did, winning a thumping victory when the U. S. Court for the District set aside the lower court's verdict. But the Baltimore people fought it all the way to the U. S. Supreme Court before losing a final decision.

On May 30, 1922, Justice Holmes delivered organized baseball from all of its fears. He held that "Baseball is not interstate commerce and cannot be prosecuted under the Sherman Act as a combination in restraint of trade . . . Transportation of the players is a mere incident, not the real thing . . . personal effort constituting the professional game is not related to production, and is not a subject of commerce."

BUT UP IN NEW YORK yesterday, Senior Judge Learned Hand, in giving Gardella the green light to proceed with his suit, suggested significantly that the character of baseball may have changed sufficiently to bring it within the interstate commerce restrictions; that Justice Holmes' 1922 opinion may not be the last word on the subject.

The television and radio developments in baseball may yet be the factors to trip the club owners in their desire to keep their game out of the courts. If video and radio have become so important a part of the baseball business as to impress the court that the character of baseball, as a production, has changed, then organized baseball may be held accountable to antitrust and interstate commerce laws.

There is evidence with which to impress upon the courts the changed character of Operation Baseball as contrasted with that day in 1922, when the game's revenues were dependent almost wholly on admissions at the gate. The sale of video and radio rights now represent the margin of profit for many of the clubs, and at least that phase of the business is undeniably interstate.

IN NEW YORK, at the Polo Grounds, for example, the cigarette company that has bought the radio, television and signboard rights from the Giants has invested more than $400,000 in the club's activities. And the sale and production of cigarettes, dependent on some measure on its advertising via baseball, qualifies certainly as interstate commerce.

If organized baseball does suffer a setback in court and loses the protection of the 1922 Supreme Court decision, then it is plain that the club owners asked for it, in a measure. They attempted to retain their boycott privileges against their hired help while branching out into interstate commerce via radio and television; at least they risked the latter label.

If, to regain their protection of Justice Holmes' decision, organized baseball was compelled to forgo its radio and television activities across State lines, then it would be some kind of a deferred triumph for the minor leagues, anyway. For a year, the minors have been complaining bitterly that big league telecasts have been the ruination of minor league attendance.

Post Bowling Tournament Indorsed by National Body

The Third Annual Washington Post Bowling Tournament, which will be held February 14-March 1, inclusive, in cooperation with the Metropolitan Washington Duckpin Bowling Operators' Association, yesterday received the official indorsement from Arville Ebersole, executive secretary of the National Duckpin Bowling Congress.

With the Metropolitan Police Boys Club as the beneficiaries, Secretary Ebersole said that his organization was proud to give its support to The Post handicap competition.

"The National Duckpin Bowling Congress will do everything in its power to make this year's event the best ever," Ebersole said, "and we have called on all alley operators to back it strongly."

From Arlington, Va., to College Park, Md., all eligible league bowlers, men and women who have rolled in at least 15 games, are anxiously awaiting the opening next Monday. All rules will follow the Washington City and Washington Women's Duckpin Association standards, with full handicaps to be observed.

The Post wishes to point out that a bowler can enter from as many leagues as he or she is a member of, merely by notifying the alley operator or floor man. Entry blanks will be available.

Mrs. Joseph L. Arnold, president, and Mrs. C. Chester Caywood are heading the Women's Auixiliary committee. More than $1000 in prizes will be awarded.

Caps Beat Out Royals, 99 to 94, in 2d Overtime

By Morris Siegel
Post Reporter

Washington and Rochester, pro basketball's divisional leaders, waged a war befitting their lofty positions last night with the Caps winning the hectic struggle after two overtime periods, 99-94.

Last night's games:
Washington, 99; Rochester, 94 (2 overtimes).
New York, 95; St. Louis, 83.
Indianapolis, 79; Ft. Wayne, 67.

It was the wildest exhibition of any kind that Uline Arena customers had witnessed since last winter's rodeo and the crowd of 3435 thrilled to every second of the melee.

The two overtime sessions developed into a battle of free throws with the Eastern Division leading Caps coming out on top.

Royals Black Out

The locals made eight of their 10 charity shots while the Royals Western pace setters, blacked out at the foul stripe, missing seven out of 11. The two high scoring Basketball Association of America teams made only three field goals in the two extra periods, the Caps scoring two of them.

Not only was there an unofficial record for thrills established but there was an official mark for personal fouls also. Officials Eddie Boyle and Sid Borgia called 93 personal fouls, which saw nine players banished.

The Royals won honors in that division, losing five players against four for Washington.

Cap Captain Bob Feerick, who made only two goals, from the floor all night, tossed in one in the opening moments of the second extra period and that was the one that put the Caps in front to stay. The Royals, however, flubbed four chances to tie the score.

Feerick Puts Caps Ahead

Feerick's goal, which he scored following up a set shot try by Sonny Hertzberg, made it 91-89, Washington, and the Royals never caught up. Most of the fouling in the last five-minute period was deliberate with both teams striving to gain possession of the ball.

The regulation game ended at 86-86, with little Freddie Scolari, who swished in eight of his nine charity shots, dumping one in in the last six seconds to force the first overtime period.

Then the fun began. For the next five minutes the rivals waged a tense defensive struggle, taking only five shots from the floor between them. After Arnold Risen's first free throw had put the Royals in front by a point, Dick Schultz flung in a one-hander to give the Caps a one-point bulge 88-87, but Bob Wanzer scored a free throw and the horn sounded five seconds later, just as Red Holzman tried a desperate shot from mid court.

Curran Drops in Foul Shot

With 36 seconds to play in the first overtime period the Caps blew a marvelous chance to end hostilities then and there as Johnny Norlander and Bob Feerick missed free throws, one after another.

Franie Curran, late of Notre Dame, drew first blood in the second five-minute period, swishing in a foul try to make it 89-88, but little Scolari matched that one and the tug of war was on again. Not a point of any kind was made for two minutes, but Feerick broke the ice with his basket and the Royals were licked, although it took the rest of the period to prove it.

Penn Trips Hoyas, 56-53, In Thriller

Philadelphia, Feb. 9.—A field goal by Harry Wettlaufer with 1:40 to play clinched Penn's 56-53 triumph over Georgetown in their basketball game here tonight before 2500 spectators.

The contest was an even-Stephen battle with the lead switching hands on 14 occasions and being tied eight other times.

With five minutes to go, Georgetown held a slim 49-48 advantage. Then Reds Bagnell bucketed two field goals and Herb Lyon one to give the Red and Blue a 54-49 cushion against a late Hoya rush.

Georgetown started to whittle the deficit with Ray Corley sinking a one-hander and Italo Ablondi hitting on a set shot with 2 minutes to go. Then Wettlahufer came through with the goal that sank the Hoyas' hope.

In the remaining minute and 40 seconds, Penn waived three fouls in order to keep possession.

After Failing to Awe Sandy Last Time

Pep Knows He Must Depend on Fists Alone In His Second Meeting With Saddler Friday

By Red Smith

New York, Feb. 9 (NYHT).—In 1942 when Will Papaleo won the featherweight championship at the age of 20, he was the youngest man to hold a world boxing title in 40 years.

He had never been knocked out; he had never fought a draw; he had never lost a decision; he had never won or lost a bout on a foul; he had never boxed a newspaper decision. He won 62 times hand running before Sammy Angott, the lightweight champion, outpointed him in 1943.

In October, 1948, Willie Pep still held the title. By that time he had been through 130-odd fights. Angott still was the only man who had defeated him. Willie could box and he could punch. He could make a howling good fight or a monumental stinkeroo, as he chose. He had never seen a featherweight he couldn't handle as he pleased.

So when a guy came back from Sandy Saddler's training camp in Summit, N. J., last October and said, "I just saw the next featherweight champion of the world," people looked at him warily.

A man in the bar replied, "Have you read any good books lately?" and backed away a step or two, poising himself on the balls of his feet so he could spring if necessary.

The guy was out of town when Saddler fought Pep but he heard about it later. In some quarters he heard about curious fluctuations in the betting odds just before the bout. In others he heard about the fight itself.

When the first round opened, Saddler had walked out to midring and stuck a left jab into the champion's face. The punch snapped with authority. It said, "Look, Willie, the program's going to be different tonight."

Willie was jarred. Before he recovered, Saddler belted him solidly. Pep never did get started, and in the fourth round he was through. Witnesses couldn't believe this was the Pep they'd been watching all these years. Not this tame and sluggish loser, they said, forgetting that nothing makes a guy so sluggish as to be slugged.

Friday night Pep and Saddler return to Madison Square Garden with the title again at stake and the biggest take of the new year in the box office. Up at the Twentieth Century offices they were talking about the first match, and Harry Markson was saying:

"The element of surprise is still the payoff in almost any kind of fighting. Pep says now that he underrated Saddler the first time. It's easy to believe. He'd always been able to do what he pleased in a fight. It must have been a long time since he's gone in with someone who wasn't stiff with awe. How could he guess this guy would be different?

"How many fights do you suppose Joe Louis won before the first round? It must have been the same with Pep."

Colonials Squeeze Past Duke, 51 to 49

By Bill Burnett
Post Reporter

The unpredictable cagemen of George Washington put on the pressure when it counted—in the last five minutes—to turn back Duke University, 51-49, in a Southern Conference meeting last night at the Armory.

While 986 fans looked on, the Colonials won their seventh league game in 11 starts and outscored the Blue Devils by a scant 9-7 in the waning minutes. It was GW's tenth win against seven losses altogether.

Both teams missed shots from every angle in the ragged encounter, Duke's best efforts coming in the last 2 minutes as Ben Collins and Ceep Youmans closed a 5-point gap in the score.

At the end it was Cocaptain Maynard Haithcock and Johnny Moffatt who accounted for Duke's fifth loss in nine conference games. They scored all but two of the final big points, these going to Bill Cantwell on a sneak shot.

Never more than seven points separated the rivals and GW enjoyed that lead shortly after halftime when big Ace Adler clicked on a toss from the side to make it 33-26. Duke came back for ties at 36-all and 38-all but shortly thereafter came GW's clutch streak.

Haithcock wound up with game scoring honors—16 points—and Moffatt had 13. Center Ben Collins led the losers with 12 points, one more than was credited to teammate Youmans and two more to Tom Hughes' total.

There was nothing hot about the Colonials in the first half but they still managed for a 29-26 margin at intermission. Duke's widest margin came after eight minutes of action as Gordon, Collins and Hughes combined to give the Blue Devils a 12-8 lead.

In a preliminary, the GW Frosh suffered a 59-53 setback at the hands of the Second Army five from Fort Meade.

Loyola Downs Cards, 56-47

Catholic University's zone defense stopped Jim Lacy with 4 points last night, but the Greyhounds still had enough power to hand the Cards a 56-47 setback before 2500 fans.

It was Loyola's eighth consecutive Mason-Dixon Conference win and CU's third loss in 10 games.

Lacy didn't get a point until the third period when he converted a foul. It was 5:17 of the period when he got his lone 2-pointer. The big, smooth sharpshooter, tried an even dozen shots, but they were blocked by Fred Connor under the basket or wide of the mark.

Loyola had an ace in the hole, however, in Andy O'Donnell, who hit the hoop for eight field goals with a one-hand shot. It also had Mike Zedalis, who had a hot hand at the foul line where he dropped in 10 of 13 chances. He added 3 field goals.

Coach Abe Rosenfield's strategy of stopping the clock by sending in a substitute everytime C. U. scored or Loyola got the ball out of bounds succeeded in breaking up the visitors' fast-breaking attack. It also slowed the game much to the charging of a large delegation of Loyola fans in the stands.

Villanova Laces Navy By 67 to 46

Annapolis, Md., Feb. 9 (AP).—Villanova handed Navy its worst basketball licking in the past three years, winning 67-46 here today. It was Villanova's thirteenth victory of the season.

Except for several minutes at the outset and a fruitless late rally by the Middies, the visitors dominated the contest.

Paul Arizin, clever Wildcat center, hit for 24 points on a wide assortment of shots to take high-scoring honors. His total bettered that of Navy's two leading sharpshooters—John Barrow with 11 Mullaney with eight.

Navy jumped off to an 8-2 lead, but the Wildcats soon solved the zone defense employed by Coach Ben Carnevale for the first time this season and began to move.

With nine minutes gone, the score had been tied four times, the last at 18-all. After that, Navy was never close.

Arizin also played a brilliant defensive game, holding Willie Wilson, usually a potent scorer, to one field goal.

The game gave Villanova a season's record of 13 wins and 4 losses. Navy has now won nine and lost six.

Plebes Clip Hoya Frosh

Annapolis, Md., Feb. 9 (AP).—Chuck Thomas sank a long set shot with 35 seconds to play today to give the Navy Plebes a 46-45 victory over the Georgetown Freshmen in a nip and tuck basketball game.

Navy caught fire early in the second half, pulling away to a 41-28 lead. Georgetown spurted then, eventually going ahead 45-44 when Thomas saved the game for the Plebes. It was the seventh win in eight games for the Plebes and Georgetown's fifth setback in 11.

Permission Granted to Gardella to Press Suit

By Gayle Talbot

New York, Feb. 9 (AP).—Danny Gardella, a wartime ball player who jumped to the Mexican League today was given the green light to proceed with a $300,000 damage suit against organized baseball which he claims has deprived him of means of livelihood.

Danny Gardella

In a split decision, 2-1, the United States Court of Appeals ruled that increased use of radio and television has impressed upon baseball "an interstate character," bringing it within provisions of the anti-trust laws.

Gardella's suit, brought against Commissioner A. B. Chandler, the New York Giants and the presidents of the two major leagues, charges that baseball is a monopoly because of the "reserve clause" which binds a player to one club.

Decision Extremely Important

Without the clause, a player could offer his services each year to the highest bidder. Chaos would result, officials of the game declare, if the reserve clause ever is successfully attacked.

Baseball alone wouldn't be affected since most other professional sports—football, basketball and hockey—operate under similar provisions.

Today's decision, written by Senior Judge Learned Hand, reverses a ruling made last July 14 by Judge Henry Goddard in Federal District Court, when he dismissed Gardella's suit before trial. The reversal came as a shock to the leaders of the national game.

Judge Goddard's ruling was based upon the opinion—frequently challenged in the past—that baseball is not engaged in trade

Chandler Scoffs At 'Peonage' Remark

Wilmington, Del., Feb. 9 (AP).—Baseball Commissioner A. B. (Happy) Chandler said tonight that "no major leaguer makes less than $5000 a year and some make up to $100,000."

"If you call that peonage," he asserted, "then a lot of us would like to be in it."

Chandler, speaking at the annual banquet of the Interstate Sports Writers and Broadcasters Association, did not mention in his address the decision by the United States Circuit Court of Appeals in New York several hours earlier.

But his remark obviously was directed at Justice Jerome N. Frank, who said that baseball's "reserve clause" creates "something resembling peonage of the baseball player."

Griff Believes Court Will Uphold 'Reserve Clause'

ORLANDO, FLA., Feb. 9 (U.P.).—Clark Griffith, president of the Washington Senators, said today he believed the United States Supreme Court again would uphold the "reserve" contracts by which professional baseball teams prevent their players from jumping to other teams.

"I'm not afraid of it," Griffith said, concerning a Federal Court decision in New York today, ordering a trial in Danny Gardella's $300,000 lawsuit against the New York Giants.

"I am very sure the decision won't stand up if it goes to the Supreme Court.

"For the life of the trade, you've got to keep the ball player in his own association," Griffith added. "If they are allowed to move around every fall, it would destroy their profession."

Fish, Men Get Hooked On Severn

By Walter Haight
Post Reporter

DID YOU EVER get a yen to toss up everything and go fishing and keep on fishing for the rest of your days?

Haight

A great many of us have.

On these occasions we are apt to partially yield, take a day off, wet a line and dream a little—only to awaken to reality and the old grind.

Now and then men go all the way—like the intelligent fellow I once envied because his job was cutting bait on a Florida fishing boat, or Alonzo Irving Smith for whom I've developed a burning jealousy on short acquaintance.

Brother Smith, it seems, once was a weekend and holiday piscatorial addict, even as you and I. He probably inherited some of his fishing lure from his father. At any rate he served his apprenticeship bailing boats for his Pop and otherwise making himself useful on their excursions to the bay and its tributaries.

We can't all be Tom Sawyers and Huckelberry Finns. Even the most devout of Isaac Walton disciples must have fresh money. Smith went into railroading for his father becoming oil merchant, salesman, etc.

But these jobs had a way of interfering with his fishing.

One day he found himself on the bank of a quiet tree-fringed cove, up the Severn River behind St. Helena's Island. They were biting, too.

But no fish ever bit as hard as did Alonzo Irving. If you had happened by the spot that afternoon a dozen years ago you might have noticed a "For Sale" sign on a nearby house. It wasn't there the next day—Brother Smith had taken over.

Quite by accident, I met King Alonzo Irving Smith yesterday in the domain where he now reigns.

MY BOSS SAID he wanted a fishing story and ordered me out in the lousy old sunshine to find out where "they're biting." I rushed out of the office, but not before I heard him say, "Try a different locale. I'm getting a little fed up on your Herring Bay yarns."

I headed Annapolis way and kept going until I saw a sign "Smith's—boats for hire" on the Herald Harbor rd.

Wasn't long before I was standing on Captain Smith's new wharf, flanked by his rowboat and motorboat fleet, talking fishing with the captain and Olin Wilson, first mate in charge of boat building.

The sport has been good on the Severn River all winter, they said. Catches of yellow perch have been far above the average, with the usual sprinkling of pike. An oddity of the winter was the boating, a couple of weeks ago, of an 11-pound rock-fish taken on a bull minnow while casting for pike.

"You'd be surprised at the number of people who fish despite the weather conditions," said Captain Smith. "Sometimes we have to break the ice to get them into the channel. See how the bows of the rowboats are scraped by the ice. However, we've only had ice twice this winter."

While we were talking, I noticed he kept his eyes peeled at the end of the wharf. He nodned to Wilson and for the first time I saw a cork bobbing in the water. Wilson drew up the line, a frisky yellow perch dangling from the hook.

"Oh, I see. You fellows fish, too," I said.

"That's my trouble," said Smith. "I have to watch myself. If I didn't, I'd be fishing and let the business go for itself."

THEN HE TOLD ME of his fishing background.

When he was working as a fireman in the Baltimore railroad yards, some friends were going fishing and Smith wanted to go along but hesitated to ask the foreman.

"Tell him your mother-in-law died and you have to go to the funeral," urged a companion.

This he did and it wasn't long before he was in the party trolling for rockfish out on the bay.

Several boats converged on a school and in a nearby craft was none other than the foreman, himself!

Smith tried to duck, but the boss saw him and yelled, "Why didn't you tell me? I didn't know they were going to bury your mother-in-law at sea."

If this piece gives you the fishing urge, please don't phone me. Ring Captain Smith at South Shore, Md. 5254. He can do something about it.

Smith's Goal Decisive in Last Seconds

By Herb Heft
Post Reporter

The unbeaten George Washington High Presidents stretched their winning streak to 15 games yesterday as Billy Smith's spectacular hook shot in the last 17 seconds sank the Central Vikings, 39-38, at the Central gym.

Smith's goal put an abrupt end to a stirring Central rally which wiped out a 10-point lead, amassed by G. W. in the third quarter. With 2:55 left in the final period, Terry Gregory dropped in a foul goal for Central to tie the score at 34 all.

With 37 seconds left, Jack Stringer, a lanky 6-foot 1-inch Missouri lad, put the Vikings in front for the first time with a field goal. But Smith rescued the sagging GW winning string with his whirling hook from 15 feet out.

Central's inaccuracy at the foul line cost it the victory. The Vikings missed 12 out of 18 foul-goal tries, while GW was sinking 13 out of 19. Six-foot 5-inch Tony Daukas led the GW scorers with 12 points. Jim Pantos, with 11, was high for Central, which has a 10-6 record.

U. S. Court Ruling Perils Baseball

Want to See Army Fights Free? Then Act Quickly

The World-Wdie rmy Boxing Tournament to be held at Fort Myer, February 21-26, is free to the public—at least that segment of it that acts quickly.

Starting today, a limited number of tickets may be obtained at the Army Recruiting Station, 403 10th st. nw.

They'll be distributed on a "first come, first served" basis.

At least nine far-flung Army commands will send their champions from all over the globe to fight for All-Army titles.

Yesterday the Army held a press-radio luncheon at Fort McNair to discuss the accelerated athletic program of the Army and the boxing championships.

Informal speeches were made by Maj. Gen. Peter Dahlquist, deputy director of personnel; Maj. Gen. Russell P. Reynolds, chief of special services, and Col. John T. Cole, chairman of the tournament.

Bethesda Boys Are PrettyGood But 16-Year-Old Gal Is Better

At Bethesda-Chevy Chase High, where the boys' team has won 15 out of 17 games this season, the No. 1 basketball star is a girl, 16-year-old Jerry Welker.

Jerry, pretty 5-foot, 9½-inch senior, is the chief reason why the B-CC girls basketball team has won 40 straight games, and taken the play away from the boys' quint.

She's averaged better than 23 points per game for the past two seasons, and yesterday boosted that mark slightly with a 26-point performance against Sidwell Friends. Friends is the last team which beat the Baronettes, 34-32, back in 1946. And maybe the B-CC girls had that setback in mind yesterday when they whipped Friends, 48-20.

Basketball isn't Jerry's only sport. She's an accomplished ballet dancer, swimmer, high jumper, sprinter, and she's an honor roll student.

Other regulars on the team are Forwards Charlene Jamison and Carter Baum, Guards Joseph Chaffin, Betty Winkler and Mary Flock. The coach is Miss Dorothy Quayle.

Episcopal Wins Seventh

Although Roger Kingsbury netted 32 points for St. Albans, they were not enough to stop Episcopal from winning 55-43 yesterday on the losers' court. This was St. Alban's seventh loss and Episcopal's seventh win.

Dan Gardella Gets O. K. to Press Suit or commerce under the Sherman Antitrust Act. In today's decision Judge Hand wrote:

"When the case goes back for trial—assuming that it does upon our opinion—it will be necessary, as I view it, to determine whether all the interstate activities, those which were thought insufficient before, in conjunction with broadcasting and television, together form a large enough part of the business to impress upon it an interstate character."

Judge hand did not rule today on the reserve clause, but Judge Jerome N. Frank, who concurred with him in the decision, commented that the clause is "something resembling peonage of the baseball player."

Gardella, a short, heavily-muscled player who hit well for the Giants in 1945 but left something to be desired in his fielding, is under a five-year suspension which was slapped on him by Commissioner Chandler after he jumped to the Mexican League in the spring of '46.

He played in Canada last summer and for the past two months has been employed in a hospital at Mt. Vernon, N. Y., on the night shift. Advised of today's decision, he burst out: "Just say I'm glad—we'll push it to the limit."

The central figure in a case which might stand organized baseball on its ears said he was too busy with his duties as an orderly to comment further.

His attorney, Frederic A. Johnson, was more voluble. He said, "We'll go right to trial," but pointed out that the defense will have 20 days in which to file an answer to the decision of the appeals court.''

Justice Harrie B. Chase, who dissented in today's opinion, wrote i na separate opinion that he did not think the Gardella case was greatly different from one brought before the Supreme Court in 1922, when Justice Oliver Wendell Holmes ruled that baseball was not interstate trade or commerce in deciding the Federal League case.

He said that "with the possible exception of the allegations as to the sale of broadcasting rights for radio and television," the case is "not different in any essential from that before the Supreme Court in the Federal case."

Digges Named To Bench of 7th Circuit

J. Dudley Digges of La Plata, Md., was named yesterday to succeed Judge William M. Loker on the Seventh Maryland Judicial Circuit bench.

Judge Loker, chief judge in the four-county circuit, reaches the retirement age of 70 on Friday.

At 37, Digges will be the youngest circuit judge in Maryland. His appointment becomes effective February 12.

Gov. William Preston Lane, jr., who made the appointment, said Digges was recommended by the State Bar Association's committee on judicial appointments and has the indorsement of bar associations in the circuit, which comprises Calvert, Charles, Prince Georges and St. Marys Counties.

Judge John G. Gray, jr., of Prince Frederick is expected to become chief judge of the circuit. Judge Charles C. Marbury of Upper Marlboro is the third jurist.

With expiration of the term, the Circuit Court judgeship will come up for election in November, 1950.

Digges, a bachelor, was graduated from the University of Maryland Law School in 1936, and in January, 1937, began practice in Upper Marlboro as law partner of Representative Lansdale G. Sasscer.

His father, the late W. Mitchell Digges, was chief judge of the Seventh Judicial Circuit at one time and a judge of the Maryland Court of Appeals from 1923 until his death in 1934.

Diggs will draw $9500 a year salary. The State Legislature, however, has before it a proposal to raise the pay of Circuit Court judges to $12,500.

Inquiry Into Boys' Charges Of Third Degree Completed

Investigation into charges that two Thirteenth Precinct policemen subjected two juvenile theft suspects to the "third degree" has been completed, Inspector Clarence H. Lutz said yesterday.

Lutz said that because of the different stories related by the boys and the policemen he will recommend to Maj. Robert J. Barrett, police superintendent, that the results of his investigation be referred to the recently formed Complaint Review Board.

Procedure Up to Board

It would then be up to the board, which has three civilian members, to decide whether there is sufficient evidence to merit trial board hearings against the two policemen involved.

The Complaint Review Board was formed to study complaints made by civilians against members of the police force. None of its members can be employes of the District. At the present time the members are Floyd D. Akers, Joseph A. Wilner and William J. Milehan.

The alleged "third degree" is said to have taken place January 19 at the Thirteenth Precinct Station while the two officers were questioning four boys in connection with a housebreaking and theft of $862 at 255 V st. nw.

A formal complaint naming the two officers was filed with Barrett by Delong Harris, an attorney representing the mothers of two of the boys. One of the boys is 12, the other 14.

The complaint charged the two boys were "subjected to a third degree and severely beaten" and that one of them was so harshly beaten he is now "deaf in one ear, temporarily at least, and perhaps permanently."

Woman Tells Of Boy Attack

A 14-year-old boy was sought yesterday by police following an attack on Miss Eve Mauck, 21, a secretary, of 3106 Adams st. ne.

Miss Mauck told police the boy followed her after she left a bus about 9:15 p. m. Tuesday, at Bladensburg rd. and Channing st. ne.

She said she walked rapidly, but that he caught up with her near an alley between Channing and Adams sts. on 31st st.

"I lost something," he told her.

"I wouldn't know anything about that," Miss Mauck answered.

She said he then threw her to the ground and bounced her head up and down on the sidewalk. She screamed, and when neighbors raised their windows, the boy fled.

Miss Mauck said her assailant was about 5 feet 2 inches tall, and was wearing a short black and white zipper jacket.

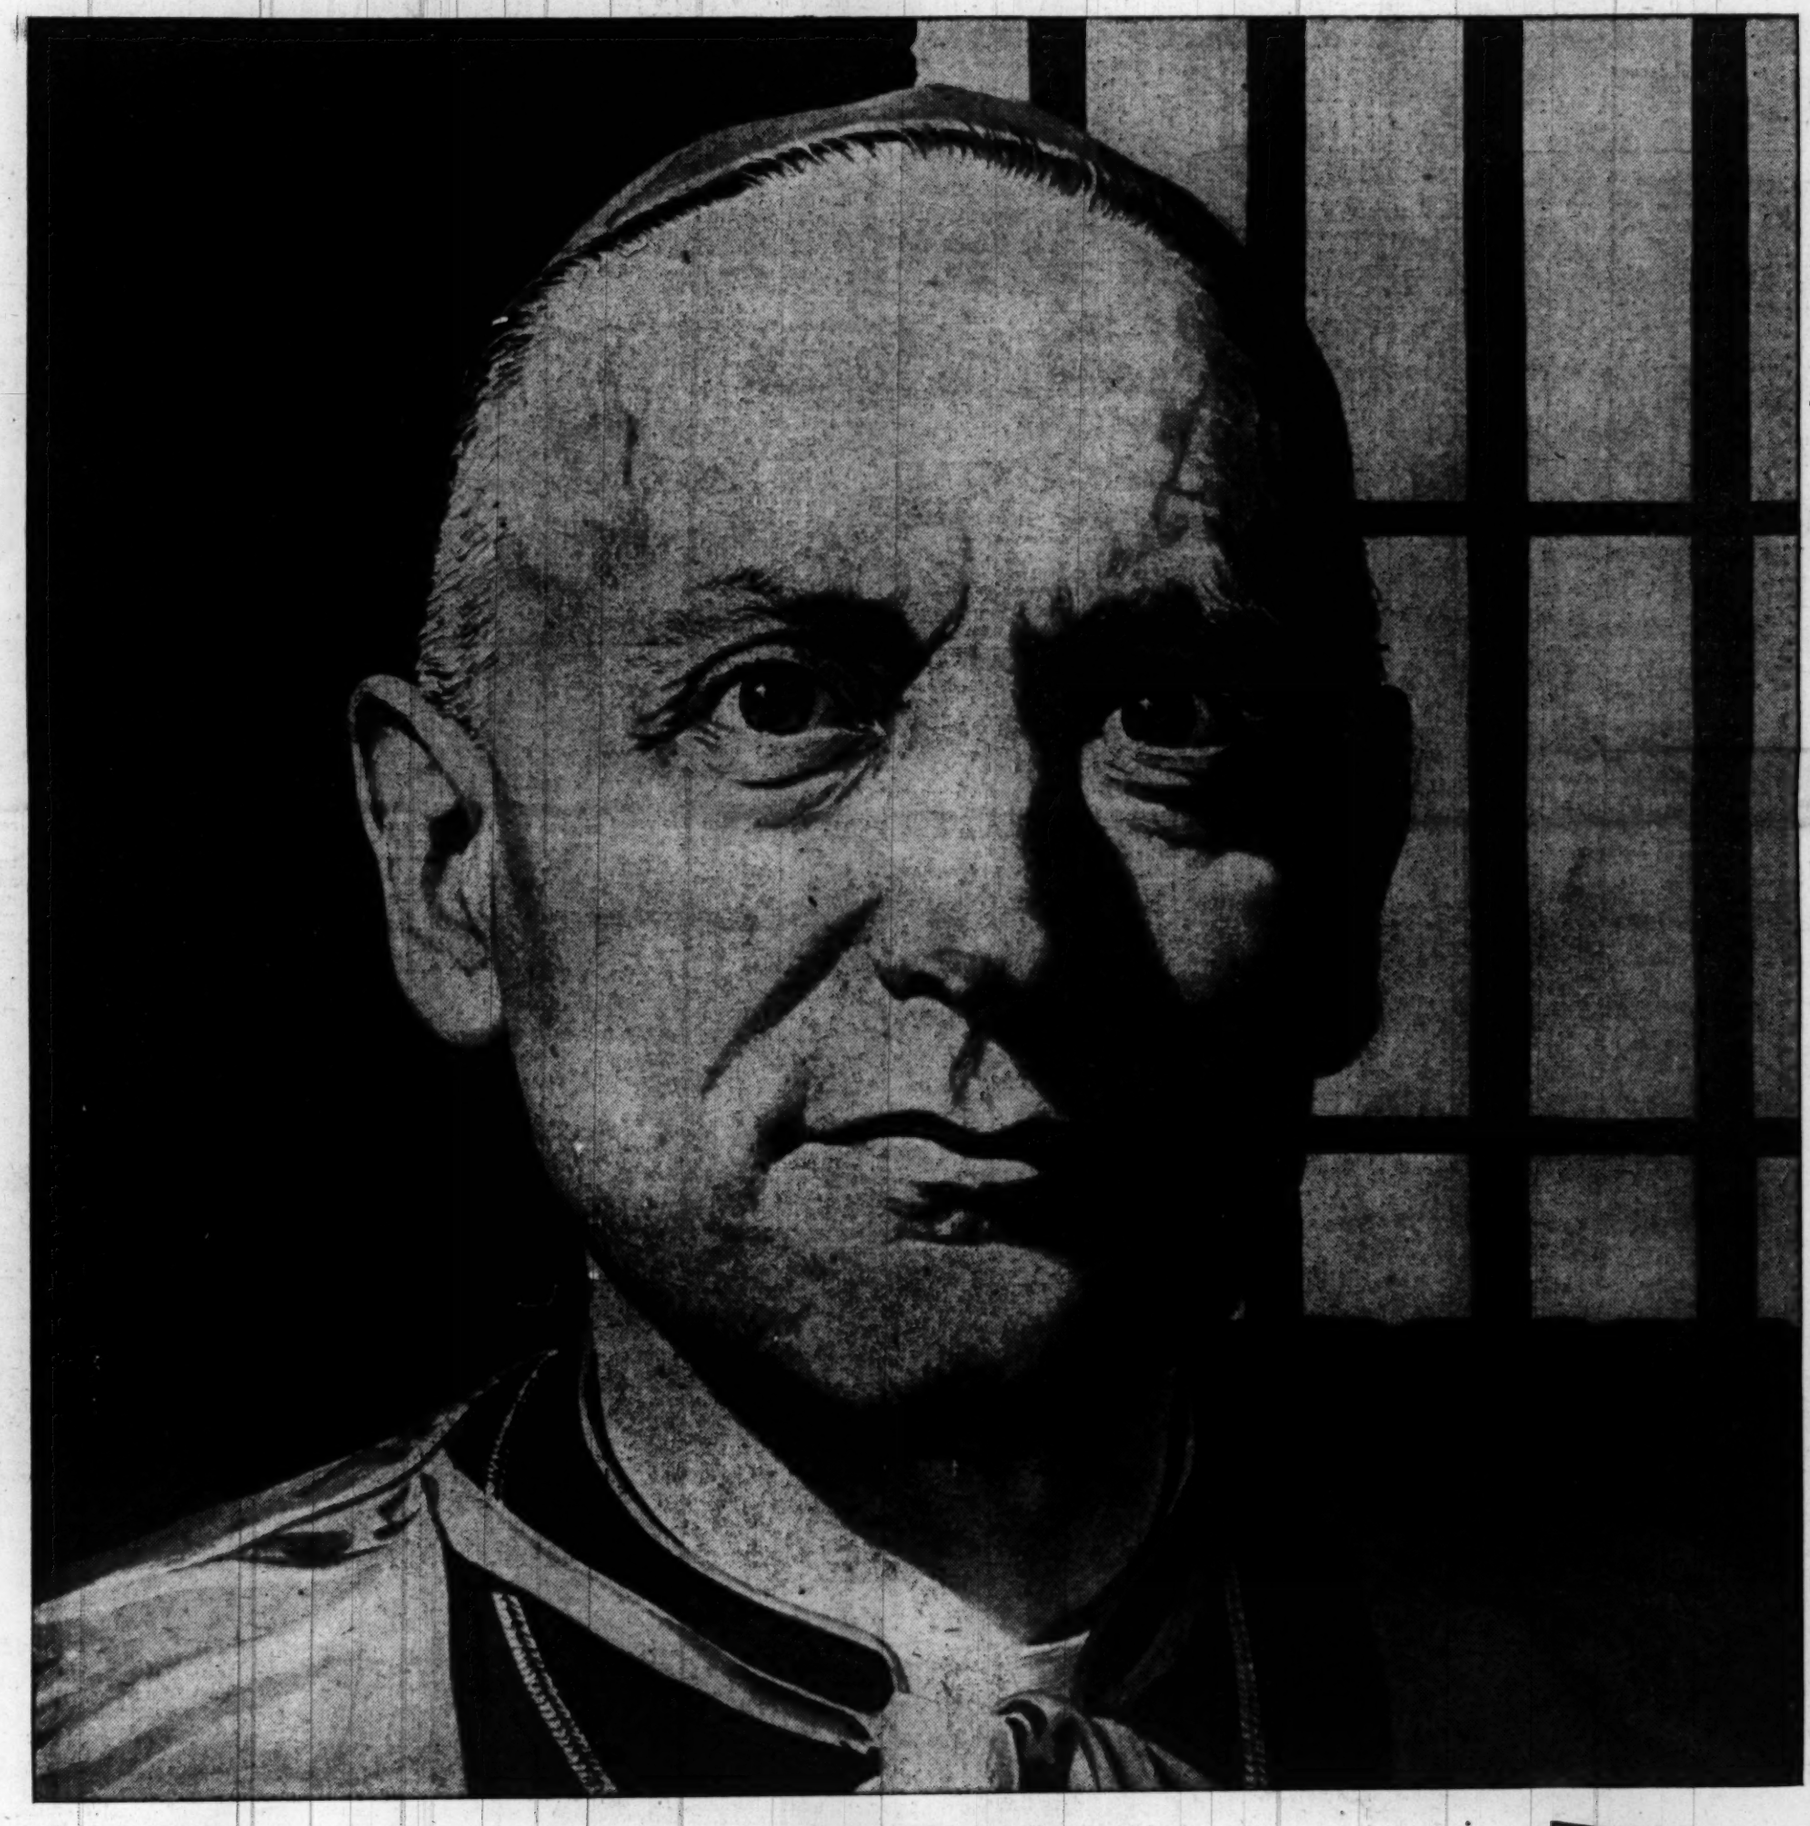
ARE WE TOOLS and FOOLS?

LAST SUNDAY MORNING from the pulpit of St. Patrick's Cathedral, Cardinal Spellman spoke to his fellow Americans words which will be a milestone in the history of our times.

"Are we," he asked, "are we, the American people, the tools and fools for which the Communists take us?

"I avow," said Cardinal Spellman, "that unless the whole American people, without further ostrich-like actions and pretenses, unite to stop the Communist floodings of our own land—our sons . . . shall be summoned from . . . their homes and families to bear arms against those who would desecrate and destroy them."



The man whose tragic fate inspired the fateful words quoted above is Cardinal Mindszenty of Hungary.

The Federal Diary

by Jerry Klutz

The Administration is giving serious study to a proposal that it ease the way to permanent Civil Service status for two groups of Federal employes, which are:

(1) Veterans who are war service and temporary appointees and who have been in the Federal service for the past five or more years, and,

(2) All war service and temporary nonveterans who have held their jobs for the past seven years or so.

These employes—an estimated 25,000 or more in all—would be covered into the classified Civil Service by a presidential order if they could meet the following conditions:

If their agencies recommended them for permanent status;

If they had efficiency ratings of good or better, and,

If they took and passed an appropriate noncompetitive test.

A break in service up to one year wouldn't make an employe ineligible for status provided he was laid off in a reduction of force through no fault of his own.

The proposed order or something similar to it could be easily defended. Advocates of the order make this one telling point—that anyone who has been on the job for five or more years and who has a good work record should have proved his ability to hold the position to a far greater degree than any written or unwritten test. Otherwise, the agency should have caught up with an incompetent employe and fired him long before he served five years.

Even so, the proposed order has some high hurdles to clear before it can be approved. Personnel advisers are split on the plan. It's no secret that the Civil Service Commission is anything but enthusiastic about the suggestion. Some commission officials would like to see the order pigeonholed for about six months and then limited only to those long-time temporary and war-service people who have been in Government service since September 16, 1940.

A contrary view is taken by other officials in and out of the commission. This group would be even more liberal and blanket in everyone who have served with merit for three, four, or five years. A compromise date is March 15, 1942, when the war service system became effective.

The arguments over the order are unresolved and unsettled. An agreement may be reached in a few days and the order issued effective at once or it may be months before anything happens.

DCEs: All factions do agree on this one point—that positive steps must be taken to find jobs for the estimated 4500 jobless career employes before war service and temporary employes are given a short cut to permanent status. There are an estimated 1000 displaced career employes here; about 2500 elsewhere in the country.

The Civil Service Commission has asked the President to issue an appeal to all Federal agencies to either hire the DCEs to fill vacancies or fire war service and temporary employes and replace them with qualified DSEs. In addition, each agency would be required to make a detailed report to the White House on the number of DCEs hired.

Intervention by the President in the DCE problem is vigorously supported by Luther C. Steward, president of the National Federation of Federal Employes.

JAMES McTIGUE is slated to be appointed the general counsel of the Displaced Persons Commission. Before he opened his own law office here, he worked with several congressional committees, including the Truman and Mead committees in the Senate. His will be a splendid appointment.

LOYALTY: This is the day the Civil Service loyalty board is supposed to hand down decisions on the cases of WILLIAM REMINGTON, the Commerce official who was accused by Elizabeth Bentley, the self-styled Soviet spy queen, and DOROTHY BAILEY, a leader in the left wing United Public Workers, and a supervisory employe in the United States Employment Service.

REPRESENTATIVE WALTER (D., Pa.) yesterday made a stout defense of the employe loyalty program to what he said were misleading and distorted newspaper accounts. He said in part:

". . . a trial in the normal use of the word is not contemplated under the loyalty program . . . that dismissal under the loyalty program does not accuse an employe of a crime in contemplation of trying him for a violation of law. Rather, it evidences the impropriety of his employment by the Government . . . It was designed expressly to protect the citizens who supported the Government with their taxes . . ."

HATCH ACT: The House yesterday aproved the Mitchell bill, which would give the Civil Service Commission the authority to fix penalities for violations of the Hatch "no politics" Act. The commission must now order the firing of any employe who is now found to be guilty.

NACA: The Williams Subcommittee of the House Civil Service Committee yesterday gave its okay to a bill that would permit the National Advisory Committee for Aeronautics to pay salaries up to $15,000 to each of 10 of its top scientists.

REPRESENTATIVE LANE (D., Mass.) yesterday put in a bill to place Federal workers on a five-day, 35-hour week.

Apartment Rezoning Asked for 'Friendship,' 'Foggy Bottom' Section

Gashouse District Transformation Envisioned; McLean Project Opposed

By Sam Zagoria
Post Reporter

A plan to transform the Foggy Bottom gashouse section of Washington into the site of a series of modern, eight-story elevator apartments was laid before the District Zoning Commission yesterday.

At an all-day hearing in the District Building, recommendations were also made, and roundly opposed, for rezoning the Friendship home of the late Mrs. Evalyn Walsh McLean to permit erection of stores and a small apartment house there.

The Foggy Bottom conversion program was outlined by E. J. Boothby, vice president and general manager of the Washington Gas Light Co., owners of a nine-acre tract in the 32 acres considered by the commission for rezoning from mainly industrial to primarily residential with a 60-foot height limitation. The gas company has placed its property on the market for sale.

The company official said the firm would not oppose rezoning to residential if the height were set at 90 feet, sufficient for eight-story buildings.

The utility representative contended limiting buildings to 60 feet would cause a 25 per cent depreciation in the value of its holdings and might make apartment building economically unfeasible since such structures would be limited to five stories.

Ripe for Facelifting

F. G. Awalt, counsel for the gas company, said the section was ripe for a facelifting and introduced sketches by Louis Justement, architect, showing how an apartment community with one-story shops could be placed in the area.

John Nolen, jr., planning director of the National Capital Park and Planning Commission, said the commission favored the rezoning but opposed the 90-foot height request, declaring that buildings possible within this limit might result in a population density of 100,000 persons per square mile, as crowded as some of the densest sections of New York City.

A report of the Citizens Advisory Committee approving the proposed rezoning was read.

A proposal by James C. Rogers, attorney for the three trustees of Mrs. McLean's will, for rezoning the block-long estate at Wisconsin ave. and R st. nw. touched off a heated discussion in which representatives of two Georgetown citizens' associations and several individuals voiced strong objections.

Rogers contended that Wisconsin ave., north and south of the property, is already almost solidly commercial and that the estate owned the entire area bounded by Wisconsin, R and 34th sts. and Reservoir rd. so that no immediate property owner was affected.

Former Judge Thurman Arnold, one of the three trustees, said the estate has been difficult to sell since at present "the McLean house can be used only for entertainment purposes by a multimillionaire."

On the other side, Attorney Robert E. Lynch, representing the Progressive Citizens Association of Georgetown, led a delegation of more than 25 area residents. He also submitted petitions containing 460 signatures of persons opposed to the change.

Lynch said granting the request would contribute to the "ruin of one of the best neighborhoods in the town in order to further speculation."

Mrs. Birne T. West of 3406 R st. nw., noting that although she has lived in Georgetown 27 years, "I'm still considered a newcomer," said Georgetown now represents the type of Colonial housing section "which cost John D. Rockefeller nine million dollars to do in Williamsburg." This brought a burst of applause.

The Zoning Commission took the matters under advisement.

Wheeler Gets Post With Senate Group

District Lawyer To Help Committee Draft Washington Home-Rule Bill

By Edward F. Ryan
Post Reporter

A. L. Wheeler, chairman of the District Democratic Central Committee, was named yesterday to serve with the staff of the Senate District Committee in helping draft Washington home rule legislation.

Wheeler

Wheeler got a head start in learning his new job by serving as chairman of the suffrage committee of the Democratic Central Committee. The group has been at work for several weeks drafting a proposed Washington home rule and reorganization bill.

His appointment was announced by Senate District Chairman J. Howard McGrath (D., R. I.) and Senator Estes Kefauver (D., Tenn) chairman of the Senate District Home Rule Subcommittee.

Home Rules Action Planned

The announcement followed a morning executive session of the Kefauver group to map plans for home rule action.

Kefauver said early public hearings are planned, in a drive to send a home rule bill to the Senate floor by April 1. The hearings will proceed in two stages.

First preliminary hearings will be open to Washington groups that have drafted home rule bills to submit, and others who wish to present ideas and proposals on what form home rule legislation should take.

After the first hearings, Kefauver said the subcommittee would draft its own plan for home rule, and make this the basis for later general hearings.

Those Attending Meeting

Present at yesterday's meeting were Chairman Kefauver, Senator Margaret Chase Smith (R., Me.) a member of the subcommittee; James R. Kirkland, Senate District Committee counsel; Wheeler, Benjamin Sigal, a member of Wheeler's suffrage committee and also president of the Washington chapter, Americans for Democratic Action; and Clarence M. Pierce, who served in the last Congress as assistant staff director for the House District subcommittee on home rule rule and reorganization.

Last year's House subcommittee, headed by Representative James C. Auchincloss (R., N. J.), favored handling home rule and reorganization of District agencies in a single bill—the same line being taken by Wheeler's group in its new bill.

Wheeler, a native of Atlanta, Ga., has practiced law in the District for about six years. He has been chairman of the District Democratic Central Committee since August. He lives at 1886 Monroe st. nw.

JEAN MATHEWS,
a red-head from Humphrey, Ark., has been chosen by the Arkansas State Society to represent her State as a "princess" in the Cherry Blossom Festival in the spring. Citizens Unit Agreeable to Racial Debate

The Federation of Citizens' Associations executive board is perfectly willing to discuss racial problems "with Negroes residing in the District of Columbia," it said yesterday in the last of a three-part critique on a report by the National Committee on Segregation in the Nation's Capital.

But the board states that it does not want to debate with "sociologists residing throughout the country who, judging by the report, are either completely ignorant of the facts or wilfully desire to disregard them." The bulk of the 90-member committee which issued the report here last December live outside the District, the list of the national committee shows.

The board's latest attack was directed against the phase of the committee report which claims that "Negroes are not provided with adequate health protection." The two earlier statements dealt with District housing and school conditions, alleged by the committee to be discriminatory toward Negroes.

Intentional Neglect 'Ridiculous'

The statement, authorized by the entire federation and prepared by a special committee said the inference that "the white citizen intentionally neglects the Negro's health" is obviously "ridiculous to those who live here and understand the real conditions."

In refutation it pointed out that the Negro population requires and receives the larger part" of the $8,775,000 allocated in 1948 to the District health department The department was described in the statement as "one of the best to be found in the country."

In reply to repeated allegations in the segregation report that treatment given Negroes in hospitals is much inferior to that given whites, the board offers a table which showed that Freedmen's Hospital, the only all-Negro hospital, charges the city more per day for indigent patients than any other hospital in the District.

Increase in Hospital Staffs

The fact that "more and more colored nurses are being employed in public hospitals" and that "increasing numbers" of Howard University Medical School graduates are visiting these hospitals is considered an effective answer to the committee charge that segregation in the hospitals is on the upgrade.

Although it termed the report "full of errors, misstatements, and exaggerations," the board saw a hopeful sign in a recent statement by the segregation committee chairman to the effect that the committee would correct mistakes if it had made any.

"This is a first step to better understanding," noted the board. "A willingness on the part of the committee to amend the report, delete the inflammatory comments, and confine it to a factual report of actual conditions, pointing out the advances that have been made toward a better understanding between the races, will do a great deal towards solving a very vexing problem."

County Seeks Welfare Wage Hike of 20 Pct.

A 20 per cent increase in salaries for Prince Georges County welfare workers was recommended yesterday by two Prince Georges County commissioners.

The commissioners, meeting with Prince Georges County Delegates to the General Assembly, proposed the increase to cover both case workers and the county welfare director.

The raise, if granted, would mean an approximately yearly increase of $440 for case workers and $680 for the director.

Miss E. Susan Hendricks, the welfare director, said last night she had started preliminary work on a study, looking toward possible salary increases also for other staff workers on the welfare board.

Commissioner Norman H. Collins, who represents the commissioners on the welfare board, and Commissioner T. Hammond Welsh, sr., met with the county delegates in Annapolis. Collins said the delegates promised to take the salary raise suggestion under "advisement" for presentation to the State salary board.

Charges Monday made by Welfare Board Member C. Norris Hartman that persons on the county welfare rolls have been "misusing" charitable funds given to them, are under study by the commissioners, Harry W. McNamee, commission president, said last night.

A report of the situation will be made at the next board meeting, February 15, he said.

Hartman told the commissioners many indigents were spending welfare funds for liquor instead of food, clothing and medicine. He suggested certificates be given instead of cash, specifying the sum and item to be purchased.

Boy Scouts Will Make Report To Head-Man Truman Today

Twelve boys, representing the 2,200,000 Boy Scouts of America, will drop in to see the head man of their organization today—Harry S. Truman.

The boys, here for a two-day visit to make their annual report to the Nation, will tell the honorary President of the Boy Scouts that they're making great plans for the year ahead. Their slogan: "Strengthen the Arm of Liberty." Their White House appointment is at 11 a. m.

From East to West

The youths are Eagle Scouts from all over the country—Daniel Boone Abbott of Newtonville, Mass., to James Gill, of Berkeley, Calif.

They are here to observe Boy Scout Week, marking the 39th anniversary of the organization's founding.

Last night they returned to their Hotel Willard headquarters after a full day's sight-seeing with Washington's top-drawer officialdom. They were in complete agreement that "seeing the sights and meeting the big shots is as tough a workout as a sleepless weekend camping trip."

The day began with an 8 a. m. breakfast at the Hotel Washington attended by Attorney General Tom Clark (an Eagle Scout himself), Senators and Representatives.

At the breakfast, the Scouts presented the organization's annual report, explaining what they had been up to throughout the country.

What Scouts Did

The Scouts collected 500,000 pounds of food for the Friendship Train, gathered up 781,000 pounds of paper and collected 1,905,000 pounds of clothing. They planted 1,137,000 trees last year, and distributed five million pieces of literature.

From breakfast on, the boys made whirlwind tours of the Bureau of Engraving, Capitol Hill, the Supreme Court, and the Pentagon.

Besides a call at the White House, the 12 Scouts will visit with J. Edgar Hoover at 9 a. m. today, and then go on to New York for a two-day stay.

Among District Scout troops observing anniversary week are Troop 24 and Troop 56. The first-named unit will hold its thirteenth annual Parents' Night at Northminster Presbyterian Church, Alaska ave. and Kalmia Road nw., Friday at 8 p. m. Troop 56, meeting at Pilgrim Presbyterian Church, 22d and P sts., will stage its yearly Father and Son bowling contest at 11 a. m., Saturday.

Magistrates' Trial Custom Ruled Illegal

By a Post Reporter

Annapolis, Md., Feb. 9.—Refusal of Prince Georges County trial magistrates to allow defendants in preliminary hearings to cross-examine prosecution witnesses was held illegal today by the Maryland attorney general.

The ruling, an oral one, which Attorney General Hall Hammond said he would follow up with a written opinion, was delivered to the State Senate's Judiciary Committee.

Hammond told the committee the Prince Georges "custom" is unconstitutional because it denies a defendant his right to question persons testifying against him.

Clarification Bill Offered

Currently before the committee is a bill introduced by Delegate William H. McGrath (D., Prince Georges) which seeks to "further clarify" the law on the rights of a defendant, to eliminate the Prince Georges practice.

After the committee hearing, the attorney general said he did not believe passage of a law spelling out the constitutional guarantee would be necessary, and McGrath told reporters he would withdraw his bill when the attorney general hands down his written ruling.

The opinion, he said, should be sufficient to eliminate the practice.

To Await Formal Ruling

Judiciary Committee Chairman George W. Della (D., Baltimore) said the committee would await the formal Hammond ruling before taking any action, and then, he said the committee would consider summoning the Prince Georges trial magistrate and State's attorney to ask them what they intend to do.

When the practice was first brought to the committee's attention, Chairman Della had commented: "This thing should be broken up; we'll either pass this bill or bring them up here and teach them a little law."

Court officials involved are State's Attorney A. Gwynn Bowie, Trial Magistrate Arthur P. Owens of Hyattsville, and Trial Magistrate Alan Bowie of Upper Marlboro.

All three recently defended the practice and said they would welcome an opportunity to explain it.

Smith, a mechanic, was struck by an automobile Sunday night in the 800 block of 13th st. nw. According to police, the car was driven by Salvador F. Anselmo, 21, of 5207 Georgia ave. nw.

Six-year-old Dennis A. Porter, of 5316 Gallatin st., Rogers Heights, Md., apparently suffered only body contusions when he was hit by a car shortly before 9 a. m. at Trinidad ave. and Neal st. ne.

The boy was on his way to school, police said, and was struck by a car driven by Thomas L. Parker, 37, an employe of the Federal Works Agency, of 1123 B st. ne. The boy was admitted to Children's Hospital for observation.

A car was overturned but no one was hurt at 5:15 p. m. at Sixth st. and Independence ave. sw.

The drivers were Mrs. Lucille Seymour, Department of the Army employe, of 2639 S. Pierce st., Alexandria, and John A. Talbot, Civil Service Commission employe, of 5204 Fifth st. nw.

Mrs. Seymour said a streetcar and a crowd waiting to board a streetcar obscured her view of the policeman directing traffic at the intersection. She did not see him signal for north-south traffic and hit Talbot's car and overturned it.

In a traffic story in The Washington Post yesterday, the address of Herbert Nicholson, 26, was listed as 339 Eighth st. ne. The address should have been 339 Twelfth st. ne. The Washington Post regrets the error.

'Accidental'

Child Dies From School Step Fall

Seven-year-old Kathleen Hawes, who fell down a flight of school steps, died Tuesday night at Arlington Hospital of a skull fractnre.

The girl was the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Archie Hawes, who live on U. S. Route No. 50 near Pender, Va. She was a first-grader at Floris Elementary School in Fairfax, where the accident happened.

Dr. W. C. Welburn, Arlington County coroner, issued a certificate of accidental death.

The accident occurred Monday, when Kathleen apparently tripped when walking down the steps at the Floris School.

She was found unconscious by another child, and taken to the hospital, where she never regained consciousness.

Funeral services will be held at 2:30 today at the Everly Funeral Home in Fairfax, with burial in National Memorial Park Cemetery.

Symphony Fund Passes 22 Pct. Point In First 6 Days

More than 22 per cent of the National Symphony Sustaining Fund goal of $190,000 had been pledged yesterday, six days after the drive started.

At the first report luncheon of the fund, Mrs. Hans A. Klagsbrunn, campaign vice chairman, reported 565 pledges totaling $43,400 had been received.

After the first nine days of the campaign last year, only $33,729 had been pledged.

The chairman of the Committee on Labor Unions, Sylvia Altman, reported that the Washington Central Labor Union had indorsed the symphony campaign and requested the cooperation and support of its 150,000 members.

Coroner Scans Death Plunge

Alexandria Coroner Dr. John A. Sims said yesterday he planned to issue a certificate of suicide in the death of a Fairfax County woman who plunged from a second floor window in Alexandria Hospital late Tuesday.

The woman, identified by the hospital as Mrs. Hazel Watt, 51, of Rt. 1 near Groveton, was admitted to the hospital Tuesday morning with slashed wrists.

The nurse on duty at the time of Mrs. Watt's leap, said she left the room for a few minutes around 9 p. m. When she returned, the nurse said, the window was open and the woman was lying at the bottom of a concrete well 15 feet deep which runs along the side of the north wing.

The Alexandria Rescue Squad lifted the woman from the narrow well with ropes. She died an hour and a half later.

Suffrage Group to Seek $3000 Preliminary Fund

The Central Suffrage Conference voted last night to raise $3000 for preliminary work toward an eventual campaign to sell District suffrage to a majority of members of the Eighty-first Congress.

Seventeen conference members representing civic, labor, business, fraternal and other District organizations attended the session at 700 Jackson pl. nw., with Wilbur S. Finch presiding. They agreed to defer action on a proposed $25,000 suffrage campaign fund until more specific plans develop as to the exact nature of the suffrage bill that is to be offered in this Congress and its prospects for attracting support from the largest number of organizations and individuals concerned.

The $3000 budget adopted is to increase services of the conference office in Room 1054, National Press Building, in preparing for an all-out campaign to restore to the citizens of the District the right to elect a local governing body and representatives in Congress. It was agreed the drive will have to be conducted largely through volunteer workers, and that the home-rule idea must be sold to individual members of Congress, particularly new members.

Area News in Brief

Police Play Cowboy When Truck Upsets

It was roundup time yesterday, cowboy fashion, for Fairfax County police after a double-deck trailer-truck with 135 calves upset on Route No. 211, a mile east of Centerville.

It was at almost the same spot that a truck full of livestock owned by the same man, A. W. Mills of Harrisonburg, Va., turned over and caused the same sort of excitement a year ago.

Police said the tractor-trailer truck was wrecked about 2 a. m. after a blowout. None of the calves was injured beyond a few limps, and they quickly scattered for two miles up and down the highway.

Officers Richard Wahl, Pierce Lysinger and Roland Heath had herded most of them into a pasture by daybreak and another truck put them on their way. Police said, however, they received several telephone calls later yesterday about stray calves wandering into farm yards.

Mills wasn't so lucky last year when his truckload of hogs and calves turned over. Several of the animals were killed that time.

2 of 3 Speakers Oppose School Religion Class

Two of three speakers agreed last night that religion should not be taught in the public schools, in a discussion sponsored by the Anti-Defamation League of B'nai B'rith in Cafritz Auditorium, 16th and Q sts., nw.

Arguing that the public schools should not teach religion were Dr. J. M. Dawson of the Baptists Conventions of the United States, and Dr. Richard B. Kennan of the National Education Association.

Prof. John J. O'Connor of Georgetown University maintained that since parents have the right to demand instruction in cookery and art appreciation, they should also have the right to demand instruction for their children in religion.

Dr. Kennan gave four reasons why he believed religion should not be taught in American public schools:

1. Such instruction is unconstitutional, according to consistent interpretation of the Supreme Court.

2. Schools would have to neglect general education if religion were taught. Each student is awake approximately 5000 hours a year, Kennan said, and only 900 of these hours are spent in school. Many subjects compete for these 900 hours now, he said.

3. Religion cannot be separated from sectarianism.

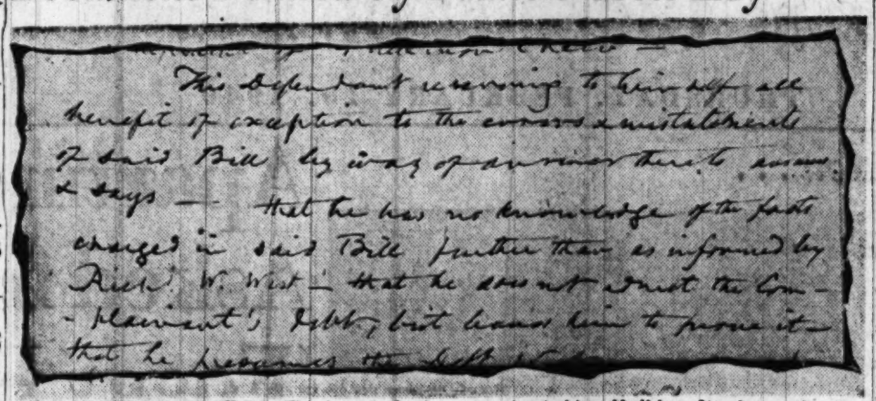
4. Public schools are today one of America's greatest unifying forces among people of many religions and races. Throughout history, he said, religion has been one of the great divisive forces.

Dr. Dawson said he did not oppose religion in education, but religious education, which must be left to the "God-appointed agencies of instruction, church and home."

Prof. O'Connor stated that since the taxes of persons of different faith support public schools, these persons should have a voice in what those schools teach.

The program was transcribed for rebroadcast in Europe, according to the moderator, Dr. Leo Shapiro, at the request of the State Department.

Document Penned by Francis Scott Key



OUT OF THE DUSTY FILES—This is part of a document, found among the records of Prince Georges County Courthouse, Upper Marlboro, Md., penned by Francis Scott Key in answer Md., penned by Francis Scott Key in answer to a complaint back in 1830. This defendant reserving to himself all benefits of exception to the errors and misstatements of said bill . . . says that he has no knowledge of the facts charged in said bill further than as informed by Rich. W. West—that he does not admit the complainant's debt, but leaves him to prove it"

Courthouse Cleaning Reveals Troubles of Francis Scott Key

Three short years before he became District Attorney of the District of Columbia, Francis Scott Key—better known as author of "The Star Spangled Banner"—was having his troubles with one Philemon Chew.

That fact, old as August, 1830, became news again yesterday when the proof of it—Key's reply to Chew's bill of complaint—turned up in a dusty folder file at Prince Georges County Courthouse, Upper Marlboro.

Finder was W. Waverly Webb, clerk to the Circuit Court, who came upon the document—and literally hundreds of other records dating back to 1690—while reshuffling his files as part of a general courthouse cleaning.

Among these faded, brittle testimonials to the life and times of days long past are countless bills of manumission: sworn statements attesting to the freeing of various slaves by their owners.

The document filed by Francis Scott Key, its edges browned with age, the crabbed penmanship dimmed by the years, charges that Philemon Chew made "errors and mistatements" in a bill of complaint which asserted that Key was in his debt.

In the document, Key admitted indorsing a deed for a "Rich. W. West," and added that he "presumes" West owes Chew something.

But, says the ancient record, Key "knew nothing of his (West) making a deed to secure him (Key) on that account, and never wished or desired that he should do so."

What finally came of it all is buried under the passage of time. Elsewhere in the record is the terse notation of the recording clerk: "File it."

Circuit Court Clerk Webb yesterday said he had found "four or five" folder files jammed with old records of this type. So far as he knows, the documents have been there since their filing.

Montgomery Delegates Hit 'Railroading'

Annapolis, Md., Feb. 9.—Montgomery County legislators yesterday accused the State's Democratic administration of "bad faith" in trying to "railroad" a local bill through the State Legislature.

The bill, which would exempt the Washington Suburban Sanitary Commission's sinking fund and water bonds from its 14 per cent bonded debt limit, would enable the sanitary commission to issue an additional five million dollars in bonds.

The heated indignation when Speaker C. Ferdinand Sybert (D., Howard) referred the proposed bill to the House Ways and Means Committee instead of following the usual practice of referring local bills to local delegations was voiced by Chairman Anders R. Lofstrand, jr., of the Montgomery delegation.

"Never before in the history of the General Assembly has a local bill been referred to a committee other than the delegation from the county affected," Lofstrand declared. "This is just an attempt to railroad the bill through the Legislature."

Five other Washington suburban sanitary commission bills introduced today would:

1. Authorize the commission to issue up to four million dollars in bonds to enlarge the Sanitary District's water supply.

2. Include a part of the Cabin John area in the Sanitary District.

3. Empower the committee to borrow up to $75,000 to complete the Montgomery County incinerator.

4. Fix the salary of the commission chairman at $5000 a year and the salaries of the part-time members at $3800 a year each.

5. Authorize the commission to issue one million dollars in bonds for storm water and surface drainage system.

Legislators from both Prince Georges and Montgomery today were considering introducing a bill which would expand the boundaries of Takoma Park, increasing the population from approximately 13,500 to 21,000.

The proposal was presented to the two delegations last night by members of a committee representing five civic groups in the Prince Georges County section of the city.

Under the bill, boundaries would be extended to include the Twenty-second Precinct of the Thirteenth Election District in Montgomery and part of the fourth precinct of the Chillum Election District in Prince Georges.

John Mathes, 3920 Illinois ave. nw., a technician at the United States Weather Bureau here, last night was elected seventy-ninth grand high priest of the Grand Chapter of Royal Arch Masons. The elections were held at the Masonic Temple, 13th st. and New York ave. nw.

Mathes, former deputy grand high priest, succeeded Roy M. Stockman. Thomas R. Wilson assumed the office of deputy grand high priest.

Other officers elected and installed last night included:

Reapportion Bill Is Killed In Maryland

Annapolis, Md., Feb. 9 (AP).—Another attempt at "equitable representation" in the Maryland House of Delegates met the fate of its predecessors today—an early death.

The Senate Judiciary Committee heard only two witnesses talk about a bill to reapportion seats in the House before voting decisively to drop it for the session.

Observers saw little likelihood of a reversal when the committee's unfavorable report comes out.

In a voice vote, only Senator John Grason Turnbull (D., Baltimore County) called in favor of the proposal to allow each county two seats and allot the remainder according to population, up to a House capacity of 125 members.

Shortly afterward, Committee Chairman George W. Della (D., Baltimore Sixth) introduced a bill to freeze House membership at its present level.

That, he said, would serve as a stopgap until some new arrangement could be made by a constitutional convention. That is, if a convention is demanded by the voters in 1950 and delegates agree that a change is desirable.

Committee actions monopolized legislators' attention in a quiet eve to what may be the most hectic day of the 1949 session.

Chairmen of the Senate and House Judiciary groups made special police arrangements for tomorrow's hearing on highly charged bills to stifle Communist activity in Maryland.

Speculation on how many persons will throng to the State House for an airing of the Ober Commission bills ranged from 700 to 2000. Regular afternoon sessions were set back an hour, to 3 p. m., to allow more time for testimony.

Pullen Hits School Board Election Plan

By a Post Reporter

Annapolis, Md., Feb. 9—Election of school board members in Montgomery County would lead to "political manipulation" in the county school system, Dr. Thomas G. Pullen, State superintendent of schools, told a legislative committee today.

Expressing vigorous opposition to a bill introduced by the Montgomery delegation to the general assembly, providing for an elected school board instead of one appointed by the Governor, Dr. Pullen told the House Judiciary Committee.

"I think this bill ought not to be passed. I don't think we will get the best people on the school board under this proposal."

Under the proposed method, Dr. Pullen said, political organizations would "gang up," and attempt to control local school boards and as a result of "political manipulation" cause unrest among teachers.

At the public hearing, Nathan R. Gilbert, president of the Montgomery County Council of Parent-Teacher Associations, which sponsored the proposal, charged that the school board "is not responsive to the people."

"The public school system," he declared, "is the most important function of county government, and board of education members should be elected by all the people they serve."

More than 13,000 active P-TA members in the county "overwhelmingly indorsed" the election proposal as did the County Civic Federation, the League of Women Voters, and the Allied Civic Group, Gilbert said.

VA Clerk Faces 13 Charges After Wild 3-Mile Dash

A 29-year-old Veteran Administration clerk is probably sure 13 is his unlucky number. He faces just that many traffic charges for a wild 3-mile drive through the city last night.

According to police, William Dwight Wadsworth, 2104 Suitland ter. se., was arrested after he drove through seven stop signs, drove on the wrong of the street, at a speed that once reached 70 miles an hour, and without lights.

He was finally brought to a halt, police said, after a chase that began at Fourth and M sts. nw., and ended at Sixth and M sts. nw., two blocks away. Three miles, however, was traveled, zig-zagging around blocks in the area before the chase ended.

Pvt. Donald Mansfield, a motorcycle patrolman stopped him by outracing him and pulling up in front of him, police said. Wadsworth was held at the Fourth Precinct pending posting of $280 collateral.

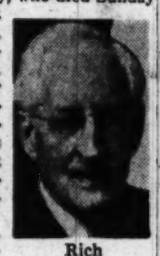
Funeral Today For G. W. Rich, Patent Lawyer

Funeral services for Giles Willard Rich, 73, patent lawyer, high Mason, and scion of an early American family, who died Sunday in his home at 1734 P st. nw., will be held today at 9:30 a. m. in Fort Myer Chapel. Military and Masonic services will follow at the grave in Arlington Cemetery.



Rich

Mr. Rich began his law practice in Rochester, N. Y., in 1899 after completing his education at the University of Rochester and Purdue University. His career took him to New York City and Erie, Pa., before he moved here in 1945. He was a member of the firm of Munn, Liddy, Glacum, and Rich, 1319 F st. nw.

During the first World War, Mr. Rich served here in the photographic section of the Air Corps Procurement Division, and rose to the rank of major. He maintained his Reserve commission and held the rank of lieutenant colonel at the time of his death.

As a patent counsel for Western Electric Corp. from 1919 to 1926, Mr. Rich took part in many of the early patent cases which came up in the development of radio and talking pictures.

A thirty-second degree Mason, a Knight Templar, and a Shriner, Mr. Rich also maintained memberships in the Army and Navy Club, the District Bar Association and the Mayflower Society of Washington, the Sons of the Revolution and the Advertising Club of New York.

The District Bar Association has named the following men to represent it at the funeral services: Walter E. Gallagher, Walter E. Barton, James P. Burns, Horace J. Donnelly, jr., P. Bateman Ennis, J. Howard Flint, Barnard F. Garvey and Edward R. Walton, jr.

Party Unit Swamped by Job-Seekers

Arlington residents who want their county Democratic committee to indorse them for better Government jobs have so swamped the committee that it has asked applicants to contact their precinct committeemen first.

Committee Chairman Harrison Mann said yesterday that "so far this year the interest expressed (in the indorsements) has exceeded the previous eight years combined."

He said that 90 per cent of the applicants wanted the indorsements to aid them in transferring from the "temporary" type of Government job, such as those with the War Assets Administration, to more permanent type jobs.

The remainder, he said, are non-Government persons wanting Federal jobs.

Arlington's Democratic Committee wants the indorsement cleared first with the committeeman, Mann said, because it is "interested in having more information than the fact that a voter's name appears on the primary books."

He said the rush for indorsements is the heaviest since the early New Deal days of the 1930s.

Mr. Martin

A member of the North Carolina State Senate from 1910 to 1912, Mr. Martin was responsible for passage of the Martin Act, which allowed married women in the State to enter into contracts without a husband's signature, previously required to make them binding.

As a member of the State House of Representatives from 1932 to 1934, he introduced the North Carolina State Bar Act, which created an integrated bar, as an agency of the State, to license lawyers.

Born in Wilkes County, N. C., Mr. Martin attended the University of North Carolina in 1884-5, and was graduated from a private law school in 1888.

He engaged in private practice in Asheville, N. C. until 1924 when he came to Washington to represent clients including the Carolina Power & Light Co., the Electric Bond & Chares Co., the Southern Railway Co., the Travelers Insurance Co., and the American Surety Co.

When he left the bureau in 1942 to return to his job as special Assistant to the Attorney General, the case load of pending claims had been reduced from about 6000 to a few hundred, members of the family said.

He retired from the Justice Department in 1947.

Besides his wife, Helen Werres, whom he married in 1891, Mr. Martin leaves three sons, Julius Martin 2d, of 4110 Ingomar st. nw.; Norman Martin of 411 E. Raymond st., Chevy Chase; Harrison A. Martin of Red Bank, N. J. A half-sister, Mrs. Celia Lane, of 2115 F st. nw., also survives.

Congressional Club Fete Honoring First Family Is a Glittering Success

By Genevieve Reynolds

TOP HATS and decolette evening dresses predominated at the Congressional Club's gala reception last night honoring the President and Mrs. Truman. The colorful event, glittering with jewels, brass and braid and front page names, was unusual in two important respects. It was the first time in about 15 years the club had staged a white-tie gathering, and it was the first time in an equal number of years guests have danced at a night event honoring the Chief Executive and the First Lady.

The scarlet-coated Marine Band, was out in full complement to provide music for both the dance and reception. Some 600 members and their guests lined the flower-bedecked circular ballroom on the second floor to greet the First Family. Mrs. Truman wore a becoming blue moire taffeta gown topped with a delicate pink-shaded orchid. When someone asked the President how he would describe the gown he smilingly replied, "Mrs. Bess blue-eyed blue." Miss Margaret Truman, who is studying voice in New York, was unable to attend.

Others Receiving

Receiving with the President and Mrs. Truman were the club officers and their husbands. Mrs. Ralph Church, newly installed president, wore a modish imported taffeta frock of subdued blue checks ranging in color from navy to royal blue. Mrs. Hal Holmes, second vice president, wore a handsome black velvet trimmed with white lace around the bodice. Pretty Mrs. Brooks Hays, fourth vice president, was gowned in green tafetta made along old-fashioned lines with a basque waist, three-quarter length sleeves, and a bouffant skirt. With it she wore a Sigma Chi fraternity locket and old-fashioned chain. Mrs. Carl Curtis, fifth vice president, wore a handsome purple dress with sequin bodice. Mrs. Paul J. Kilday, corresponding secretary, looked chic in a gunmetal taffeta and lace frock, made with a wide skirt and low neck line. Mrs. Lawrence Smith, treasurer, chose a beaded white crepe formal with straight lines.

Standing besides their wives in the receiving line were Representatives Ralph Church, Hal Holmes, Brooks Hays, Paul Kilday and Lawrence Smith.

Anxious Afternoon

For several hours yesterday afternoon it was toss-up whether or not the reception would be sans Congressmen. As the hearings on the Hill dragged out hour after hour, the lawmakers' wives watched the clock and stuck by the telephone to get the verdict.

Secretary of Defense James Forrestal, arrived with the Secretary of the Treasury and Mrs. John Snyder, the Secretary of the Air Force and Mrs. W. Stuart Symington, the Attorney General and Mrs. Tom Clark and Senator and Mrs. Clinton Anderson. Members of the group were all guests of Secretary Forrestal at a buffet dinner preceding the reception. Mrs. Forrestal was in New York to see her eldest son, Michael, sail for Europe.

Glimpsed here and there were: Representative Edith Nourse Rogers, Mrs. Carlos P. Romulo striking in a Nina Rico creation. Representative and Mrs. George Grant, Representative and Mrs. Thurmond Chatham, the Hawaiian Delegate and Mrs. Joseph R. Farrington and Secretary of the Interior and Mrs. Julius Krug.

At the Coffee Table

Miss Lou Rayburn took a turn at the coffee table as did Mrs. Max Truitt, daughter of the Vice President; Mrs. Fred Vinson, wife of the Chief Justice; Mrs. Stanley Reed, Mrs. William O. Douglas, Mrs. John Snyder, Mrs. Tom Clark, Mrs. Jesse Donaldson, Mrs. Julius Krug and Mrs. Charles F. Brannan.

Mrs. Truitt, who arrived with Mr. Truitt, wore a becoming black satin and gold brocaded frock designed with the fashionable tight bodice and full skirt.

Mr. and Mrs. John Steelman—he's the Presidential Adviser—were there chatting with the Clark M. Cliffords, the Army Chief of Staff and Mrs. Omar Bradley, and Chief Justice Fred Vinson. Mrs. Steelman's handsome nile green brocade dress featured the draped hip-line, and back train.

Heading the reception committee was Mrs. Carroll D. Kearns, wife of the Pennsylvania Representative. Her assistants included the club's immediate past president, Mrs. Clifford Davis; Mrs. John W. Bricker, wife of the Ohio Senator; Mrs. Raymond Baldwin, wife of the Connecticut Senator; Mrs. Clark W. Thompson, wife of the Texas Representative, and Mrs. Clinton D. Anderson.

Taking turns assisting Mrs. John C. Kunkel, chairman of hostesses, and Mrs. William T. Reed, co-chairman; were several past presidents of the club including Mrs. Porter Dale, Mrs. Will M. Whittington, Mrs. Edward R. Burke, Mrs. John Taber, Mrs. Burton and Mrs. Davis.

Also hostessing were the past president's of the 74th Club of which Mrs. Truman is a member. Among them were Mrs. Owen Brewster, Mrs. Charles F. McLaughlin and Mrs. Emmet O'Neal.

Introducing newcomers were Mrs. Otis Bland, Mrs. Walter F. George, Mrs. W. Sterling Cole and Mrs. Harold D. Cooley.

Presiding at Punch Bowl

Presiding at the punch bowl in the dining room were Representatives' wives, including Mrs. Jesse P. Wolcott of Mich.; Mrs. Omar Burleson of Texas; Mrs. Herbert Bonner of North Carolina; Mrs. Sterling Cole of New York, Mrs. Albert Gore of Tenn., Mrs. Christian A. Herter of Massachusetts; Mrs. Chet Holifield of Calif., and Mrs. Daniel Reed of New York.

Mrs. John J. Sparkman, wife of the Alabama Senator and Mrs. Edward Martin, wife of the Pennsylvania Senator, were among those serving punch in the small dining room as were Mrs. Clarence E. Kilburn, Mrs. John E. Rankin, Mrs. George A. Smathers, Mrs. Roy O. Woodruff and Mrs. W. F. Norrell.

Canadian Chief To Visit Truman

Prime Minister the Rt. Hon. Louis St. Laurent, of Canada, will be entertained at luncheon by President Truman on Saturday at Blair House and that afternoon the Canadian Ambassador and Mrs. Hume Wrong will give a reception in his honor at the embassy. The distinguished visitor will be the guest of the Ambassador and Mrs. Wrong during his two-day stay here.

Mr. St. Laurent expects to arrive in a Canadian government plane Friday evening. If bad weather prevents flying he will come by train, arriving in Washington at 12:30 p. m. on Saturday.

Secretary of State Dean Acheson will be host at luncheon on Sunday for the Prime Minister and the Canadian Minister and Mrs. Thomas Stone have planned a dinner on Saturday evening.

By William Klemm—The Washington Post

THE Congressional Club put on its first white-tie affair in fifteen years to honor President and Mrs. Truman last evening. Shown here greeting the President and Mrs. Truman as they took their places in the receiving line are Mrs. Ralph E. Setting Lends Charm to Navy Fete

By Marie McNair

DECATUR HOUSE, last of the private residences remaining on Lafayette Square, is to the Navy an historical shrine. Commodore Stephen Decatur, who built the house 130 years ago, died there after a duel with a fellow officer, Commodore James Barron.

It was purchased some years later by Lieut. Edward Beale who made his first voyage on board the frigate Congress, and Decatur House passed on to his son, Truxtun Beale, whose widow lives there now, surrounded by eighteenth and nineteenth century Americana.

Mrs. Beale graciously turned over Decatur House yesterday to the Navy—the Historical Foundation section—for a reception to commemorate the 150th anniversary of the victory of Commodore Thomas Truxtun in battle with his frigate Constellation against the British L'Insurgente.

Candle-Lit Portraits

Candles flickered and the lights from center chandeliers were by gas, for the owner has steadfastly refused to modernize the drawing room floor. Guests coming up the winding stairway found their way by candlelight from tall, slender brass candelabra set in niches along the wall and spaced with portraits of Beale forebears.

Comdr. Robert M. Lunny, associate director of the Truxton-Decatur Museum which before long will be housed in the old slave quarters of Decatur House, was "aboard" to present guests to Mrs. Mark Andrews, wife of the Assistant Secretary of the Navy, just resigned. Mrs. Andrews, an architect with a name to be reckoned with, had loaned her drawings of the museum for the occasion, had set them up on an easel to be seen.

Also welcoming guests was Commodore Dudley W. Knox, pinch-hitting for Fleet Admiral Ernest J. King, president of the Naval Historical Foundation, who was unable to attend.

Lieut. Comdr. Edward M. Davis 3d, director of the Truxtun-Decatur Naval Museum, was there with Mrs. Davis, and others in this strictly salty gathering were the Secretary of the Navy and Mrs. John Sullivan, the Undersecretary of the Navy and Mrs. W. John Kenney, the Assistant Secretary of the Navy and Mrs. John Nicholas Brown.

Operations Chief There

The Chief of Naval Operations and Mrs. Louis Denfeld stopped by, so did Vice Admiral and Mrs. A. W. Radford, Rear Admiral and Mrs. J. A. Furer, Rear Admiral and Mrs. A. H. Van Keuren and Rear Admiral and Mrs. Paul Bastedo.

Mrs. Stevens Macneil came up from Annapolis, where she's living this winter, to do research on the first naval officer mentioned in Maryland history; and I saw Mrs. Walter Tuckerman, the Countess Jellico, whose husband is the son of the famous British admiral, hero of the Battle of Jutland, and Mrs. J. N. Henderson, wife of the Second Secretary of the British Embassy.

Mrs. Albert P. Niblack, widow of an admiral, was among early arrivals, and others were Capt. and Mrs. Charles Bittinger, Thomas T. Waterman, who remodeled Decatur House a few years ago; Eljot Wadsworth and Mr. and Mrs. L. Corrin Strong.

The Portuguese Ambassador talked with Mrs. Robert Woods Bliss; Mme. Bonnet, wife of the French Ambassador, sleek and chic in black, was the center of a group and Mrs. James Cahill and Mrs. Floyd S. Rogers, jr., were among those admiring the Japanese silk panels around the walls in the second drawing room where the tea table had been set up.

Then there were Capt. and Mrs. W. D. Chandler, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Dewey, Mr. and Mrs. William S. Culbertson, Mrs. Robert Dunlap, Capt. and Mrs. Lucius Dunn, Mr. and Mrs. Rudolph Max Kauffmann and the Rev. C. Leslie Glenn.

THE AMBASSADOR of the Argentine, Jeronimo Remorino, entertained at a luncheon yesterday in honor of the Philippine Minister to the Argentine, Narciso Ramos. The Minister was accompanied by Manuel Escudero, Philippine Consul General at Buenos Aires.

Mr. and Mrs. Ramos are sailing from New York for Buenos Aires on February 25, accompanied by their daughter, Gloria, and members of the legation staff.

Mrs. Thomas C. Dawson Fetes Vincent B. Linns

MRS. THOMAS C. DAWSON entertained at a "welcome home" cocktail party for her son-in-law and daughter, Mr. and Mrs. Vincent Bliss Linn, visiting here from their home in Ohio.

Mr. and Mrs. Linn will go from here to New York for several days and Mrs. Linn will return for another visit before going home.

Mrs. Dawson, who is Brazilian-born, had asked the Brazilian Ambassador, Mauricio Nabuco, to her party. Also from the Brazilian Embassy were the Minister-Counselor and Mme. Mello-Franco, the Naval Attache and Mme. Ache.

The Cuban former Counselor of the Cuban Embassy, Dr. Jos. Baron and Senora de Baron, were there, and others included Mr. and Mrs. Edward Foote, Capt. and Mrs. Benjamin S. Gantz, Mr. and Mrs. Stephen Dorsey, Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Stanley, Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Satterthwaite, Mr. and Mrs. Leonard Block, Mr. and Mrs. Stokeley Morgan.

The Counselor of the Chilean Embassy and Senora de Rodrigue were there, and still others were Mr. and Mrs. Burke Elbrick, Mr. and Mrs. Benjamin Hill and Miss Cynthia Hill, Mr. and Mrs. Henry Whitney, Mrs. Ernest Walker and her son Mannix, Mr. and Mrs. Edgar Morris, Miss Marbury Beall, Dr. and Mrs. Tomas Cajigas, Mrs. Peter Drury, Robert Edwards, Paul Murphy, Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Burke, Miss Alice Dodge, Mrs. Helen Carr and Mrs. Cornelia Bassel.

Many Parties Are Planned For Visiting Mrs. Johnson

Balancing Meals With Budgets

By careful planning the housewife can disguise the fact that the family is on a small budget and the meals not so extravagant as they were in the past. A pan of inexpensive baking powder biscuits can brighten up the meal when meat has been eliminated. A tasty dessert can disguise the fact that the meal consists entirely of left overs. The point to remember is to always have the unexpected on the same menus with the leftover and less interesting foods.

Mary Haworth's Mail

Woman, 54, Mother of Six, Whose Life Has Been Normal, Busy, Self-Reliant, Has Had Prophetic Flashes Since Age of 7; They All Come True

DEAR MARY HAWORTH: I don't believe in spiritualism or such bunk, but I have proof beyond a doubt that somehow I know of coming events long before they happen. Why or how, I cannot explain; and when I make prophetic statements, I never know I am going to say them, nor can I keep from saying them.

Since the age of 7, I have had these premonitions, off and on; yet I am not morbid, I don't take life too seriously, I have a high school education and try to improve with the years, and now I am 54, the mother of six grown children, whom I reared mostly by my own efforts.

I am physically younger than my years; I have no gray hairs, haven't grown fat, and I think I've been a sensible mother. I taught the children to be independent, to think for themselves; they chose their own politics, religious affiliations and marriage partners, and I never meddle in their affairs.

She Would Like Reassuring View

I HAVE READ a lot and traveled much, yet I've never been able to throw off this thing; and I shall give you two examples. My favorite sister, who had been arthritic for several years, became much improved in the summer of 1938. We were discussing her at breakfast, and all of us were so happy for her, when out of a clear sky I said, "She will die before Christmas." She died suddenly on November 3.

Another time, two weeks before the battle of Iwo Jima, I started from our kitchen into the dining room, and in the doorway I turned to say something to two persons who were in the kitchen, when suddenly I felt cool fingers on my right hand and it seemed someone inside me said, "Pray for Wayne; he is going into a terrible battle and will be injured." I even knew the date, February 22 (1945). And so it was.

Wayne is my fourth son, and at the time of this premonition I had thought he was in a rest camp in Hawaii. I never know in advance about good things in store; it is always something tragic. And just now I know that before this year ends something tragic will happen to one of our family. The whole baffling business bothers me, and if you can offer any reassuring views, I shall be most grateful. E. D.

Pre-Cognition Isn't Uncommon

DEAR E. D.: I can give you reassurance on one point, at least; your sixth sense, or second sight, or "extra sensory perception"—the newest term coined for it—isn't an abnormal trait. By which I mean, lots of people—as "average," healthy and sensible as you—have these flashes of pre-cognition. In fact they're as old as human history; and as you thumb through the Bible you find many forthright references to prophetic inner voices.

I don't profess to know what it's all about; but for those who are interested in examining the subject, Dr. J. B. Rhine's book, "The Reach of the Mind," published in 1947 by William Sloane Associates, is a good starting point.

This book of Dr. Rhine's brings the reader up to date on the fruits of 20 years' serious, scientifically organized inquiry into the elusive nature of so-called psychic phenomena, that has been conducted at Duke University in North Carolina. Dr. Rhine is director of the parapsychology laboratory at Duke, and in collaboration with students, staff and other enterprising aides, has amassed a body of evidence that takes the subject out of the "joke" category.

Better to Pray Than to Despair

DR. RHINE'S book reports experiments, critically tested time and again, which tend to show that the human mind has power, potentially, to influence matter—or lick the law of averages—simply by confident concentration of desire upon purpose. (Witness Truman versus the wiseacres!) Also Rhine reviews other experiments which demonstrate that such forms of awareness as telepathy, clairvoyance, pre-cognition, etc., are "facts" of human experience.

With the characteristic caution of the plodding scientist, Dr. Rhine doesn't attempt to explain the "why" of these things. He ventures no theories or conclusions, other than a mild inference that the so-called extrasensory faculties under investigation are contained in man's unconscious self; which is to say, they aren't "supernatural."

Incidentally, years ago I was assigned to interview a cultured, world-traveled woman architect, who shyly admitted near the close of our talk that she had "fore-knowing."—as when, in Switzerland, she rose in the night to rush across continent and ocean, trying to reach a brother before death took him, even though a cable assured her he was in perfect health and spirits. She lost the race. She said, as you do, that dark events cast their shadows before, in her consciousness; but happy events, never. "Perhaps it's because happiness casts no shadows; it's all light," she said. For a tip, why don't you pray when tragedy signals. Remember, that's how Daniel stood off the lions—by praying night and day before and during the crucial time. M. H.

Your Own Drinking Glass

As soon as you develop a cold, stop using the glass in the bathroom and bring one from the kitchen for your special use. You may be very careful about your glass during meals and forget that usually rather neglected community glass in the bathroom, through which you could pass your cold to every member of the family.

High Chair Fixed So It Cannot Rock

Most mothers have the fear that baby will at some time rock over in his highchair. One mother has solved this problem by having a screen door hook on the back of the highchair and a screw-eye in the woodwork of each room frequented by baby. Then she hooks the chair securely and knows that he can play and be active without coming to harm.

The Slippery Pocketbook

Almost every woman has a terrible time keeping her handbag on her lap when eating in a public restaurant and yet she feels more comfortable when her money is in this safe spot. A way to remedy this slippery situation is to spread the end of the tablecloth over one's lap, then place the pocketbook on the end of the tablecloth. The cloth forms a pocket for the handbag and it stays safely there without slipping once throughout the meal.

Strapless Frocks Star At B'nai B'rith Show

By Peggy Preston

STRAPLESS frocks, with tiny boleros, won the most applause from the audience at yesterday's luncheon-fashion show at the Shoreham Hotel.

The event was given by B'nai B'rith. Women's Argo, in honor of new members and was purely a social affair, with the fashion parade as the main feature. Mrs. Nathan Simkowitz, president, presided at the head table and presented a brief review of the aims and purposes of the organization. Seated with her were Mrs. Bernard Kolker and Mrs. A. Pollin, cochairmen of the affair; officers of the group, and several honor guests, including Mrs. Lindsey P. Rawley and Mrs. Robert Freer.

Ceil Chapman's latest collection for spring and summer was presented by Julius Garfinckel & Co. Coiffeurs of most of the models was done by Antoine, Paris hair stylist, who is in Washington this week. Although Antoine recommends the short, 3-inch cut for day wear, he proved it can be transformed into something more glamorous for evening. He accomplishes this by sweeping the side and rear locks to the top of the head and pinning them there with artificial braids or curls.

Costumes shown included pure silk prints for day wear; unique cottons for afternoon and evening; and the traditional full skirted organza for formal dances which Miss Chapman does so well. There were also examples of the silk jersey dresses, intricately draped and cut, which are favorites with the House of Chapman this season.

The strapless bodice vogue was in full bloom in the collection. Often the ensemble is of tie silk, with circular skirt and boned bodice, covered with a high, tightly buttoned bolero.

Mrs. Goodwin Returns

Mrs. Clarence Norton Goodwin returned yesterday from New York where she spent several days. She went to bid bon voyage to Miss Pauline Morgan, daughter of Gen. Sir William D. Morgan, commander, British Army Staff, who was to have sailed yesterday on the Queen Mary. The sailing has been delayed until Friday.

Hemlines Up To 16 Inches In Dior Show

NO ONE, apparently, can put a hemline lower—or higher, than Christian Dior, the French designer who makes and breaks fashions at will.

Dior's new spring fashions, shown this week in Paris, put the skirt hems 16 inches from the ground—4 inches higher than it was on his famed "New Look." It is also higher than any other designer, American or French, has shown to date.

According to an Associated Press dispatch from the French Capital, Dior has initiated no other startling trends this season, but his clothes remain "different" and attractive. According to the Associated Press:

"Dior's spring fashion show featured "flying panel" overskirts. The panels, sometimes 20 of them, fall loose from the waist and swirl away as milady walks or dances to show a straight skirt slit to the knee.

Dior calls his overskirts "eyers" because many of them look like fullskirted dresses until the mannequin move about. They are designed for both day and evening wear.

The old "New Look" fullness remains in many Dior numbers, as well as the pencil-straight skirts.

Dimitri Wolkonsky

CEIL CHAPMAN'S circular-skirted green cotton cocktail dress is given added motion with Antoine's "cyclonic coiffure." Both were viewed yesterday at the luncheon-fashion show given at the Shoreham Hotel by members of B'nai B'rith. Plunging neckline, push-up sleeves and skirt of shirred tucking makes this a newsworthy frock for late spring and summer. Antoine, Paris hair stylist who is visiting here this week, arranged the hair style from a 3-inch bob which was swept forward in a manner reminiscent of the old "feather cut." In the back the short hair is pulled to the top of the head and pinned with clusters of artificial curls to create a formal effect for afternoon and evening

Senate Committee Aide Calls U. N. a 'Vital Bridge'

The U. N. is a bridge between the East and the West and we must keep the bridge in good repair, according to Francis Wilcox, staff director of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee, who has recently returned from the U. N. Assembly in Paris.

Speaking before the D. C. League of Women Voters at a luncheon meeting yesterday, Mr. Wilcox said that people seem disappointed that the U. N. hasn't accomplished more, but it is the only bridge between the East and the West. If the differences between us can be resolved, the machinery for international cooperation will be already set up, he said.

The U. N. also provides a great public forum, Mr. Wilcox stated.

The Human Rights Declaration will probably go down in history as the high point of this assembly, according to Mr. Wilcox, who called it "a beacon light—a goal toward which all nations may strive."

Mr. Wilcox said he came from Paris with a feeling of the tremendous role of leadership and responsibility that has been thrust upon the United States. "If we stumble, the assembly stumbles. If we stop, the assembly stops," he said.

This gives us a tremendous responsibility, he continued. "We must have policies ahead of time; we can't wait until things come up on the agenda."

Wilcox said that the western countries are winning the propaganda war and that Soviet appeals to the undeveloped areas are becoming less and less potent. The picture in Europe is much brighter, he found, and the "ECA is taking hold nicely."

Mrs. David Delman, chairman of the Know Your United Nations Workshop of the league which sponsored yesterday's meeting, presided. The meeting was the first event in a drive to acquaint more people with U. N. activities which the league will carry on during the next few months.

Dr. Hutcheson Discusses Speech Correction Methods

The increaseed acceptance of speech corrective techniques was discussed by Dr. Richard R. Hutcheson, director of a Washington speech school, at Tuesday's luncheon meeting of the Civics Section of the Women's City Club.

Dr. Hutcheson explained how the cooperation of speech technicians, parents and schools bring about improvement of children with speech deficiencies. Cases of stuttering—before and after treatment—were demonstrated with recordings.

Miss Margaret Griffin, president, presided. Chairman of the luncheon was Mrs. Nelson Hoff, who was assisted by Mrs. Gardiner Luce, Mrs. James W. Boyer and Senora de Diaz, wife of the Third Secretary of the Dominican Republic.

Broadway Looks Forward To 'Death of a Salesman' As 'Best Play in 25 Years'

By Mary Van Rensselaer Thayer

NEW YORK, Feb. 9.—Here it's warm as Washington. On jampacked streets, winter minks needing glazing shine orange in quickening sun. Taxi drivers growl about bad business with best heeled customers out of town. Traffic's delayed by penny fumbling an extra cent on Fifth, 2 on Madison avenue buses. Show windows show spring enticements—tiny fur tippets of precious pelts bow-tied or tail cascade fastened—umbrellas frivolously frou-froued—tight-skirted suits with jutting peplums—airyfairy cotton party frocks, their swirly skirts swiss cheesed with holey embroidery. Though few dress collections have as yet debuted, the new hats are here. Trickiest to date are Mr. John's transparent cartwheels, tight cloches numeros with single plump rose tethered firmly on neck nape. Daytime Dior dresses are 13 inches off floor; night jobs narrow hobbles or intricately voluminous. At El Morocco, however, many of the charmers were still giving their ballerinas a final workout.

New Arthur Miller Play Awaited

THEATRICAL chatter centers about tonight's opening of Arthur Miller's Death of a Salesman, which Philadelphia reviewers call best fare in quarter century. Authored by Arthur Miller of All My Sons fame, it stars Lee J. Cobb and Mildred Dunnock. Mae West, successful survivor of California plagiarism suits is literally wowing in revival of Diamond Lil. Though most critics quibbled, exposing their obvious pleasure, erudite George Jean Nathan went to town with full vocabulary describing the West physical attributes or perhaps lack of them in full four-syllable magnificence. Personal kick on revisiting Born Yesterday, now in its fourth season, was seeing Star Judith Holliday peruse a somewhat battered copy of the well-known Washington Post. On the cinema front talk concentrates on Selznick's Portrait of Jenny, long heralded but still unshown in Broadway.

Automotive Show Packs 'Em In

A MOST popular Manhattan spot is the National Guard Armory at Lexington and 25th, where the first international show of foreign automobiles is ending a long stand. Some 67 cars are on view. Thirty-five have left-hand drives. Prices range from a $1065 Simca to a $25,000 Daimler and Rolls Royce limousine creations. Interesting sidelights are the motorcycles with a 58-pound front-wheel-drive French Solex, captivating onlookers. Soon the Solex will be made under French license in Detroit. Most talked about social "do" was the recent Sunday night supper given by the Harold Brookses. The smallish gathering included such diverse personalities as Evelyn Waugh and General Eisenhower, with Noel Coward as informal master of ceremonies. Reason for the party's prominence was the expression on General Ike's face as Dear Noel sang several of his most ambiguously double entendre ditties. Something very new for the fair sex is the snappy salon opened recently opposite Bonwit Teller by those clever hair people—Fleischers. Fleischers have thought up every imaginable variety of phony hairdo—bangs, buns, whole topknots and, nicest of all, fake side pompadours to wear with upturned hats when milady's coiffeur is rumpled. These hirsute adornments are guaranteed to stay put and are veritably the answer to practically any maiden's prayer.

Mandate Group To Hear Report On U. N. Parley

Miss Alice Morgan Wright of Albany and Miss Mary Gertrude Fendall of Baltimore, representatives of the Peoples Mandate at the United Nations Assembly in Paris, will speak on their experiences at the Assembly at a reception given by the Mandate Committee at the Hay-Adams House today, 5 p. m.

Miss Minerva Bernardino, chairman of the Inter-American Commission of Women, who was an official delegate of the Dominican Republic to the Paris Assembly, and Representative Reva Beck Bosone, a member of the Peoples Mandate in Utah, will be special guests and will speak briefly.

Among those attending the reception will be leaders of international organizations, including the International Council of Women, the Women's International League for Peace and Freedom and the World Woman's Party, and Washington Alumnae of Smith College of which Miss Wright is a graduate and of Bryn Mawr College from which Miss Fendall was graduated.

In the receiving line with the honor guests will be Mrs. Thomas Burke, Latin American chairman of the Mandate Committee, and Miss Mabel Vernon, director. Mrs. Lucia Hanna Hadley is in charge of arrangements and Miss Edith J. Goode, a classmate of Miss Wright's, is chairman of hostesses.

Department Status Is Urged for FSA

Conversion of the Federal Security Agency into a separate Department of Welfare with Cabinet status was urged yesterday by FSA Administrator Oscar R. Ewing.

In hearings on the Administration-sought measure before the House Committee on Executive Expenditures, Ewing said the measure would bring about greater efficiency because it would give the department head authority commensurate with his responsibility. He noted that the Hoover Commission had already declared that when great responsibility is vested in a public official he should have the authority to carry it out.

There should be administrative controls, Ewing declared, to prevent bureau chiefs from "sabotaging policies," which have been determined by the President or the head of the department. On the whole, the so-called "bureau autonomy," he said, is undesirable.

Cooperation Needed

Ewing said he did not desire to "muzzle" or exert censorship over any bureau chief, but, he declared, bureau chiefs should remember that they are playing on a ball team.

The FSA administrator declared that when the Budget Bureau had cut items out of appropriations of some bureaus in his agency, bureau chiefs had been known, nevertheless, to come to Congress and lobby for items omitted.

As another example, he cited the shift asked by the President of the U. S. Conciliation Service from the Federal Security Agency to the Department of Labor.

"That shift is perfectly okay by me," he told the committee. He said he was loyal to the President and if that is the Administration decision, he approves it.

"But some of the people under me," he declared, "have been trying to sabotage that program."

Action Now Blocked

Under Civil Service, he agreed, he could not discharge these subordinates but if the agency had the status of a department he could shift the duties of these individuals.

The proposed measure, Ewing noted, neither adds to nor subtracts from the functions now performed by the Federal Security Agency.

Ewing noted in his formal statement that he was not urging this status for FSA because of any personal reasons. He said he did not even know if the measure went through whether he would be named as the new secretary. It is well known that Ewing is being groomed to run next year in New York State in either the gubernatorial or the senatorial race.

Oaks Concert Gives Taste Of Opera

By Paul Hume

Visions of opera danced through the heads of the Friends of Music of Dumbarton Oaks last night.

For Washington's only opera of the season was given there in an all-Mozart program. A chamber orchestra and chorus under the direction of Paul Callaway gave the second act of Idomeneo. Solo lines were sung by Anne Bollinger and John Garris of the Metropolitan Opera and by Ruth Diehl.

Idomeneo is the first mature opera from Mozart's pen. It is the one opera in which he assigns the chorus an important dramatic role.

Last night's chorus gave a unique performance for contemporary opera in the impact with which they handled their responsibilities.

The singing of the three soloists was impeccable in style, tone, and all-around comprehension. Miss Diehl, who sang at the Water Gate last summer, and her two partners won ovations from the audience for the brilliance of their work.

Garris displayed some of the finest vocal technique now before the public. His Metropolitan partner, Miss Bollinger, is rapidly developing into a fine Mozart singer.

Ralph Kirkpatrick gave perfect harpsichord support to the recitatives. The whole evening furnished new proof of the breadth and perception of Paul Callaway's musicianship. In his first appearance as an opera conductor, and in Mozart at that, he added new glories to his impressive career in this city.

The evening opened with the unfamiliar Symphony No. 28 in C Major. The orchestra, which gave expert support in the opera, played the symphony with finish except for some ragged work in the violin in the last two movements.

The great moments of the evening were those in the opera. If Washington is to have no large-scale opera this season, at least it had a brilliant sample in last night's concert version. Even a small opera house would make it possible for the public at large to hear music such as the Dumbarton Oaks concerts.

Navy Reveals Four Wounded in Ship 'Disturbance'

Boston, Feb. 9 (AP).—Four members of the crew of the destroyer USS Rich were slightly wounded today by a single .45-caliber bullet, fired by a Security patrol attempting to break up a disturbance aboard the warship, the Navy announced.

According to the Navy, Norman Edgar Thomkins, machnist's mate 3d, of Herrin, Ill., tried to disperse an unruly gathering in a washroom at 2 a. m. (EST) and fired a shot against the steel overhead. The bullet ricocheted, inflicting glacing wounds on three men and a chest wound on the fourth.

They were listed as Gerald J. Smith, 21, engineman 3d, of Bayonne, N. J., wounded in left hand; Pledger H. Ingram, 26, machinist's mate 2d, Birmingham, Ala., scalp wound; Walter M. Butler, 23, machinist's mate 3d, Wilmington, N. C., right hand wounded, and John A. Johnson, 19, seaman apprentice, Niagara Falls, N. Y., chest wound.

About Extra Rails For Outgrown Crib

Where can I buy an extra top rail for a baby's crib, I have read they are making ones that fasten to the regular rail to give added height on the side. I am afraid my baby will soon topple over the edge if I do not have some such attachment. A. B.

The infant furniture department of several of the large Washington department stores carry these rails.

Two neighbor children recently poured nail polish over a quilted bedspread, staining it considerably. The spread consists of squares having colored dolls in each, possibly fast colors. My only solution to removing stains was to use acetone. Can you suggest anything better? A. S. A.

It is all right to use acetone to remove the stains, unless the spreads are rayon. If it is, acetone is likely to injure the fabric. A method which may be used on rayon, as well as other fabrics, is to wet the stain well with carbon tetrachloride and then apply banana oil. Brush lightly with a soft cloth using an upward motion to pick up the polish.

How does one remove grease spots from a plain light green wall-papered wall? Will the same method work for wallpaper as you suggest for a painted wall?

D. K. F. B.

The method suggested, using paste made by mixing corn starch and carbon tetrachloride, will remove grease spots from wallpaper. When making the paste, add just enough carbon tetrachloride to give a moist paste—not a runny one. Spread this thickly over the stain and let it stand until completely dry. Brush powder away. If the grease is not completely removed, repeat.

Is there any place in or around Washington that repairs glass? I cracked an old cut-glass pitcher because I used water much too hot. If I can't have it done professionally, is there any way to repair it at home?

H. R.

The firms listed under "China and Glassware—Repairing" in the yellow pages of the telephone book do this sort of repair work. There is a possibility that the pitcher cannot be restored to use as a pitcher, but it probably can be repaired for use as an ornament. The repairman, when he sees the pitcher, will be able to tell you how successful the repair will be.

Liquor License Recall Urged For Minor Sale

Mandatory revocation or suspension of liquor licenses in convictions for selling liquor to minors is sought by the Prince Georges County Juvenile Court advisory committee.

Proposed legislation requiring the revocation or at least 30 days suspension was submitted by the committee yesterday to the county's State legislative delegation.

The committee disclosed Tuesday it had urged the county delegation to introduce in the Legislature, now in session in Annapolis, another bill which would bar minors from entering, or remaining, in Prince Georges taverns after 9 p. m.

Both bills were drafted by the juvenile advisory group's subcommittees on legislation.

State's Attorney A. Gwynn Bowie, a member of the subcommittee, said yesterday the bill to require license lifting or prolonged suspension for tavern operators convicted of selling alcoholic beverages to persons under 21 was drawn up "to put a few more teeth" into liquor regulations.

Under present laws, he said, the county board of license commissioners is required to suspend licenses after a conviction, but the length of suspension may be as short as 24 hours. He said the measure was proposed as part of an effort to reduce juvenile delinquency.

Hudson Tunnel Railroad Strike Protests Firings

New York, Feb. 9 (U.P.).—Station agents and maintenance workers on the Hudson & Manhattan Railroad struck tonight in protest against the scheduled firing of 49 employes.

The railroad, which carries some 200,000 commuters daily through tunnels under the Hudson River between New York and New Jersey, announced it would attempt to keep operating.

The strikers counted on trainmen, conductors and other employes to support the strike by refusing to cross picket lines.

The company asserted it had a right to reduce its labor force at any time.

THE DISTRICT LINE by Bill Gold

An Open Letter to 2500 District Liners

For the past few weeks, there have been no reports in this space on the state of the Dorothy Kilmer Fund.

Those of you who have time for the news columns when you finish the comic page found the explanation in yesterday's upfront story about Dorothy.

We held up further efforts in behalf of the fund, pending conclusion of the first phase of Dorothy's fight for recovery. Now she's out of the hospital, and resting at home, preparatory for the next phase—at the Woodrow Wilson Rehabilitation Center, at Fishersville, Va.

The 2500 District Liners who contributed $5511.17 to the Dorothy Kilmer Fund got ample repayment yesterday, when they saw the picture of Dorothy learning to walk again.

DOROTHY

And they're doubly repaid in the knowledge that $4284.89 still remains in the fund, to start her off at the Fishersville institution, and possibly see her through to the completion of her rehabilitation program.

If more is needed, I know we'll dig it up. Meantime, I wish there were some way to give personal acknowledgment, and thanks, to each of the 2500 donors.

Since there isn't, let me devote one column to a token attempt at expressing Dorothy's thanks, and mine. Let me quote from a few letters:

"It sure takes a long time and a lot of work to jar us folks out of a buck, doesn't it? I'm sorry I took so long in responding—and say 'good luck' to Dorothy for me." (Don Garrett, 4334 N. Fairfax dr., Arlington, Va.)

"The enclosed was raised by five little girls who gave a Christmas play, and charged 3 cents admission. The total was increased to the greenback range by adults who 'just didn't have the right change.' The girls were: Rita Horowitz, 5; Carol O'Brien, 7; Shirley Gravenor, 8, and Rosemary and Kathleen Mangan, who are 5 and 7, respectively."

"Hurry up and get an answer from the doctor. If he won't let her have a typewriter yet, I'm going to sell it and send her the cash." (Leon Typewriter Co.)

"It was Dorothy yesterday, but tomorrow it might be me. Or you. If we all stopped to think about that, those dollars would come rolling in from everybody in town." (Ann L. Jones, 9315 Wire ave., Silver Spring, Md.)

"As a Thanksgiving Day offering, I have sent another $2 to Dorothy—a dollar for each of the two good legs that I have to walk upon." (G. R. deB.)

"I'm ashamed of myself for having neglected to send this money in sooner. I'm adding to my contribution, to make up for others like me." (Helen I. Mothershead, 2809 McKinley pl. nw.)

"Here's mine. Good luck and bright hopes for the future, from one who knows how it feels." (V. M. A.)

"I'm a 14-year-old school girl. On Trick or Treat night I went out begging for Dorothy in the City Park housing development in Falls Church, and here are my collections. Please don't use my name, but put something in your column, because some people out here didn't believe that I really wanted the money for Dorothy. I'd like to prove it to them." (A. S.)

"Here's ours. An orchid—with cactus—to Major Barrett and his cohorts." (Capt. and Mrs. J. S., Fort Davis, Canal Zone).

"There is need for a rebuke to the dull-witted and unjust comment attributed to Police Superintendent Barrett (that official action 'might create a precedent'). Indeed it might. And should. I think decent people are getting ready for such a precedent." (Edgar H. Berry, Box 201, Hagerstown, Md.)

"This money order represents contributions from the Drafting Room of the Washington Gas Light Co.; and with it goes our sincere wishes for a speedy recovery for a fine girl."

"Our contribution isn't large, but it represents our unit almost 100 per cent. Tell Dorothy we're all for her." (Ruby Burress, Communications Unit, Weather Bureau.)

That isn't even a good cross-section of the thousands of expressions of good neighborliness that came pouring in.

Our City Stepfathers wouldn't take the responsibility of caring for the victim of a foolish policeman, because "it would set a bad precedent."

So we undertook the job ourselves. And Dorothy is going to finish it, by coming out of the Woodrow Wilson Rehabilitation Center a thoroughly self-sufficient young lady.

We couldn't have asked for a happier ending to a story that had an almost tragic beginning.

Leonard Lyons . . .

NEW YORK.—Philip Noel-Baker, the British delegate to the U. N., has a unique document which was returned to him as a memento by Andrei Gromyko. During the discussion of the permanent site for the U. N., Gromyko said that the Soviet Union wanted it to be in New York. "What's your second choice?" asked Noel-Baker. Gromyko insisted "New York." Noel-Baker suggested that Gromyko consult with Molotov about it. Molotov's choice was "New York" . . . "There is no room in New York," the Britisher reminded him. "Have a second choice ready." But the next day John D. Rockefeller, jr., offered the land for the U. N., and Gromyko sent Noel-Baker a triumphant note: "See? The U. S. S. R. wanted it to be New York, and New York it is" . . . "Yes," Noel-Baker wrote on the bottom of the note, "but with the help of multicapitalist Rockefeller."

Lee J. Cobb's contract with the producers of "Death of a Salesman" provides that he must sell his plane. The producers insisted on this clause because Cobb was late one afternoon and the producers found themselves searching the sky and studying weather-maps.

Paul Stewart, in reviewing the recent snowfall in Hollywood, said: "To some of the young starlets, it was the first snow they'd seen in 40 years."

John Gunther, who has visited every single country represented in the United Nations, still hasn't visited the U. N. buildings at Lake Success, a half hour from his town house in New York.

One of De Gaulle's friends who just arrived from Paris was asked about the General's political situation. He replied: "De Gaulle is still fishing on the banks of the Rubicon." Noel Busch's forthcoming biography of the late co-founder of Time Magazine will be called "Briton Hadden: His Life and Time" . . .

Vandenberg on Connally's Past

By Drew Pearson

Three distinguished statesmen were on hand to greet the French Gratitude Train when it arrived in Washington—Vice President Barkley and his former colleagues, Senators Connally of Texas, Democrat, and Vandenberg of Michigan, Republican.

Tom Connally

These three have served in the Senate together for more than a quarter of a century. Sometimes they have been on opposite sides of bitter political battles, but they have never let party politics interfere with personal friendship. They know each other as well as they know the Senate—which is better than almost anyone else in Washington. How much Senator Vandenberg knows about the early boyhood of Senator Connally is his secret.

But at the conclusion of the ceremonies welcoming the Gratitude Train, as the venerable Tom Connally took a pair of shears and snipped the red, white and blue ribbon sealing the District of Columbia boxcar, his old friend, the Senator from Michigan, whispered to the Vice President of the United States:

"I'll bet that's not the first time Tom has broken into a boxcar."

Acheson vs. Bevin

It isn't being advertised outside the State Department, but British Foreign Minister Bevin didn't put his best foot forward with the new United States Secretary of State just a few days after Dean Acheson took office.

Bevin sent what amounted to a frantic S O S to Acheson for help to get him enough votes to squeak by an attempted censure of British foreign policy in the House of Commons. But after Acheson helped to get him the votes, Bevin, in effect, bit the hand that fed him.

Here is the inside story of what happened:

Just before the debate on Palestine, Bevin was worried sick that the Labor Party might be defeated and have to resign. Part of the criticism was because Britain's policy in Palestine was upsetting American relations. Therefore, Bevin hit on the idea of telling Parliament that Britain and the United States had settled their differences and now agreed completely on Palestine.

Bevin actually wrote out his remarks in advance and cabled them to the State Department January 25 to make sure Secretary Acheson had no objection. Bevin also appealed to Acheson to issue an American statement backing up Bevin on Palestine. The State Department okayed Bevin's remarks and gave him the go-ahead—and that statement was the trump card which helped him win a vote of confidence by a margin of only 90. Otherwise the Labor government might have been defeated.

However, Bevin extemporaneously inserted some other remarks in his speech, criticizing American policy. This made Acheson so irate he flatly refused to issue the subsequent statement on Palestine supporting Bevin.

Dodgers' Airfield

It isn't often the Government gets mixed up in big league baseball, but for some time the Civil Aeronautics Authority has been probing the Brooklyn Dodgers' spring training camp at Vero Beach, Fla.

Actually, the Dodgers are not involved. It's the city of Vero Beach which the Government is interested in, because of a complicated transaction by which Vero Beach is suspected of leasing a Government airfield to the Dodgers at a handsome profit. The airfield is being used by the Dodgers for their fair-weather training, for an official charge of $5 per year plus the proceeds from an exhibition game. The airfield is owned by the Government and leased to the city of Vero Beach for nothing, with the stipulation that any income is to be used for the airfield's upkeep and improvement.

CAA officials now suspect that a lot more than $5 a year is being paid by the Dodgers for the airfield. What makes them suspicious is a statement by Mayor Merrill P. Barber that the city had "entered into a five-year renewable lease with the Brooklyn Baseball Club at an estimated income of $12,000 (annually)."

Later, city officials began to search for extra pillows upon which the Dodgers' heads were to rest at night. The Government supposedly was turning over a certain number of pillows with the airfield. And Airport Manager Bud Holman, appealing for more pillows, complained: "This is really putting us in a bad position, as we have a 10-year contract with the Brooklyn Ball Club which should bring us in from $20,000 a year upward."

Reclamation Fight

One of the bitterest battles of the Eightieth Congress was over Director of Reclamation Mike Strauss and his California regional aide, Richard Boke. The battle finally ended by Congress taking the almost unprecedented action of barring them from the payroll.

Backstage, this battle is raging again inside the Rules and Appropriations Committees of the Eighty-first Congress, where a coalition of Southern Democrats and Republicans is ganging up to block Truman on reclamation. Real issue behind this battle is the 160-acre limitation on reclamation holdings in the Far West.

California's Senator Sheridan Downey, though a Democrat, led the grudge fight against Strauss and Boke. Brazenly he claimed they had administered the 160-acre limit too efficiently. Now he is pulling wires to block them from getting back their jobs, and, to some extent, the fight has boiled down to one between Truman and Downey.

So far Truman has lost the battle. The February 1 deadline, when Strauss and Boke went off the payroll, has been reached and passed. The amendment Truman requested has been blocked.
